Buffalo clubbed Jean Pierre Roy, making his first start of the year, and Dan Bankhead for 16 hits in an 8-3 romp over Montreal. Ames Moore led the attack with four for five.

Old Jake Wade, who went all the way for the Bisons, lost a shutout when Bob Morgan hit his fourth homer of the year, with a man on, in the fourth.

Estimate Wallop By Larry Doby Carried 500 Feet

Washington, May 26 (AP) — Larry Doby of Cleveland Indians Wednesday night hit one of the longest home runs in Washington's baseball history.

Repeating his Yankee Stadium performance of last Friday, the Negro outfielder slammed a fast ball over Griffith Stadium's right-centrefield wall.

Veteran baseball writers estimated the ball carried 500 feet. It cleared the sign, which is 55 feet above the ground, by about 10 feet.

"I think it was the longest I've ever hit", Doby said in the clubhouse.

In New York last Friday, Doby blasted one into the centrefield bleachers and veteran observers said it was the first homer ever hit into that section. It carried at least 430 feet.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A tired but more or less happy Oshawa baseball team stepped here Monday night passing for a midday breather en the last lap from Pittsburgh to the home hearth and grounds. The boys had split a COBL double-header with the crew from the Steel City and Manager Bill Mosey and Trainer Harold Gecow knew they had the right dope when the jaded Bataws bore in the afternoon and shoved some interest in the fast the senior softball champion team from their home town, the Whip in Friday's main mat bout. The Whipper since losing his British Empire Championship to Australian's Fred Atkins has been fighting harder and tighter than ever before. On two occasions he has come within a whisker of beating the Aussie and regaining the Empire crown but each time bad luck has dogged his steps.

On Friday night the Whipper will be going all out against Davis for a win over the big mean Russian from Los Angeles means plenty to the Canadian. A loss would be of equal importance especially at this time when Watson is so anxious to get into the ring once more with Atkins. The enormous Davis who weighs around 300 lbs. when bundled and stinky mark and all of it bone and muscle thinks he can lick anybody. His several years in Japan make a dashing smashing sort of an encounter and one that the fans at least can enjoy thoroughly.

Another colossus of the mat the Davis will be back on Friday's card against the famous Sliding Billy Hansen. Hansen electrified the fans here on several occasions with his sensational mat wrestling years ago. He is reported to be faster and tougher than ever in the feud bout a brilliant new-comer Tug Carlsen from Seattle, Wash. Sweet comes in against Ed Measke, to round out an all-star card.

Sid Gooch for the second time for the leading man, ne to speak. "Yes" continued the managerial impresario of the Oshawa squad brewed into the rest room, accompanied by genial Kay Fair, "we'd sliced over to the table where we were sitting and whispered "Brother, what a team we've got. It's going to be the answer to a manager's prayer. It's going to be mobile, the wonder team of the COBL and from what I saw today, we're not afraid of Murphy's Petes. Easton's Bataws, Brockville Elmos and yes can coach in Ezzie Bonura's Kingston Frontes, for good measure."

"Why all the secrecy, Ty?" we whispered back. "Speak up, man, with a team like you say you've got behind you, we'd shout from the housetops, the whole world has its tailed spire of the General Motors Corporation."

"Whisht, boy, h-i-s-h," Ty Tyson said. "Get it if I could, I just plain relied my voice away in Brockville today." The Tyson-ian larynx apparently took terrific punishment at the Ogdensburg baseball in a sterling performance of 9 innings of time at the league bat, and Tyson made no bones about it.

But his tonsils were swelled, his vocal cords shrivelled and his shirt collar was a limp rag, but with hands, eyes, face and what Ty couldn't say he gestured in convincing manner.

He sipped at his beaker of ginger ale. He was far from the verbal shrinking violet so to speak, that invaded the portals of Elks Hall, when we were there, but when he returned at least six words over a 45-minute interview. This was a different Tyson. It was his evening to howl and if all he claims about this Oshawa crew is 50 per cent true, level, then the rest of the COBL mob had better look to its pins and start bolstering.

"Whatta pitcher, whatta catcher, whatta battery? gurgled the Tyson in a loud whisper although inwardly he was all set with the lung power. "And," he added, "whatta team. Bring on the Petes, the Bataws and the rest of the lot. Our Oshawa will show 'em a thing or two this season, or I'm second secretary of state to Joe Stalin."

Then a look of sadness swept over the Tyrsonian features. He shook his head slowly, but that second game was a toughie to lose. We had the first one 6-4 and then came the greeves and whatta pitcher we have. Jim Hawthorne, two wins his end my boy loses the game. Imagine again, two strikes on the first batter in the first inning and he's out on a fly ball. The Brockville gunner leaned heavily on the hickory and the pill scooted over the left field wall for a home run, about 250 feet, an easy out in any other park," he lamented.

Ty figures that the move made by the COBL in lowering the import bars and throwing the Windsor Parks open is one of the best moves made so far to increase the caliber of the COBL baseball and bring it back to its former high status in senior baseball circles. "Windsor is fine for us. It's worth to Brockville, too, for that matter. We've got a sweet battery, a pitcher named Hawthorne (that's the way it sounded to his) and a catcher tabbed Tyrosny. We flew 'em 400 miles from the USA and, brother, they're going to be the answer to a lot of Oshawa's baseball troubles."

"Brockville" will be tough tables to beat in this man's loop," predicted the tiring Ty. "They've got a grand team, well bolstered in all departments. The Elmos have a steady southpaw that will make a lot of 'em look like clear store Indians before the season is over. Don't sell Brockville short. They'll be in there and head from spiderville before the whistles toot for playoff time. And this import rule is right down their alley. Next door to us to speak in baseball terms, they're helping themselves and should be one of the strongest teams in the loop."

The Brockville-Oshawa split and the Peterborough victory over Bataws on the holiday gave the Petes the league lead with Oshawa and Brockville tied for second with a win and a loss each and Bataws in the cellar with a 0-2 record. The Shamrock trek to Oshawa for Saturday next. Bataws won't be at home again until June 11 when they entertain Oshawa, and Brockville hikes to Peterborough for the ball.

We've seen baseballs perform some strange antics during our sojourn as chronicler of games, but one of the "strangest we ever did see" occurring during the Bataws-Peterborough game here on Monday. Pat Callahan, Petes arbiter was called 'em behind the plate. The pitcher shot a fast one down the alley. The catcher missed the ball and it hit Bill Mosey abdominal protector with a loud thump. Then it rolled slowly up the piece of protective gear, nestled COziLY in the umpire, picked its way around his neck and came to rest at the base of his skull inside the collar of his jacket.

Puzzled as to where the ball had gone, Pat cogted about him. The rear of the crowd and some friendly advice from players enabled the Umps to locate the traveling pill.

The Commercial Softball League makes its 1949 bow to the baseball public here tonight with a double-header at the Stewart-Warner Field. Pushing up the curtain on the 1949 season will be the Shell Oil team and Rosedale's Lumbermen. In the nightcap MacFarland's Woodware and Swacos will go to the mat looking for an initial victory. Two newcomers in the league this year and there will be plenty of softball for lovers of the game. The loop produced a fine calibre of the pastime last year, and reports state that all teams have strengthened considerably this season. First game 6.15.

Kiwanis Juniors beat the "new uniform" jinx at the Fair Grounds last night when they coasted through to an easy 19-7 jury over John Hatter's Trenton Town nine. Immaculate in brand new white uniforms trimmed with blue with stockings to match, the youngsters turned in a smart brand of baseball with young Billy Strachan hurling like a veteran to let the foe down with three singles over the eight inning route.

Trenton definitely showed a lack of practice. They chucked and kicked the ball around in Amateur-Canteen style, and the majority of the bobbles proved pay-dirt for the Kiwanis side of the ledger. Glen Bedee, Trenton's batting star, hurled good baseball striking out eight juniors, and scattering eight hits over the route. But he couldn't win it alone. The boy deserves a better fate.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 26 (AP) — It must be catching. Lots of other leagues are wondering how long the Giants will stay up, International leaguers are taking the same question about Jersey City. Little Giants, that is. Seventh-or-eighth-place pick before the season, but they're breezing along in front for no apparent reason....three so-so pitchers, Wes Bailey, Ray Campbell, Bamberger and Roger Bowman—are carrying the load; catcher Wes Westrum, a .190 hitter with the big Giants last year, is belting the ball a mile and more; Irvin up from the Negro Newark Eagles, has done such things as hitting homers to left, right and center thanks to one game...one thing seems sure; if the big Giants have trouble with Brooklyn's Don Newcombe, they should call on the farmhands...Newcombe faced Little Giants this week twice this year and had his ears pinned back both times.

Confidence Corner

In the southeastern conference baseball meet at Birmingham, Ala., Charles (Buster) Lowther, Louisiana State polo vaulter, tumbled brother, Bobby, was trying to vault 13 feet, Buster's reverse pole-vault record pin the same meet on the same field. He made a bad landing and broke his left leg.

Shorts and Shells

Hardest-luck guy in minor league baseball this season may be Jack Cummings, first baseman for Green Bay (Wis.) Bluejays in the Class D Northern League. Cummings was batting .500 after 12 games, had driven in 15 runs and was leading the league in homers with six when he broke his leg sliding into second base. Cummings is a veteran of 10 years in the minors.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

As you swing into contact with the ball when using wood, you should be aiming the ball forward of center as pictured. The three - position club is also shown is the result of the whip lash effect produced by uncocking the wrists at the bottom of the downswing. Note that the player has returned at impact to nearly almost the address position. His left arm and club shaft form almost a straight line to the ball, his hips and shoulders are parallel to the direction line and his eyes are fixed on the ball. This is the correct position at impact and from here on the player's shoulders will rise and his left hip will sort of thrust forward, too, as the right side and right arm pour down into the ball and follow through. I think this is the type of picture that tends to straighten out the thinking of a golfer at that important at the critical point of impact.

Record Field May Line up For Epsom Derby

London, May 26 (CP)—A record purse and what may be a record field will feature the run for the blue-ribbon of the English turf—the 1¼-mile Derby Stakes at Epsom Downs, June 4.

The final acceptances for the classic, announced Wednesday, number 36 three-year-old colts of the 417 original entrants still in the field, boosting the pot to $117,125 ($68,000) of which the winner will collect £14,170.

"All 36 entries may not go to the post. But if most of them do there is a possibility that the previous record derby field—34 in 1862 when Caractacus scampered home, will be exceeded.

Many experts are afraid the huge field, bumping its way around tortuous Tattenham Corner, will spoil the race.

Norman Pegg of the Daily Graphic, one of London's leading racing authorities, writes:

"I have never known so many bad horses left in the derby as are among the 29 final acceptors announced yesterday. In at least 20 would be installed immediately their owners would be doing a good deed.

"But the field which faces the starter at Epsom a week from Saturday will be spoiled by the sheer mediocrity of 75 per cent of its number.

"Only six of the 29 entries are from France which has carried off the last two derbys with Peter Pan in 1951 and My Love last year. Others are Amour de Dadea, Tighlander III, Mon Chatelain, Target and Val Drake.

The No. 1 English stable, Noel Murless' Beechampton, Wildenstein Farm, will send only one runner to Empson—the favorite Royal Forest. Maj. R. MacDonald-Buchanan's colt was quoted at 7 to 2 at Monday night's price setter. Royal Forest will be ridden by champion jockey Gordon Richards who has yet to win a derby.

Still in are the joint 5-to-1 second favorites, Lord Derby's Swallow Tail which will be ridden by Sandy Smith, and Mrs. M Glenister's Nimbus which will have Charlie Elliott in the saddle.

PICTON

Picton Wins Opening Game From Napanee

Picton, May 25 — Picton Intermediates won the opening game of the Bay of Quinte Baseball League, defeating Napanee 6-3 here yesterday. Errors proved costly to the visitors, with Picton getting two runs in the first inning without a hit. In the fourth, a double by Carson and a single by Stevenson accounted for another run. Double play, D. Miller and Carson, an error and a single by Stevenson gave the locals three more counters in the sixth. Napanee scored a run in the first when V. Green was hit by pitched ball and scored on Marsele's single. Their second was in the fifth when Marsele singled and scored on Gerow's double.

Frank Dyer, on the mound for Picton, pitched himself out of several difficult spots. He struck out seven batters. Ted Sno, Stan McTaggart for Napanee struck out seven. Carson led Picton hitters with three doubles. J. Miller had a double and a single, and Stevenson two doubles. J. Marsele led Napanee hitters with two singles and a double, McTaggart two singles, Gerow a double and Jocko, R. Green each a single. The superb pitching of Dyer in the tight spots was given good support by the field. George Hamilton, M.P., pitched the first ball with Mayor William Wilson at bat, to open the game which was attended by 600 fans.

Kiwanis Juniors Rout Trenton By 15-1 Score

The Kiwanis Juniors playing outstanding baseball behind the three hit pitching of young Billy Strachan, stomped the Trenton Town squad by a 15-1 score at the Fair Grounds last night. The game was a scheduled fixture of the Belleville District Baseball League.

Strachan, backed up by fine fielding on the part of his mates breezed through to an easy victory setting the opposition down with little difficulty while his team was pounding out eight-hits and taking advantage of the sometimes grievous errors on the part of Trenton. The youngster struck out seven and walked but two.

The Haffey-led squad kicked and threw the ball around eight or more times, the worst of the bobbles being costly. Kiwanis erred but three times, one of the miscues resulting in Trenton's lone run.

Lefty Dafoe went the night inning route for the losers and deserved a better fate. He whiffed five batters and allowed 12 safe free passes.

Practically everything in the baseball calendar was dished up to the small crowd in attendance. Passed balls, wild pitches, hit-by-pitcher, wild throws, errant fielding and the like. The Trenton squad helped mount the two-figure score of the winners.

The teams were all even at one each going into the third. The Juniors scored four in the third off one hit, another in the fourth; three in the fifth and sixth, and four more off a lone clout in the seventh. They added two more for good measure in the 8th like-wise off a lone bingle. Trenton scored its only run in the first when Haffey singled, went to second on an infield out, and when Russ Scales threw wide in third the runner romped home with the team's only marker.

Mouse Bush led the Kiwanis hitters, with a pair, one a double. Scales, Dafoe, Strachan, Hazzard, Bill Strachan and Gilmore got singles. Haffey, J. Scott and Ireland were the clouters for Trenton.

O.A.S.A. Wants Cut on Outside Games Played

(By The Canadian Press)

At Toronto, the Ontario Amateur Softball Association gave notice Wednesday it must give five per cent of the gross gate receipts when any member club plays in Ontario against teams from outside provinces or the United States.

A special bulletin to branch secretaries, over the signature of General Secretary, F. R. Feaver, says the money is used to promote minor-age softball, and clubs not paying will be suspended immediately, it says.

Immediate opposition was expressed in Windsor. Frank Dayus whose Windsor Jets play teams from across the border, said his club "won't pay a dime" so "go ahead and outlaw us."

Two straight victories over New York Giants by his lowly Cincinnati Redlegs have been placated owner P. E. Wrigley. The second successful conquest over the New Yorkers was the Cubs' longest winning streak since they took two straight from Pittsburgh in their season opening series April 20-21.

Monday night in a phone interview, Wrigley said he planned to keep Cubs' manager Charley Grimm, field captain Phil Cavarretta and leading Cub players. Wrigley said he would try to get "all angles" of the slump and then make some remedial moves.

Johnny Mitchell, who played hockey at Guelph here before he refereed in the National Hockey League, has been appointed business manager of the Guelph Royals Lacrosse Senior Community Baseball Association. He succeeds George Brown, who will remain on the executive in an advisory capacity.

From Hamilton comes word that Sir Lancelot Oswald of the National League have signed Bert Gibbs of Hamilton. The hurling pitcher was property credited to the Rochester club of the International League and will join the club when his present school term is finished. He is the son of Bert Gibbs, Sr., a former baseball and football star.

At Sydney, N.S., the Cape Breton Boxing Commission today approved the May 31 bout between Joe Pyle of New Waterford, N.S., and Pete Caduke of Guelph at Glace Bay. Pyle hopes to start a comeback campaign after being knocked out in three rounds last year by Canadian middleweight champion George Ross of West Bay, N.S.

At St. Louis, Scotland's International soccer team defeated a St. Louis all-star squad 6-0 Wednesday night in an exhibition game before 9,062 fans. It was first United States appearance for the Scots in their North American tour.

At Philadelphia, Belfast Celtics chalked up the third victory of their North American tour Wednesday night with a 6-4 triumph over an all-star Philadelphia soccer team.

Cleveland Barons announced Wednesday night they are willing to consider any one of their players in a trade or sale at the National League Hockey meeting in Montreal next week. The American League club now is under new ownership, with Jim G. Hendy as general manager.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

Me was eating her grapefruit diet, saying to pop, It's tasting that does it, William.

Maybe you're rite, my dear, pop said. What he said, and ma said. Pute added weight on women. There's an article in this month's Home and Table Magazine by Mrs. Irma Ann Jellaby, and she awt to know, ma said.

Is she very heavy? pop said, and ma said, She's a famous food and calories expert. She claims that women cant be really conscientious about their cooking without constantly tasting as they go along, and one little taste after another adds up into a complete unwelcome meal, and everybody knows what a daily eater meal it's taken in well meaning dribs and drabs or whether it's set down to bodily. In other words we silently sacrifice our figures so the rest of the family can indulge and at least meel in safety. We're proverbial martyrs leeding our figures to slawter, ma said.

It's a tuff life, but it has its rewards, pop said. I envy you, my dear, a culinary queen moving gracefully about he aromatic domains, daintily sipping the most deliciously delicate flavors ever devised by mortal woman, like a butterfly smacking its little golden lips in celestical injoyment as it flits from flower to flower, he said, and ma said, Thanks for the poetic compliment, I'm sure, but I'd prefer a more realistic approach to the problem. If you don't mind. Now for incrednonds more meels it recommends more meels it recommends, where all the tasting is done outside the family, so what would you say to dining up on the Avenue this evening, William? she said.

I'd say it's a woman's world, pop said.

Meening yes

Hockey Player Claims He Threw Bottle From Car

Toronto, May 26 — (CP)—Ernie Dickens, Chicago Black Hawks hockey player, said in court Wednesday he threw a bottle of liquor out of a car in a car in which he was riding after it was involved in a collision between Sudbury and North Bay.

Hetestified he did so because he realized Dufflet in the car would add to the trouble of its occupants.

Gus Bodnar, a fellow hockey player, was driving the car, owned by Ernest Chamandy of Toronto. Bodnar claimed he was trying to pass a car driven by Harold Dufflet when it cut sharply across the road for a left turn and he collided with it.

Chamandy is suing Dufflet for $500 damages in front of the car. Occupants of the Chamandy car denied they had been drinking. The liquor had been "left over from a party."

Judge Ian Macdonell said he would investigate the reasons for the extent of the rear-end hill when only the front of the Chamandy car was damaged.

DOCILE DOG SOUGHT

Macclesfield, England, (CP)—The Adelphi Guild theatre wants a dog for its next play. "Any mongrel will do," an official said "provided it does not want to tear around the auditorium biting legs."

Two Americans Left in Running For British Open

Portmarnock, Ireland, May 26 (AP)— Willie Turnesa, is abandoning his mother-in-law's purse for the latter reveled at the British Amateur golf tournament.

The blade was a trusty one while it was hot, helping the wee fellow from Elmsford, N.Y., to the British crown in 1947 and the United States amateur title last year.

But when it became just another slab of cold steel Wednesday Willie decided he's better ditch it.

"Tell mom I'm sorry," the ironmaster said in switching to an aluminum job.

Turnesa said he'd be using the aluminum blade when he teed off in the fourth round today against R.D.B. Walker, a Scotsman who has won two matches by a single hole.

Turnesa is the Toledo, Ohio, strong boy, defending champion Frank Stranahan, the only Americans left in the tournament being played over the windswept Portmarnock links by a Irish Sea.

Stranahan's first foe today is G. A. Loveday of England. Two rounds are on schedule today and tomorrow.

Playing in a chill rain Wednesday, Turnesa defeated Vincent Herlihy, a bull-shouldered Irishman 3 and 2. He putted well on occasions but missed a couple of short assignments.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By DON KULCHITSKY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lethbridge, Alta., May 26 (CP) — The baseball season is in full swing, football is getting its share of publicity as world series across the country but Don (Lethbridge Herald) Pilling still is hot on the trail of hockey . . . to those on the look-out for players the game lives 12 months a year.

All of which brings us to the fact that Lethbridge Maple Leafs have officially dropped out of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League and Don says that other clubs in the league will get out the pen and ink and make a bee-line for Lethbridge in an endeavor to sign some of the 1948-49 Leaf stars.

Let the Mane Take Over

Don says that Johnny Dutchak, the former Saskatoon rearguard with Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Senior League was in town recently talking to Ken Simpson, Leafs' promising winger, about heading for Valleyfield this fall.

Don wouldn't be a bit surprised if Frank Currie, Edmonton Flyers' boss, also wanted to talk business with Simpson, Jack Stewart and Bill Doorman. Calgary is thought to be interested in the latter two also.

Don says that Roy Kenniver will probably, at least, possibly to Quebec Aces, while burly Jack Evans and Hamby Stanley Maxwell will turn professional with the New York Ranger organization. Evans is practicing a stick but Maxwell may possibly wind up performing for some club in the Quebec League.

What the rest of the players will do is anybody's guess, says Don, but the telephone and telegraph wires will be overworked until the housecleaning job has been completed.

Eight Pros. Face Elimination in P.G.A. Tourney

Richmond, Va., May 26 (AP)— Eight top-flight professionals faced probable elimination today as the United States professional Golfers' Association tournament became a wild scramble to avoid George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, in the battle for medalist honors.

Today's test over the 6,677-yard Hermitage Country Club layout is the second 18 holes round of 36 holes of medal play. It will narrow the field of 164 down to 64 for the start of match competition Friday.

Schaiter, the 36-year-old boss of the travelling pros, was supreme Wednesday as he toured the wind-swept course in a five-under par 66.

Only big-wigs who were in danger of being eliminated today were Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., Denny Shute, of Akron Ohio; and Tommy Penna, of Cincinnati with 75s; Craig Wood of New York; Chick Harbert of Detroit, Vic Ghezzi of Englewood, N.J.; and Horton Smith of Detroit with 76s, and Lawson Little of Mintery, Calif., 77. Shute and Ghezzi are former P.G.A. champions.

A stroke behind Schneiter was surprising Jack Burke, Langley Field, Va., professional, whose only claim to golfing fame is that he won the National Service Men's championship in 1943.

Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., and Howard Schmidt an unknown from Chino, Calif., started today's round deadlocked for third place with 68s.

Bunched with Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, Va., for fifth place with 69s were Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N.C.; Herman Barron of White Plains N.Y.; Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., and Ray W. Hill of Shreveport, La.

Victor Will Get Bridge, Truck And Oil Drums

Shanghai, May 26 (CP)— Chinese driver edged his truck full of oil drums as close to the Garden Bridge over Soochow Creek as he could. A battle between the Communists and Nationalists over the bridge was going on. Bullets whizzed through the air. The truck driver dodged. The bullets were not meant for him. He yawned, nodded. Then he fell asleep. An hour later he still slumbered. The truck went on. Whoever wins will get the bridge—and the truck and oil drums.

BEE HEALTH PLAN

Sports Diary

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

More than 17,000 persons got a first look at the $3,500,000 Canadian National Exhibition sports field May 31. Probably 60 per cent were there due to an honest interest in the Newcastle-Ontario all-stars soccer team match but others gave the joint a casual going over with an eye to a big day in autumn — Grey Cup day.

The one per cent vanoted to know:

(A) Does the C.N.E. sports field — that's the official name although some call it the municipal stadium, the exhibition stadium and lend itself to a 40,000-crowd for the east-west classic?

(B) It is the answer to the West's cry for a change in venue from the 30,000 crowd Varsity Stadium?

Before going into the answers it must be pointed out that the stadium is Toronto's west end and within shouting distance of Lake Ontario, seats only 21,000 and is situated on the north end of the field: Cold blasts from the lake on a chilly November afternoon would discourage the most valid football fan but there's lots of space for bleachers on the east, west and south (the south fronts the lake) and a bowl of 40,000 to 50,000 capacity isn't too fantastic.

Not Suited?

Football-wise Tod (Toronto Telegram) Reeve thinks the stadium itself is just dandy. But for rugby he figures it is "too far away" from the playing field.

Tod came up with the statistical information the field is 104 feet from the nearest paying customer. And added it should be moved in about 40 feet.

Ralph (Favorite Telegram) Allen thought one day's work for a crew of reasonably active men could throw up enough temporary bleachers to raise the seating capacity to 40,000.

Allen also thought the playing area could be closer to the field. Could be Remedied

Elwood Hughes, general manager of the C.N.E., pointed out in an interview that it is about 150 feet from the centre of the field to the stands in London's Wembley Stadium and, for a football game in New York's Yankee Stadium "there isn't a seat in the place less than 200 feet from the grandstand."

There is an excellent view from the roof top press box, probably 300 feet up and, somehow, we couldn't help thinking of those Western Canada officials who talked the C.R.U. meetings in Toronto this year into changing its constitution.

RESIDENTS STUNNED

Lindsay, Ont., May 26 (CP) — The 1,200 residents of the Southern Ontario township of Verulam, considered "dry" for 75 years, were discovered they are living in a "wet" district.

Although no liquor has been sold for 75 years, the Liquor Control Board of Ontario ruled that the township is "wet" since no local option vote was ever taken. The Board also ruled that sale of liquor will have to go into effect in the township before residents can vote it legally dry.

The ruling was made Wednesday when Board officials granted Wilfred Peters a dining-room and public-house licence for his lodge near Bobcaygeon, 16 miles northwest of here.

Felt Very Tired, Nervous Until She Used Syntona

Tells How it Built Her Up. Also Relieved Headaches, Indigestion. "Surprised How Much Better I Feel," Says This Woman.

MRS. MARJORIE PERDUE

"After the good results, I got by taking a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Herbal Compound I can highly recommend it to other people," said Mrs. Marjorie Perdue, 363 Simcoe St., London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"A short time ago I was rundown, felt very tired, and my nerves were so on edge, I couldn't get to sleep after going to bed at night. I was subject to dizzy feelings and would often get sick headaches. My complexion was pale, and I had a generally run-down feeling. It also gave me period pains and indigestion.

"Then from the first bottle of Syntona I noticed that my food did not distress me as it used to and my appetite improved. As I continued using it, my nerves got steadier, I slept better, felt more sound, restful and strong. Now I do not feel fatigued as I did before. Headaches and distress do not trouble me, my complexion is vastly improved and I am surprised how better I feel."

Why not give this Pure Herbal Medicine a chance to help you, too? Syntona is used by men and women of all ages with equally good results. It contains no harmful drugs, is pleasant to take and the results are quickly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at SOLAS THE DRUGGIST.

Toronto Man Holds Sweeps Ticket On Derby Favorite

Stands to Win $100,000 If Royal Forest is First

Toronto, May 27 (CP)—Norman Crawford, 38, said today he holds an Irish Hospitals sweepstakes ticket on Royal Forest, 3-1 favorite in the Derby being run at Epsom Downs June 11. The ticket is worth $100,000 if the horse wins.

Gordon Richards, Britain's leading jockey who has never been astride a Derby winner, is riding the horse.

Crawford, a war veteran and father of two, came to Canada from Northern Ireland 13 years ago. He says he has "lots of uns" for the money. Besides the $100,000 first prize, he is eligible to win $40,000 if Royal Forest places second or $20,000 if third.

Crawford used the name "Pby Club" (pronounced for friends' Club) on his ticket picked yesterday in the sweeps draw in Dublin. His ticket was first one remaining in a book of 12 he sold. He kept it because, he said, his wife, "I think this is the lucky one."

Two other Toronto residents reported they share a ticket on Noblest Roman, listed as a non-starter in the Derby, with Mrs. R. P. Gingrich, both of whom will divide the $500 prize for drawing a horse.

STRIKERS KEEP STRANGLEHOLD ON RAIL TRAFFIC

Willing to Ease Squeeze Only on Orders of Western Premiers

Berlin, May 27 (AP)—Maj.-Gen. George P. Hays, Deputy United States Military Governor, said today "we have no intention" of ordering striking Berlin railway workers to operate the city's paralyzed rail lines.

The strikers held tight their stranglehold on the rail traffic in Berlin, announcing they would relax it only on orders from the Western, said Hays in a press conference. The western officials have shown sympathy for the workers' strike against their Russian bosses.

Hays said German officials in West Berlin are being encouraged to find a basis for settlement of the strike, however.

He indicated that the strikers have offered to unload trains, but that authorization of the Russian controlled East Berlin railway is required for that. The management has not replied to the offer, he added.

Strike Big Factor

Said Ernst Scharnowski, chairman of the striking Anti-Communist Union-Independent Labor organization) which called the strike Saturday:

"If the Allies issue a directive we certainly ready to take over Allied lines running solely for West Berlin. But we cannot take the responsibility of handling cars on our own."

Molotov Plan Being Dismissed As a Failure

Washington, May 27 (AP) — The so-called Molotov plan for eastern Europe, proclaimed as Russia's answer to the Marshall plan, is now being dismissed by diplomatic authorities here as a failure.

They base their conclusion on evidence on economic conditions in the Soviet satellite countries. These countries seem to be running into serious difficulties which are being solved only if they are able to get large quantities of goods from the western countries, especially the United States.

Therefore, officials blame the plight of these countries on the fact that, in their opinion, the Molotov plan has not been helpful to the Marshall plan but has operated, in an economic manner, instead of pouring recovery goods into eastern Europe, Russia has been drained to those countries of their resources for its own benefit.

The Molotov plan actually never existed in the form of a precise, well-defined program comparable to the European recovery program. It is the name popularly given the network of trade treaties and economic arrangements which Vyacheslav Molotov, former Soviet Foreign Minister, fostered to tie together Russia and the countries it dominates.

This set of economic ties was broadened originally as a means of making the countries more self sufficient in the matter of standard of living, and keeping them free of the Marshall plan which Russia labelled as an imperialist venture of the United States.

Now there are the reasons behind possible drastic moves by Russia or the satellite countries to try to ease the situation.

Czech exiles in Washington say they have received word from Prague that the Communist government, under Moscow direction, plans to put a number of non-Communists into official positions so try to make the whole regime more acceptable to the United States and other western countries.

This purpose of such a window dressing manoeuvre could be to interest this and other non-Communist countries in relaxing controls on shipments to Czechoslovakia and possibly giving other assistance.

RITA MARRIED TO ALY KHAN IN SIMPLE CEREMONY

Communist Mayor Performed the Rites

Vallauris, France, May 27 (AP) —Radiant Rita Hayworth of the movies today became the Princess bride of Aly Khan in a ceremony performed by this town's Communist Mayor. It was a townhall ceremony, spangled with some of Hollywood's tinsel and the riches of the east.

The ceremony climaxed a 10-month public romance called it a "road-show romance" — for Rita, 31, and the 32-year-old heir to millions. She is a Roman Catholic; he is a Moslem.

Cheered by 500 villagers, the couple drove slowly away in a gray convertible. A cavalcade followed with lobsters and champagne awaited at the Chateau De L'Horizon—the "prince's" home, a where he wanted to hold the wedding. (The French government said no).

Were Picture Hat

Rita, who used to be Margarita Cansino of Brooklyn, N.Y., wore a big picture hat of blue and a blue, high-necked gown that came down to the calves of the legs that would make her famous in the movies.

Aly Khan, forsaking his sports plaids for a dark blue striped trousers, a double-breasted black jacket, white shirt and tie.

The simple civil ceremony in the couple answered "oui" to questions all over only eight minutes after the couple arrived. Then Aly kissed Margarita and Aly by a back door.

Then a dazzling ring ceremony; they put on their rings after Deri on pronounced them man and wife. Then Deri signed the wedding certificate, and emerged into shower of rice.

Third For Bride

This was the third marriage for Rita and the second for the Prince. Aly is the 2nd son and heir-ship of the Imaili sect of Moslems, now headed by his father, Aga Khan. The first wife, the wife, the Begum, witnessed the ceremony and signed a "golden book" made up by the village for the occasion.

Rita will be regarded as a Princess, at least by her fans and the hundreds who attended the wedding.

Crest to be Changed Maple Leaf Taken From Beaver's Mouth

Toronto, May 27 — (CP)—The controversial crest of the Toronto Board of Education is to be changed, it was decided today by a vote with a maple leaf in his mouth, by a majority of 11 to 7 after a final approval two weeks ago.

Several trustees objected, maintaining that the beaver's an around eating maple leaves. When the vote was taken at the meeting Mrs. Carter, was questioned at Thursday night's meeting, and said that although the "the beaver is not eating the maple leaf; it is just holding it in his mouth."

The leaf will be removed.

Drugs to Play Greater Part in Cures For Mental Illnesses Than Talk

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

Montreal, May 27 (CP) — A new era for mental illness is dawning more on drugs than on talk for cures, was forecast to the American Psychiatric Association Friday.

This report was made by Dr. William B. Terhune, New Canaan, Conn., at a luncheon given by Dr. Devereux Schools of Berlin, Pa.

He said Freud's concepts of psychiatry have practically retraced mental illness to mental conflicts. Talk—especially by the slick person—did miracles in cures.

But now, said Dr. Terhune, we must link mental illness with bodily illness. Three-fifths of mental disorders, he declared, now are accepted as basically organic. That is, physical agents in the body either cause or accompany the mental troubles.

Basically causes of psychiatric disorders now accepted, he said, are infections, intoxications, injuries, blood circulation disturbances, convulsive troubles, growth, nutrition and hormones.

Many disorders are caused, he added, by fear, pain, hunger and thirst. Fear is the cause of lack of order, and the parts and what is wrong with them are known to quite an extent.

In some mental troubles blood thickening, or sludges, and slows other changes.

Dr. Terhune said it is now recognized that childhood mental disorders are fundamentally due to the same factors found with emotional disturbances.

The field, he said, is only beginning and some are still subjects of opinion rather than fact. Still, he said, may help mental retardation. Iodine is good sometimes in senility, vitamin E possibly helps the depressions in the menopause of life women, and histamine relieves anxiety.

He said the talk-treatments will continue to be important in mental illness because there is a shortage of psychiatrists to treat all the other causes.

Battle Ends in Shanghai As Last Nationalist Defenders Surrender

Shanghai, May 27 (AP)— The red blanket of Communism quietly enveloped all of Shanghai today.

The gunfire ceased. The last Nationalist holdouts surrendered. Veteran troops of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist army retired. Red rule into the northern part of the world's fourth largest city.

The Communist occupation of the congested city came after it began. Red political officers began taking over the government of the greatest Asian commercial center in its 5,000,000 people.

The Nationalist garrison of Woosung fortress folded up. The government evacuation fleet pulled out, down the Yangtze and into the East China Sea.

The ships left behind the Nationalist troops who had fought to make the 10-mile northward march down the Whangpoo River escape corridor from Shanghai to Woosung. How many only the Reds will know after they round them up.

The sharp—but minor—fighting for Shanghai really was over Thursday night. But not until today, when all Nationalist rearguards who made the final, mad stand in the heart of the city had fled in the winds of a typhoon.

For two days they had held the bridges across Soochow Creek which flows through downtown Shanghai and into the Whangpoo at the north end of the famous Bund. And they held the big, modern buildings that commanded the bridge approaches.

Today, with the Reds hold the bridges, to protect the Shanghai rearguard withdrawal to Woosung.

Holed up in the buildings, they stayed at their guns long after the Reds had crossed up-stream, behind them from behind and moved through the northern part of the city after the retreating garrison.

It was the forces trapped in the buildings with them who finally persuaded the last of them to give up.

Communist troops came and got them. Marching out of the thoroughfares of suddenly freed civilians— Chinese and foreign—burst out to cheer. They had been commanded for 90 dangerous hours.

The fall of Shanghai climaxed a campaign in the eastern coastal provinces that made a battleground out of such thoroughfares as the Hwai and Whangpoo Road was not known. Some sources put the civilian casualties at more than 200—practically all Chinese. Chinese newspapers put the toll at "hundreds of thousands" most of them Nationalist soldiers.

Four Per Cent of Canadian Labor Force is Unemployed Statistics Bureau Reports

Ottawa, May 27 (CP)—Unemployment — and employment — both increased in Canada during the last year.

Some 199,000 persons—slightly more than four per cent of the Dominion's total labor force were out of work in March, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday. That was an increase from the 154,000 persons unemployed in February, 1948, when slightly more than three per cent of the labor force was unemployed.

The labor force—those working and those looking for work—increased from 4,800,000 in February last year to 4,899,000 in March this year.

During the same period, the number of persons with jobs rose from 4,669,000 to 4,700,000. The number of women working fell from 982,000 to 977,000.

The Bureau said it based its figures on a report of "scientifically-selected sample of the civilian population of Canada." It included those over 14.

Highest percentage of unemployment was in the Maritimes where 3.8 per cent of the labor force was looking for jobs, followed by British Columbia with 3.4 per cent. Percentages for other areas: Quebec 4.9, Ontario 3.3 and the Prairie Provinces 3.2.

The Bureau made its survey in March. Unemployment is at its peak because of the seasonal factor in construction, agriculture and forestry. The 156,000 persons out of work in February, 1948, included 42,000 in June and 67,000 by September. Unemployment rose to 106,000 in November.

It attributed a falling-off in forestry workers—from 137,000 last November to 112,000 in March—to adverse March weather on the west coast.

Manufacturing was the biggest year-round employer, the Bureau reported, with 1,260,000 people employed in February, 1948, and March compared with 1,236,000 in February 1948.

Agricultural employment was 958,000 compared with 960,000.

The total unemployment figure compared with 141,000 out of work in December and 212,000 unemployed in February, 1948.

Prosperity of Agriculture Across World is Only Way To World Peace--Boyd-Orr

Ottawa, May 27 — (CP) — A world - famed nutritionist said Thursday that world prosperity for agriculture is the only way to get world peace. He added that a strong international farm organization is needed to stop the spread of communism.

Lord Boyd - Orr, Director General of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, said communism's attraction in China was a "revolt against poverty."

He warned that prices of farm products were dropping, and so were prices of manufactured products.

"We can't go back to another world crisis, we must not," he said at a luncheon given by the federal government to more than 100 delegates to the annual conference of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers which opens at Guelph, Ont., May 30.

The organizer of the F. A. O., Lord Boyd-Orr said there would be no halt to the spread of communism if there was not bolder action to bring about world security and on behalf of hungry people.

He advocated an international food policy to stabilize prices, guarantee markets to prevent accumulation of huge surpluses with no place to sell them and to maintain stocks of food in case of bad harvests.

Only this, he said, would stop communism. Asiatics did not know the difference between communism, democracy or fascism — but they knew the meaning of hunger.

A strong international farm organization could help stabilize international prices and give farm producers the protection that industry now had. National stabilization policies could not be successful without an international policy.

Farmers were not getting adequate returns for their labor and had to be protected against possible declining markets.

MONTREAL HERALD PRICE RAISED TO 5 CENTS

Montreal, May 27 (CP)— The Montreal Herald which today had used Monday it will increase its price from four to five cents a copy "to meet constantly rising costs."

The Herald, an evening paper owned by the Lafond family, is the sixth of Montreal's seven daily newspapers to increase its price to five cents. The seventh, a French-language morning paper, Montreal Matin, also a tabloid, sells for three cents.

TWO RUN AMOK IN RESTAURANT

Toronto, May 27 (CP)— Two men ran amok with a large knife after they ran amok in a downtown Chinese restaurant, smashed showcases and assaulted two Chinese waiters. Police said the men "behaved strangely" when they were refused service because the waiter considered them intoxicated.

After crashing the showcases with a coat rack the men attempted to leave the restaurant. Harry Wong, a waiter, barred their way.

BRITAIN REFUSES TO SEND EISLER BACK TO STATES

Court Rejects Demand Red be Extradited

London, May 27 (AP)—Britain today refused to send Gerhart Eisler back to the United States to serve out two prison sentences he drew during investigation of his Communist activities there.

Bow Street Magistrate's Court rejected the United States demand that Eisler be extradited. That left Eisler—called No. 1 Communist agent in the United States by a congressional committee— free to go on to the Russian zone of Germany.

The squat, mild-appearing little man, about whom swirled an international tempest, heard the Ministry's decision. He did not obviously shook hands with the policeman who had guarded him. But whether or not he dismissed as he was a free man, he broke into jubilant smile.

"I wasn't worried," he said. "I feel fine.

He was going to Germany as quickly as possible. I am very glad the British government have been defeated and I hope they will be defeated many times more."

Eisler has been offered a professorship in the University of Leipzig, in the Soviet zone of Germany.

After almost two hours of argument in Bow Street Court—at which only British subjects can deal with extradition cases—Magistrate Sir Lionel Leveson ruled that the American demand. He said the United States court had found the fugitive Communist had been convicted of an extraditable offense.

Called Political Refugee

The United States had contended that Eisler's conviction of fellowship and passport information was tantamount to perjury, which was extraditable offense in British law. Eisler's counsel declared he was a political refugee, and not extraditable. The court held that Eisler's offense was not the same as perjury, and therefore he could be extradited for the offense he had committed.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, Attorney General, Sir Laurence said the whole case hinged on perjury.

"Is what he was convicted of in America the equivalent to the crime in both America and here?"

"In my opinion," the Magistrate said, "the Attorney General that in no circumstances whatsoever has Eisler committed perjury. Mr. Eisler was convicted in America he brought under the British head of perjury in this country."

The judge ordered Eisler freed. The United States Government admitted the offence for which he was convicted.

"The question is whether he was convicted of an offence in the United States which can be considered both in the United States here also," he said.

"I should have thought the answer is obviously not."

Shows Satisfaction

Eisler sat stolidly in the prisoner's box while the judge gave his verdict. He showed no emotion when he was told by one of the police who had guarded him.

Eisler's counsel said the case had agreed the main issue in the case was the single point of law whether perjury is the same as summation.

Sir Valentine Holmes, representing the United States embassy, contended the crime was the same as perjury.

D. N. Pritt, left winger member of parliament leading Eisler's defence, reiterated that Eisler is a political refugee on a form was 100 miles from perjury."

Pritt demanded that the United States Government pay the full costs of the action "because I have been put to enormous trouble seted in bad faith."

Four TB Patients Who Left Hospital Endangered Health Says Doctor

Toronto, May 27 — (CP)—Four tuberculosis patients who walked out of the Toronto Hospital endangered their health and possibly the health of others, Dr. C. A. Laidlaw, superintendent of the Hospital for Tuberculosis said today.

Three of the four patients returned Thursday night. Gourith, a woman, who is still missing, cannot be permitted to return to the hospital, he said.

"We have a waiting list of over 60 and one of this number will have her bed," he explained.

Dr. Wicks said the incident has been reported to Ontario and Toronto medical officers and the four patients will be asked to be placed in isolation in an Ontario hospital.

The four patients walked out on the complaint that there had been no bed in the hospital for a month. They admitted being persuaded to leave by the other woman "in a moment of hysteria."

Dr. Wicks said the best had been turned off during the week-end spell so a boiler could be repaired. It was turned on again shortly after the three patients returned.

S.I.U. Threatens To Act Against British Shipping

Dockers' Boycott in U.K. May Result in Retaliation

(By The Canadian Press)

Retaliatory action against British shipping as a result of dockers' boycott of strike-bound Canadian ships in the United Kingdom was threatened by a Canadian union official today as the dockers' strike was extended.

Hal C. Banks, Canadian director of the Seafarers' International Union, (A.F.L.) announced in Montreal that he had received a telegram asking Prime Minister Attlee to use his office to have the British boycott called off.

If the dockers' boycott is upheld strike, the union official said, "we see no alternative but to ask for the support of the International Longshoremen's Union. This would result in complete dislocation of British ships arriving on this continent."

1,000 Step Work

In Liverpool 1,000 dockers stopped work in sympathy with striking port workers in the British Columbia and United States strike bound ships. The port workers are supporting the six-day Canadian seamen's strike. Canadian ship owners March 31.

The strike of the Canadian C.S.U. officials learned that ship owners had signed with the strongly rightist S.I.U.

Other recent developments in the dispute which affects more than 30 Canadian freighters around the world include a statement by Cabinet Minister Gardiner that the future of the Dominion's 4,000 ships in the ports is to be decided by the Canadian Government, the C.S.U. and S.I.U. for control of deep-sea jobs.

Collection of Bosses

In isolated parts of the province, ballot boxes will have to be picked up in the dead darkness in and out of inlets along the coast and taken to the central collecting agency.

It is possible that in St. Barbe North some 2,500 voters—voting will not be held until tomorrow or Monday—will be in darkness by Sept. 20th, district has been deferred to July 25 for more favourable weather conditions. Balloting will elect the 28th member to the provincial house.

The campaign continued right up to the last gasp Thursday night. Premier Joseph R. Smallwood ended a 200-speech circuit of the island at nearby Lapoint.

Harry Mews, Progressive Conservative leader, ended his campaign with a speech at a rally in St. John's.

Mr. Smallwood is seeking election in Bonavista North, the 21st district, which has remained out of the national convention in 1946.

The wiry, 49-year-old former lumberjack is the province that brought about confederation with Canada two months ago.

FIRST PROVINCIAL GOVT. BEING ELECTED IN NFLD.

It May be Week Hence Before Winner Can be Declared

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. John's, Nfld., May 27 (CP)—

Canada's new province chooses its first government today from a full slate of Liberal and Progressive Conservative candidates.

Some 176,000 eligible voters have been invited to pick from 84 candidates—27 Liberals, 27 Progressive Conservatives and two independents.

Polls will open at 9 a.m. (Newfoundland's first provincial legislature. Polls opened at 8 a.m. (Newfoundland time) and will close at 8 p.m. (8 p.m. Newfoundland time). Counting of votes will begin at 4 p.m. (4:30 p.m. Newfoundland time).

Election results are not expected until 10:30 p.m., (9 p.m. EDT) and could be delayed somewhat if the count is anticipated by late Saturday. It may be early next week before a winner can be declared. Reason for the delay is that parts of St. John's will be polled under provisions of the 1913 election act by which voting is regulated. District returning officers must wait until the last ballot boxes are collected from their particular areas before beginning counting.

TRENTON MAN HURT IN ACCIDENT

Jack Beavis, 33, St. James Hotel, Trenton, is in Belleville General Hospital with a fractured leg and abrasions as result of a motor accident which occurred on Sidney Street, Trenton, early this morning.

Trenton police stated the investigation of the accident had not been completed but reported two cars had been involved. Also four other persons were injured, but only Beavis suffered injuries sufficient to warrant admission to hospital.

57 Cases Listed In City Court

A total of 57 court cases were listed on the docket for city magistrate's court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning, the heavy docket being the result of no court being held on Tuesday.

Cases against offenders of city traffic by-laws predominated with most such cases being settled out of court with fines and costs paid.

There were 16 "Stop" street offenders, while two motorists pleaded guilty out of court to careless driving. Two drunk driving charges were laid, Saturday evening, had his case enlarged for one week. Scruby drove his car into a hydro pole at Lingham Road intersection and officers who investigated the accident stated he was intoxicated.

An employee of the Northern Electric Company, pleaded not guilty to the theft of a radio and had his case enlarged until June 3rd, while Harold Crawford, charged on several counts of forgery, was again remanded for trial one week from today.

Given Usual Time

At least half a dozen drunks pleaded guilty and were given the usual ten days in county jail, while two vagrants, Pius Fortune and Thomas Thompson, both address, apprehended for panhandling on Front Street, were sentenced to one day in jail with the understanding they "get out of town."

A local resident, Joseph Reeves, charged with permitting a dog to run at large, pleaded that the dog belonged to his son, who was in Kingston. He lodged around the suggestion by the magistrate that he was the "harbors" of a dog and therefore came under the meaning of the by-law. The case was enlarged until Tuesday to permit the accused to get counsel.

Navy League To Hold Tag Day

The Navy League of Canada which sponsors the Belleville Sea Cadet Corps, will hold its Tag Day in the city on Saturday, when a generous contribution on the part of city and district residents will be appreciated. Convener of the Tag Day effort is Ross Hubbs, chairman of the local Sea Cadet Corps.

Proceeds of the tag day will be used to assist in financing the work which the Navy League is doing among the youth of the province.

The Navy League points out that Sea Cadet training offers great scope for the development of a boy's character, but its greatest asset of all, they claim is that through it a boy may find the true meaning of comradeship and service.

Another activity of the Navy League is the operation of clubs and hostels on the coasts for Navy and Merchant Navy personnel.

ROBBERY FRUSTRATED

Windsor, May 27 (CP) — An attempted armed robbery was frustrated Thursday night when the intended victim, William Parker of Detroit, fought the thugs off with a set of car keys.

Mr. Parker told police he had just come out of a house he entered his car when two men jumped in. One drew a revolver and ordered him to drive away, he said.

Instead of complying with the request, Mr. Parke snatched the keys from the ignition and struck out at the armed man. Both men then leaped from the car and ran.

New Bandmaster Officially Greeted At First Practice

On Wednesday evening the members of the Belleville Municipal Band along with a few invited guests gathered together in the Belleville Armouries Band Stand to welcome the new bandmaster to that organization, Mr. Ken Robbins who was taking over the leadership of the band for the first time since his arrival in the city a short time ago.

After a short preliminary practice under the bat... of Reg. Hinchey, well-known band-leader, composer and arranger, Mr. Harry Moorman, general manager of the band introduced Mr. Alf Duffy who welcomed Mr. Robbins on behalf of the Mayor who was unable to attend. Mr. George Brown also made a very brief welcoming from a musical family, his father also being a conductor in the 21st Battalion in Earlscourt.

When the Royal Canadian Air Force Overseas Band toured Western Europe and England during the war, Ted Teal, as he is known to all his musical associates, was chosen bandleader of this distinguished band. During his directorship this Land played command performances before both Denmark and England. They also played in the principal European theatres in the Low Countries, Holland and France before disbanding in 1945.

Mr. Robbins has written over one hundred and fifty published arrangements of the greatest performers on the euphonium in the world today, and has made recordings on this instrument for the R.C.A. Victor Company.

Ted is married to a Scotch girl who is accompanying him to Canada after his return here upon the cessation of hostilities. Their only son child, formerly of Hamilton, he was transferred here by his employers of the Bell Telephone Company with whom he holds the position of station installer.

Pledges Co-operation

After receiving the congratulations of all present the new bandleader was officially handed the baton by Mr. Moorman. In his few opening remarks to the members of the band he pledged his full co-operation to the betterment of the entire organization and gave all his assurance that no effort was too great on his part to make the Belleville Municipal Band one of the finest of its kind in Ontario—and all Canada. Through a unified co-ordination and wholehearted co-operation on the part of each member in the band in relation to each other and their leader to be most successful. A promise to be most successful.

Following the short rehearsal under the new bandleader's direction the entire band and its guests enjoyed the Band Social having a sociable evening during which refreshments were served.

Life Evolution Subject of Talk At Y's Men's Club

Squadron Leader Frank "Nik" Nichols was guest speaker at the regular Y's Men's Club meeting Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A., when he delivered an interesting address on the subject "Evolution of Life". The speaker went back four thousand million years, when the world was young and the earth was formed. This time was estimated with reasonable accuracy at the present day by calculations made possible through observation by the radio-active elemental changes in the metal uranium, and its transmutation to lead.

In order to have his audience visualize the time element, the speaker set a time scale of one second of our time being equal to two hundred and fifty years on the time scale. This would mean that the first life on the earth was formed 4 years ago, when first crust of land, a rim of dessert sand, was thrown up. Coal was not extended until 21 months ago, when the land was swept again and heaved into the continents which were roughly as we know them today. Man, as we know him, the first evidence of life appeared in the Cro-Magnon caves between, minute worms and tiny crustaceans.

Mastodon Group Appears

Then the stage was carried on until about nine days ago, when the reptiles and dinosaurs disappeared from the scene, and continued to live until 24 hours ago, when the mastodon and what is known as the Mastodon group, which died out about 8 hours ago, and the elephant, rhino and deer as we know them came into being. Man, as we know him, only 10 minutes ago, when man first evolved, roughly 500,000 years ago in the city of Java. But it was only one minute ago that man assumed his rational appearance and being, by which we recognize, probably about 15,000 years ago.

Squadron Leader Nichols' address was followed by a discussion period.

Directors Pledge Support to 'Get Out Vote' Drive

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce at its meeting Thursday evening pledged wholehearted support to the decision of the Chamber's Executive Committee of the chamber to launch a campaign of the "Get Out Vote" campaign in the forthcoming Federal election.

The decision was approved to make a general concerted effort to have Belleville and district have a record vote on election day.

The campaign will get underway immediately following the completion of plans and arrangements.

New Highway Signs

Efforts of the Chamber of Commerce in having two new Belleville highway signs erected were successful and the signs have been erected. This was done mainly through the appearance of a delegation before a meeting of the Minister of Highways.

It was felt, however, that there is a lot of room for signs directing tourists to Belleville, and the Board of directors will make application so the signs may be erected early this season.

Pigeon Nuisance

In answer to many complaints regarding the pigeon nuisance in the city, the chamber investigated the cost and means of reducing the pigeon population. The findings were that in 1948 the city council passed a by-law to the effect that pigeons belonging to private owners, the city would empower the police to shoot the pigeons which were considered a nuisance to property owners.

400 Pullets Smother Selves

Chilly nights can prove a hazard to the farmer's poultry as well as to his garden and fields of tomatoes.

Recently Clarence Brummell, Cherry Valley, shut a flock of three-months-old pullets in a building after they had been on range all day. As is the habit with chickens when they are cold they crowded together so tightly that the next morning 400 of pullets were found smothered to death.

We also have a complete line of Watches when they are sold they crowded together so tightly that the next morning 400 of pullets were found smothered to death.

G. Lum, Brothers Open Star Cafe

George Lum, personable Chinese restaurateur believes in stars.

Twenty years ago George arrived in Picton after a brief sojourn in Belleville with the Perfect Cafe, selected a place of business, started operations and erected a sign topped with a large star.

The new place of business was known as the "Star Cafe and Service".

During the next 20 years, a star was a star to George Lum for Mr. Lum. He prospered, his business grew, and he became one of the most popular citizens of Picton known.

But 20 years separation from a wife and three children in far-off China got George thinking. He wanted to see them, and he soon made a quick decision.

With a brother Sing Lum, George, after disposing of his Picton interests, sailed for China for a three-month visit. The brothers intended, if possible to bring their families back to Canada. Eventually they succeeded and arrived here in March of this year after some exciting experiences.

Purchase Cafe

This week George and Sing Lum, with brother Gim Lum, purchased the former London Lunch restaurant on Front Street and have opened its doors for business.

The restaurant has been completely re-decorated and now wears a modern appearance.

And hanging over the entrance to the well-known sign "Star Cafe" which brought George so much business during his tenure in Picton.

Actually, George Lum's heart is still with his Picton friends. But business opportunities that the town prevented him from resuming operations there. So he chose the place nearest to his Canadian "home town" where he can at least renew acquaintances and maintain old friendships.

In the new place of business here, the brothers will serve the best food obtainable, prepared by expert cooks. Chinese dishes will also be available.

BICYCLE, TRICYCLE STOLEN;

RECOVERED, STOLEN AGAIN

Brantford, May 27 — (CP)—A bicycle and tricycle stolen here within the last week and recovered later, were stolen again Thursday. The bicycle belonged to Phillip Vermeulen, Start House, Eagle Place, and the tricycle was stolen from the porch of the home of Al Ritchie, 246 Murray Street, police said.

Life and Habits of Eskimos Vividly Described to Kiwanis Club by Dr. Bruce Cronk

"The Eskimos are a great people and are close to my heart after making three trips to the Arctic. On the last one I spent about six weeks with the Arctic Eskimos," Dr. Bruce Cronk told the Kiwanis Club of Belleville and Trenton in speaking to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon held at Kiwanis Park on Thursday noon last night. At the conclusion of the meeting the members indulged in a game of bridge and a social hour. There is a movement on foot to hold a golf outing instead of at 6 p.m. and the meeting on Thursday night was in the nature of a trial.

Dr. Bruce who was introduced by his father, Dr. Sap Cronk, and a charter member of the club, stated that Belleville he grew to known the speaker for a long time. Dr. Cronk then went on to introduce his son to the members. In introducing his subject the speaker stated that he was a physician that he might express during the talk. He was not only made to be at variance with accepted theory respecting these peoples. There are about 12,000 Eskimos living in Canada and Greenland. Of the 4,000 in Canada the Eskimos are distributed north of the tree line" said the speaker. "Here there is a considerable distinction between the Eskimos and the Indians, who dwell close by."

Short in Stature

He stated that the Eskimo was short in stature and not brown in color. They are quite white excepting those parts, which are constantly exposed to the weather. They are extremely deep in the chest and not fat as is supposed. The speaker then explained the Eskimos are gypsies because they have no fields and the head of each group is the best hunter and must own a boat. The women play a minor part in the lives of these people, and at meal time the husband eats first and the women clean up and eat what is left. The children are engaging creatures but are spoiled. The little devils until about four years of age are quite obedient, when bad tales place and then they become the terror of the children in the world. They are never reprimanded and perform every bad deed with no matter how cute persons.

Lives to Hunt

"The Eskimo lives to hunt and lives by hunting" said the speaker. "In the summer he uses his boat and kills as rapidly as possible the animals he encounters. These are killed by harpoon, cut up and stored away for food and fuel."

The speaker then stated that he can be imagined the men become pretty rash and even the women become rather rash at times. In September the hunting freezes up and the Eskimo kills about a dozen walrus ahead of him most of which he feeds to the dogs except the King of the North because he knows how to dress." The speaker then stated that the Eskimo sold to these people during the winter of their catch and their trading consists of caribou or polar bear skins and this clothing is made to fit exceptionally well and completely waterproof. "The material part of his dress is his goggles because exposured for 30 minutes to the glaring sun, and reflection, totally blinds," said the speaker. "The goggles are made of bone with a narrow slit in the centre but since the advent of, the white man the Eskimo has been able to purchase colored glasses.

Lead Dog's Life

In speaking of the Eskimos' dogs the speaker stated that they do lead a dog's life. They are hungry, thirsty, miserable, poor in the summer but always remain his best friend. The Eskimo dog is a cross between the fox and the polar bear and the speaker has never refused to eat but the Eskimo knows his whims and attack so well, they are seldom bitten by this creature. It has been known that an Eskimo saved a polar bear from the cold, during winter. Furs are hard to obtain in the winter and it has been known that an Eskimo will stand motionless for hours at a blow hole waiting for a seal to come up for air. "Hunting in the Arctic is a hazardous business" said Dr. Cronk.

How Igloo Constructed

The speaker explained how an igloo was constructed and it was generally constructed by two men ten sleeping together on the snow bed constructed of snow. The fun is to keep them warm. Due to the fresh water ice freezing to the bottom, water is an almost unknown quantity and washing is almost out yet the Eskimo does not get dirty the same as white people do. He stated that the people boil most of their meat, eat some raw and drink tremendous quantities of tea.

"The baby bonus given by the government is received by these people and they use the money to purchase powder and lead and pabium for the children but still many of the children die between the ages of one month and six years and the population of the Eskimos is just about holding its own. For instance the people are a happy lot and they have time for all the finer things. "They like to sing but I have never heard one whistle" said Dr. Cronk. They have jolly square dances and sing many of the old songs brought by the whalers. They play bridge, cribbage and many card games but the latest game is the popular pastime." The speaker declared that the Eskimos have three principal drawbacks, they being climate, starvation and susceptibility to disease. More than 25 per cent have tuberculosis but the natives have developed quite a resistance to the disease because of their close life among the scourge and do not develop it," said Dr. Cronk. He claimed that if they ever have a community it is devastating.

Religious Race

In religion the majority are either Anglican or Catholic and a great deal is being done in the Arctic along the way of life. They have no history and their race is a little confused by the way that the white man has treated them. In character they are an honest people and have their own courts of law and their judges, who are fair and between in the northern white. The speaker then stated that the Kiwanis Clubs across Canada could do a tremendous work in supplying to these fine people food supplements which they need the way in improving the health of these primitive people. The speaker was introduced by Shanker Hall-Logan.

President Norman Edwards presided with Harold Carruthers leading the sing song and Phil Hubbs playing the piano. President's rose for an outstanding job by the speaker presented to Ted Schwab, who in turn gave the rose to Mrs. Pryor, who is in charge of properties. The secretary announced that the Sales and Ad. Executive Club is planning a speaking course in September and that the course would consist of thirty lessons.

Invited To Lindsay

The Club was invited to Lindsay Club function at which members from that city are to be the principal guests. This will be a Ladies' night and it is expected that a number will make the journey north. The function is to be held on June 10th. The members were asked to talk up the Lindsay affair and a motion and band of Tex Beneke will put on at the Quinte Sports Stadium. Also the members were asked to support the junior ball team due to be in the city next week. It has been involved in purchasing new uniforms. Bill Ketcheson and Jos Jose urged the members to join the Canadian Legion campaign to "Get out and vote" on the forthcoming Federal election. "This is the only way that we can preserve our democracy," said Mr. Jose.

Left Child in Car, Father is Fined

It was rather an expensive round of beers for Ernest Dafoe, South George Street, who several days ago visited a local beverage room for several hours leaving his three-year-old son in the car in his parked truck.

Provincial police appeared in city magistrate's court charged with leaving a child unattended and Magistrate Ketcheson fined him $25 and costs or 10 days in jail.

"If I had the power to prohibit you from going into a beverage room, I would do so," stated Magistrate C. Y. Ketcheson in passing sentence on the accused. "That would be a much greater punishment for you than a fine."

Inspector J. Noyes of the local provincial department stated Dafoe's son had been left locked in the car for two hours in the parked truck. When patrol officers found the boy he was crying bitterly and at being left alone in the dark and was becoming hysterical.

Turnesa Putts Way Into Final For British Crown

Portmarnock, Ireland, May 27. (AP)—Jim Turnesa, 32-year-old United States amateur golf king, today joined his brother Joe in the final of the British Amateur championship by defeating Ernest Wilkinson of Britain, one up.

Turnesa barely squeaked through his morning quarter-finals match when he turned back Mick Power of County Cork, Ireland, two up at the finish.

Turnesa won the British crown in 1947, and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., turned the trick last year. Stranahan was defeated in today's quarter-finals, 4 and 3, by Sam McCready, London Irishman.

The defending champion who also is from Toledo, Canadian title finished the first nine two down to the former R.A.F. pilot and then squared the match.

A cold wind which caused many of his foes to shiver, held into the deep rough contributed heavily to the scoring being fairly normal. He took 40 strokes—three over par—going out.

Willie Turnesa, the United States amateur champion, became the only American to reach the semi-finals as he defeated Mick Power of Ireland on the 19th hole.

The little star from Elmsford, N.Y., held a one-up lead at the turn but Power caught him on the way back and forced the struggle into overtime.

ENGINEER TELLS OF CONVERSATION WITH NURSE

Said She Was Going to Keep Her Mouth Shut About Affair

Windsor, Ont., May 27 —(CP) —An unidentified engineer today said one of the Metropolitan Hospital nurses told him she was "going to keep her little mouth shut" about Horace Atkin, the hospital's business superintendent.

Mr. Atkin, who resigned pending outcome of the Ontario Royal Commission probe of hospital affairs, has been charged by hospital nurses with trying to date them.

Miss E. in her testimony, said Mr. Atkin "More or less" dated several times and she refused. She said he tried to get her to go to Detroit, Windsor, a cottage and on another occasion go for a motor trip.

Mr. A said he met the nurse in the dispensary of the hospital about May 1.

He asked her what was going to come of investigation," he said.

Toronto Family Evicted by 'Mistake'

Toronto, May 27, (CP)—Richard Drinkwater, 25, unemployed father of three small children, was evicted by bailiffs Thursday from his home in the suburban Weston district, mistaken eviction. As a result of the evic-tion, Mrs. Drinkwater has been ill for several months was taken to the hospital.

Trouble from the bailiff's office dumped the furniture from the Drinkwater home. Mrs. Drinkwater said they used a garage for storage of furniture.

Three hours later the County Sheriff's office called the family back in their home and said a mistake had been made. The family had turned on the water to the house.

Drinkwater admitted he had received eviction notice but added he thought his landlord had been told him they would straighten the matter out.

Salesman Fined For Speeding

Found guilty of driving at 48 miles per hour on North Front Street, Mr. Orr Shunk, Peterborough salesman, was fined a fine of $10 and $8 costs when he appeared today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court.

"I have been driving thousands of miles every year for 25 years and never before have been charged with speeding" stated the defendant as he said he would not have been driving over 35 miles per hour within the city limits.

"There is always a first time," commented the magistrate as he assessed the fine.

Constable Harold Reid told the court that he had clocked the accused on North Front Street at 45 miles per hour but had not stopped him until some distance the other side of the city limits because of traffic conditions.

Labor Council Urges Support Seamen's Strike

Belleville and District Allied Labor Council at their regular meeting last night went on record to send Percy Bengough of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada wires supporting the strike of the Canadian Seamen's Union in its present struggle. Following the telegram was sent by President Thos. Reed.

It was authorized to protest to you attempt of A.F. of L. executive to break seamen's strike and Labor Congress. Strongly urge executive to support seamen. Eight of Canadian workers and further urge continued support of C.S.U.

Messrs. Bill Sligh and Ernie Nelson were chosen to attend the various offices of trustees for the balance of the year. The executive now consists of Thos. Reed, president; E. Rees; vice president, secretary, Garnet Spencer; treasurer, Geo. Barrett and the two trustees mentioned above.

To Apply for Consultation

Intention of applying for consultation in the appointment of labor representatives on the Board of Referees of the Unemployment Insurance Commission was given. It was pointed out that the present labor representatives were appointed without reference the Allied Labor councils. This was objected to as the strong body that it now is in representing the majority of labor organizations in this area, and that in view of the position of the Belleville Council the position on the board of referees should be subject to consultation and re-port by the council.

Challenge Lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, Shop and Enginemen were reodmitted to membership in the council and their delegates will be A. C. Cole and J. Lundberg.

Since the city council had ignored several written requests from the Allied Labor council for information, it was decided that a delegation would appear at the next city council meeting asking for the answers they could not get by mail.

Two-Year Test Of Church Tower To Support Spire

Bangor, Wales, May 27 (CP) — Bangor Cathedral is to have a slender, copper-covered spire on its 120-foot tower, financed by a $30,000 ($120,000) bequest from a Carnarvon man.

The spire, and four additional stone turrets, will be an extra $60,000 burden on the four main-tower pillars.

Because the cathedral is built on sea silt and not on rock, engineers will conduct a two-year weight experiment on two of the tower pillars. Test bricks will be placed on the tops on each pillar and if there is no increase after builders will proceed with the project.

Height of the new spire, including a weather vane, will be 184 feet above floor level.

Bert Bishop of Trenton, Retired Watchmaker, Treasures Rare 200-Year-Old Watch

Time was when Time wasn't.

Jewelry stores of modern times display beautiful models of the popular wrist watch. Many wears diamond-crusted gadgets on her delicate wrist that are supposed to register time.

He-men sport fancy models with gold straps, leather straps and other wristing-clutching devices.

Grandpappy carried a pocket model that weighted him down so much that he carried a port or starboard list, depending on which pocket he carried the elephantine timekeeper.

Grandma usually wore an enclosed piece which hung from a delicate chain around her neck, or had a medal which was pinned high on the breast.

But there was a time when the wears mentioned existed and even as a member of the underworld, a Nihilist, a member of women or just a plain undesirable.

Puritans Started Fashion

For over one hundred years after the first ticker was invented by Jacob Perkins, humanity, one fortunate enough to acquire one of the miniature jewels had hid it in his stocking, neck ruff, the knee-flap of his jack boots or in his vest pocket.

The Puritans started this idea with their dislike for jewelry, says Mr. Bert Bishop of R. R. 2 Trenton a retired watchmaker whose apprenticeship and further training were given him by the Watchmakers Guild of England.

Bishop learned the art in 1900 and retired a few years ago.

Not only is a watchmaker sometimes a jeweller, Bishop confesses, but also a collector of old watches.

His prize possession is a timepiece which is over 200 years old. This watch is nearly round in shape, is solid gold and enclosed in three cases. The glass cases blown for the purpose by ancient English glassblowers, are held in spring operates on a concealed button. The watch works are driven by a tiny gold chain some-11 inches in length.

The fine art of the watchmaker is seen in the filigree ornaments on the works, so small they can hardly be seen with the naked eye. The watch was hand-made, and believe it or not they watch keeps perfect time today.

Bishop has several interesting stories regarding old watches. A Nihilist, a fanatic member of women or just a plain undesirable.

Predicts Asbestos Strike to End Soon

Quebec, May 27 (CP)—An official of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor said Thursday a settlement of strike will be made shortly to bring the asbestos wage strike to an end.

Jean Marchand, secretary of the C.C.C.L., said the proposal is the outcome of meetings between Archbishop Barrette and Gerard Picard, C.C.C.L. President.

He said the proposal will be made to the Canadian Johns-Manville Company Limited, largest of the five companies affected by the strike of 5,000 asbestos workers since May 14. He said an agreement is expected soon. He gave no details of the nature of the proposal.

Chief issue in the strike is the workers demand for a 15-cent increase to bring basic wages to $1 an hour.

BUS CLASSROOM

In New York city which has every reason to be proud of its long history and its present power and influence, are many points of interest as visitors to Manhattan know. Its citizens know much of its history and the educational authorities have wisely introduced visits to various places by school children as a part of a "Know Your City" program. The intention is to supplement formal study with what is essential to every child, personal observation and the development and widening of his or her interests. Transportation is accommodated to the needs of the students and so a chartered bus which carries them to scenes of interest becomes a school on wheels or a "portable classroom."

New York, however, with all its greatness and size, has its restrictions. There is the chance that a child would not get outside of his own immediate area without these tours of education. Part of the cause of this restriction of interest to their own immediate neighborhood can be placed on strained financial conditions of the family. In one instance it is pointed out that the only out of the thirty children on a bus tour had ever had the privilege of seeing the George Washington Bridge, though it is only fifteen minutes away from the school by bus.

So the tours are not mere sightseeing but are tied in with the school program of each pupil.

How important such trips as these tours is indicated by the letters the teachers receive from the boys and girls whose interest has been aroused by the widening influence of seeing significant places in their large city.

Smaller cities would not have such a problem but children of these towns find their interests expanding as they view more and more of the life around them through the new ideas in education.

Modern education is widening its influence to take in so much more that can be entered to the boys and girls and develop their minds. Living in what is in a real sense the world about has many lessons to give which mere words are not taught in classes. The mind of the young child today accepts inventions which but a few decades ago did not exist. This expanding influence will go on with progress in educational methods and with the widening interest in what science and education can bring to the training of young minds.

Just as the children of New York City study their great city and get to know more of the age and conditions of life in which they live, so the pupils of schools anywhere and everywhere are learning new approaches to the understanding of the life about them and to the part which they will have to play in it in the coming days.

CELEBRATING TWENTY CENTURIES

Paris is marking two thousand years of its history. But a full twenty centuries will not reveal all of the life of Paris for to-day's capital of France is marking only the anniversary is really putting it mildly. Generations before Julius Caesar, the Roman conqueror, overran Gaul in the year 51 B.C., there was a natural settlement on the Seine River, the place where Paris now is. Caesar's visit of conquest to Paris brought it to the notice of history. But Paris was older than Caesar's day. Its site had been determined as growth governs the development of modern cities in many respects. The Seine was a natural stream on which there should arise an important community even in the pre-Caesar days. He brought back to Imperial Rome the story of the city in the far north of France.

This year will bring a growth of interest in the outside world in this one of the world's greatest and oldest cities. But it remains a fact that to Caesar is due knowledge of the city before the Christian era, which means the Paris of Caesar's day is better known than Paris was even some centuries later in the history of France. Paris today certs an appeal after its long career.

AIR CORRIDORS ESTABLISHED

Britain is establishing air corridors ten miles wide which will form a system of highways at heights between 5,000 and 11,000 feet. This, it is pointed out, will ensure safer flying and prevent collisions between aircraft even in poor visibility. Both civil and military planes will be expected to conform to the new traffic control. The movement of aircraft will be organized from ground radio stations which will give instructions to the pilot.

Where there is the most love to God, there will be there the truest and most enlarged philanthropy.—Southey.

WORK ISN'T MALIGNANT

The doctors write the cause
Death upon a slip of white,
But always it's a malady or injury they cite.
And when the certificate goes to the filing clerk
No surgeon or physician gives the cause of death as
"work."

I've run the records through
And through of those recorded has stilled.
I've yet to find the name of that work had ever killed.

I've known of men afraid of work and men fond of ease,
But where's the doctor who will say that work is a disease?

It's luxury that leads to fat,
And that of course is bad;
But appetite and health and strength and sleep from work are had.
And though we all are born to die, upon the printed line
It won't be work that takes us off, but something more malign.

Mackenzie's Column:

Powers Jockey For Position in Big 4 Meeting

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

Russia and the Western Allies continue to manoeuver for position in the big four foreign ministers' council meeting, which opens in Paris late Monday.

Britain, the United States and France still seek an exact interpretation of Russia's about-face when the discussion opened on Germany's future—a matter of paramount importance to European peace and rehabilitation.

The Russian shift was disclosed by Foreign Minister Vishinsky's wholly-unexpected call for a revival of the four-power Allied Control Council to govern Germany, instead of creating a central German government.

Only a few days ago a Warsaw conference, attended by representatives of Russia and all her satellites, adopted a program calling for a full-fledged government in central Berlin government. Why then the sudden reversal?

Some observers think the change is due in part to the setback the Communists had in the recent election in the Soviet zone of Germany.

That election was to create a "people's congress" whose work is to be presented to the foreign ministers' council at the basis of a German peace settlement. But one-third of the voters turned Communist candidates down.

Now the Soviet calls for a return to the old machinery, a proposal which the Western Allies promptly rejected. They say the only way to break the deadlock is to create a central German government.

Vishinsky's new major move is up to Vishinsky, and pending that we must be patient. Even when the big four do not get full agreement, for the Soviet Foreign Minister is a shrewd bargainer, they usually find some basis for compromise.

Developments in the council meeting are going to be worth watching for two reasons. We are witnessing the unfolding of the first big act in the new cold war, and this is the first time that the Western Allies have taken a stiff line on Foreign Minister, although he has played a part in the Berlin crisis and in United Nations conferences.

Vishinsky was appointed Foreign Minister last March as successor to Vyacheslav Molotov. Since then Vishinsky received the portfolio United States Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Republican, used the shift a "ruthless" man replacing a "suave" one. Maybe it wasn't the first time the term "ruthless" had been applied to Vishinsky, who has served internationally known as the prosecutor in the Moscow purge trials of 1936, 1937 and 1938.

At that time Vishinsky made the world shiver as he flung questions for hours at defendants, who for the most part confessed so freely that they were guilty. The end came when Vishinsky demanded death for the "foul dogs," and they were sent out to be shot through the back of the head.

Government Plans To Centralize Liquor Authority

Toronto, May 27 (CP)—The Ontario government is engaged in a front-page story the Ontario government plans to centralize liquor authority in the Provincial Secretary's Department and will consolidate all liquor warehousing selling regulations.

Changes are rumored since the recent cabinet shuffle when Provincial Secretary Welsh also became Chairman of the Liquor Control Board, headed by Judge W. T. Tunnel Under English Channel Discussed Again

London, May 27 — (CP) — A tunnel under the English Channel linking France and Britain—an engineer's dream, a strategist's nightmare and a public talking point for 70 years—is in the news again.

The latest scheme, which has been discussed by parliamentary committees in both London and Paris, is on the agenda for discussion in the House of Commons and will eventually be submitted to the United Nations.

Meanwhile, the BBC is busy recording a history of the tunnel. Their first step was to interview 87 - year - old Charles Gatehouse, who helped in diggings for the pilot tunnel at Dover, Kent, 87 years ago and still guards the relics from a cottage at the foot of Shakespeare's Cliff.

The original tunnel, which penetrated a mile under the sea bed, has been filled up, but Gatehouse has kept the layout in his cottage. tunnel which exists as part of the Channel drainage system. There is undimmed by the years. One day, he says, motorists will drive across London to Paris.

Battle Royal Raging

A battle royal is raging as to whether the tunnel will "promote peace" or whether it will "make Britain vulnerable to invasion in the event of war.

Hillier's New Christ Church Consecrated to God's Service By Archbishop of Ontario

Hillier, Ont. (Staff) — Rising proudly from the ashes of its destroyed predecessor, the gleaming white edifices that is the new Christ Church near here was solemnly consecrated in an impressive service on Thursday morning.

The consecration ceremonies were conducted by the Most Rev. John Lyons, M.A. D.D., Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario assisted by the Rev. Hope Swayne Picton. Taking part in the solemn rites were wardens of the church, Messrs. King Terry and Warner McFaul.

As the capacity congregation stood in reverent silence, the application for consecration was read by the wardens before the clerical procession entered the church.

At the conclusion of the reading of the application, the procession led by the wardens, and the rector, the Rev. C. P. Heaven, and consisting of the Archbishop, his chaplain and visiting clergy slowly wended its way up the aisle to the flower-bedecked chancel. An augmented choir softly intoned a chant. Banked of white and colored lilacs formed a beautiful floral background.

Formed Guard of Honor

Nearing the chancel the clergy formed a white robed guard of honor through which the Archbishop and chaplain passed. The Revs. A. S. McConnell, Trenton and Stanley Coleman, Carrying Place, passed.

Before the altar with its snowy linens and gleaming communion vessels, the Archbishop paused. He conducted the brief consecration service and the Rev. Hope Swayne read the Consecration Sentence. At the conclusion Archbishop Lyons affixed his official signature, and offered special prayers. Later he ordered the rector, the Rev. C. P. Heaven and the wardens of the church to place the Consecration sentence, duly signed, in the custody of the Registrar of the Diocese in the Synod Office, Kingston. .

Acted as Celebrant

The service proper was conducted by the Venerable archdeacon Arthur Smith, B.A. rector of St. Thomas Church, Belleville, who also acted as celebrant of the Holy Communion which followed. He too, was assisted by the Rev. Hope Swayne. The Reverend Dean J. M. Brownlie, Marmora, read the gospel, with the Rev. Edmund Grant, Maitland Ontario, reading the epistle.

Among the visiting clergy were the Rev. J. C. Beaney, Tweed and Rev. J. Canfrell, Milford, Ontario. The congregation was representative of not only the parish but the county and outlying districts.

Three important things marked the consecration of this church, the Rev. Ramsay Armitage M.A., D.D., principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto, special preacher for the services, said in his address. These were, the name of the church, its 103rd anniversary and the fact that the consecration services are being held on Holy Thursday Ascension Day.

Reviews History

Reviewing the history of the church over a century, Dr. Armitage said that consecration of the new structure was not the beginning of a new effort but the carrying on of that which has existed for 103 years, because the pioneers not only of worldly things but of the work of the Anglican church in the district,

"Churches have taken different names," he said. "Some took the names of the saints, others of historic incidents but in the church, others of Holy days."

"But when a church has the name 'Christ Church' the name of our Lord, all other titles seem gathered into that one. How appropriate it is to consecrate Christ Church, Hillier, on Ascension Day! This is a great festival, but to the people of this parish it will be one to be always remembered," Dr. Armitage said.

Good to Think Back

"It was a good thing," he said, to think back 103 years, of the work these pioneers did, not only for the community but for the church, which was one of the first things they did.

Speaking of the church, Dr. Armitage reminded the congregation that it is not made up of the Bishop, the wardens, the clergy and the parish. "We are all in this thing together," Archbishop Sherman once said "the Church is not the Church unless you are in it," which is a good way of saying we must all work together.

The consecration of Christ Church, Hillier on its 103rd anniversary points us that like the past and the present, we must all be in it together in the future."

The rector, Mr. Heaven expressed the appreciation of the wardens, himself and the parish to the Archbishop. "We are proud of the fact that this service is the first of its kind conducted by him since his elevation."

The consecration service was an outstanding event in the lives of the wardens and the parish as a whole. It climaxed years of painstaking effort, raising of funds, labor and worry. Yesterday saw many of these labours see the result of their work climaxed by consecration of their new edifice "To the Glory of God."

Guests at Luncheon

At the conclusion of the services the Archbishop, visiting clergy and congregation were guests of the parish at a luncheon served in the town hall, Hillier. The luncheon served by members of the Ladies Auxiliary was followed by an hour of social enjoyment.

The first Christ Church was erected in August 30th, 1846 and the deed registered March 19th, 1847, grantor Robert Hubbs and grantee the Lord Bishop of Toronto the Hon. John Strachan. It contained two acres of land for site of a church and burial ground.

Evidently the first church was completed in the spring of 1846 and was in continuous use until 1946, when it was destroyed by fire after being struck by lightning.

First Marriage in 1848

The first recorded marriage in the old church was that of Sarah Abraham and James Cummins both of Hillier on June 15th, 1848, by the Rev. Robert Gregory Cox, rector.

The first recorded baptism was that of Alexander Graydon, son of the schoolmaster John and Ann Graydon of Pleasant Valley and took place November 2nd, 1847 by the Rev. R. G. Cox.

The first burial in the cemetery was an infant, William Cox, age one month, of Hillier, on 29th, 1854. The Rev. W. Padfield officiated.

The corner stone of the church was laid on Sunday, April 14th, 1946 by the Right Rev. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of Ontario. On Sunday, Sept. 29th, 1946, new church was solemnly dedicated together with furnishings and memorial by Bishop Lyons assisted by the rector, Rev. E. N. Grant.

Committees of Church

The building committee of the new edifice was composed of Walter Nicol, Charles Hayes, Lyle Stevens, Charles Benway, King Terry and Frederick Morton. The Ladies Guild officers are Hon. President Mrs. Annie Jones; president Mrs. Warner McFaul; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Morton and secretary Mrs. H. Wright. Secretary of the Cemetery Board is Mrs. Lyle Leavens.

Rectors of Christ Church, Hillier, since its inception are the Reverends R. G. Cox, 1847; C. Bustan, R. Boyer, E. Baker, P. P. Crawford, C. H. Mockridge, J. Hallwell, A. F. Emlin, W. H. Smythe, W. Johnson, W. Fleming, H. Rohlin, J. De Pencier Wright, Dr. Cobb, V. Boyle, Dr. Towle, W. G. Lansbury, Canon McTear, J. M. Brownlie, E. N. Grant and C. P. Heaven, 1949.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Praying Scientifically

BY ROY L. SMITH

As a comparative study of the religions of the world reveals the fact that all of them make use, in one form or another of prayer. It is as if prayer was of the very essence of religion.

There is in this an invitation to make a scientific study of prayer. No method who is truly scientific will ever allow a universal fact of such significance go without at least some investigation. It is not merely a curious question, but one of supreme concern to all mankind.

If religious people are correct in believing that it is possible to tap divine resources and make them available for the solution of the common problems of life, then it is of the utmost importance that all men should be informed as to the conditions governing prayer.

Jesus as a Prayer of Prayers

Even a hurried reading of the scriptures reveals Jesus of Nazareth as an habitual prayer of prayers. Again and again it is recorded of Him that "He went apart to pray." When His disciples came to present to Him their great request it was that He should teach them how to pray.

This week's lesson reveals Jesus in the hour of His supreme spiritual crisis. Judas is at hand, with his band of soldiers, ready to arrest Him. And with the heavens crashing down over His head He prayed.

He Prayed in Solitude

The average individual has never had much instruction in the techniques of prayer. About all he knows about the subject is what he may have learned from the preacher or the priest as he has prayed aloud for the congregation from the pulpit. The result is that in his private praying he has made the public prayers offered in behalf of a congregation. This means that his praying is stilted, formal, and unconvincing if not actually a little dishonest.

The Sunday School lesson for May 31st: "Watching and Praying in Gethsemane." Mark 14:32-52; Luke 22:39-54.

We have almost no indication of what may have been the actual form of Jesus' intercessory prayers, for they were offered in solitude when no one present to hear. But there are certain principles which can undoubtedly be accepted as having been used by Jesus.

He was Absolutely Honest

When Jesus prayed He laid aside all pretense, and talked to God with all the frankness and honesty with which a little child would approach a parent. The truth is, there can be no real praying which is not begin with complete honesty.

He Prayed Submissively

Being completely convinced of the divine power of God, and fully realizing that it was superior to any other power in all the universe, Jesus first of all submitted Himself altogether to the Will of God it was not that He surrendered. Instead, He took the attitude of the chemist in the laboratory who says, "Only show me the laws which govern the atoms and the molecules and I will co-operate with them, for only by so doing can I hope to get any dependable results." Jesus' first concern was to know the will of God. After that He was ready to do that with because that was the only way He could be made to work.

It has been a mistake made many times that people have assumed that His prayer, "Not My will but Thine be done," was an acceptance of the inevitable. Instead it was a vigorous declaration of purpose. It was as if Jesus had said, "If I can know the will of God, I propose to do it with all the powers at My command."

Prayer and Faith

Having prayed until He was sure of the will of God, he arose and faced those who came to arrest Him, and did it with a splendid calm within Him.

Faith is not a fatalistic acceptance of the inescapable, but a deliberate going out to meet life with a complete willingness to accept it, and then by our life can urge upon us, in the full confidence that we have something which God wants operator to do in the thing life can do to us.

Any man whose religious life can contribute that to his living has a treasure of inestimable worth. Nothing can defeat such a soul.

Boil Down Liquid Of Canned Vegetables

By KAY REY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 27. (CP) —In these long winter months when winter vegetables are used up and fresh ones are not yet ready in the garden, the housewife can solve that problem of having two vegetables on the menu every day with canned vegetables.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, stress the importance of using the liquid from canned vegetables as the thin water in which the vegetables have been cooked is full of value in flavor and food value.

Believe it or not, there is a right and wrong way to heat canned vegetables. If served hot, the flavor will be destroyed if they are drained, and the liquid boiled in an open saucepan until reduced to about half the quantity. Then the vegetables are added and cooked just long enough to be heated. They are then seasoned and served piping hot.

New flavor may be obtained by cooking a little minced onion or celery in the liquid from canned peas, and then adding the peas. Addition of a little chopped mint also is an improvement.

Use More Salads

Salads are healthy and also appetizing in warm weather days. Cabbage salad and green ingredients: one hard head of cabbage; three carrots, shredded; one can peas; salad dressing.

Shred cabbage and carrots, add green peas and toss in the dressing.

Green and gold salad—Ingredients: two cups cooked asparagus (diced); two cups shredded lettuce; two hard-cooked eggs; one tablespoon salad oil; one tablespoon vinegar; cooked dressing.

Mix the asparagus and shredded lettuce with the salad oil and vinegar. Add cooked dressing to moisten thoroughly. Chill and arrange in nests of lettuce. Garnish with the hard-cooked eggs and additional dressing.

The one essential food that is not available in even a good diet is Vitamin D—the vitamin that builds strong, healthy bones and teeth. Without it a child's limbs or ribs may grow soft and curved.

Health and welfare department officials say that every child needs vitamin D daily throughout the growing years. It is available in liquid cand it is concentrate form for only a few cents a day.

Don't be too ruthless with that surplus weight collected during the winter months. Health and welfare department officials recommend a consultation with your doctor before trying to get rid of that superfluous fat. Even if loss of weight is desired there are certain foods the body must have to keep it functioning properly. Self-imposed diets often weaken the body without getting rid of much weight.

SPOTLIGHT GLARES ON RITA AND ALY

The fact that Rita Hayworth is one of the world's most famous beauties is no help in avoiding publicity either.—Central Press Canadian.

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP)—There's a cold war brewing in the tanbark and empress world.

Residents of this Pennsylvania capital are watching with interest the battle of posters being waged by the Cole Brothers Circus and Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey.

It seems the Cole Brothers show is scheduled to appear in Harrisburg May 30 and Ringling Brothers June 7.

A spokesman for the Ringling show said in Philadelphia said Thursday night advance agents for Cole Brothers have been posting notices in Harrisburg that their circus will be the only one to visit here this summer. A Cole spokesman denied it.

The Cole spokesman said Ringling agents were posting large signs urging residents to wait for the Ringling Brothers' show.

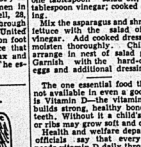
Both Cole and Ringling denied there was any dispute between the circuses, but Harrisburg is waiting —and watching.

Indianapolis (AP) — Human drivers at Indianapolis motor speedway anticipate no immediate competition from horses.

A 10-year-old gelding, Gay Quest, drove a special, motor-driven car at the track Thursday, but he set no records.

Owner Ham Morris of Louisville ordered the horse to operate the special starting device after steering wheel.

Sometimes he did, but mostly he didn't.



Morris explained it was the animal's first public performance. Back home in Kentucky, he said, Lord drives all over the farm.

Allos, Scotland (CP) — The Allos Muhuddian Club—otherwise known as the "liars' club" or a club for tall-tale tellers—celebrated its golden jubilee recently.

Membership includes ministers, farmers and shepherds who take an oath "never to tell the truth, none of the truth, and anything but the truth."

The club meets at high tide, twice every week, at the dock gatehouse down by the harbor. Members gain their own brand of tall tales. If they are up to standard, the teller is admitted to membership.

But as the president, dock gatekeeper John Westwood, says: They have to be respectable lies. Plenty of liars have been put out of the club.

Rev. H. C. Vaclavik Addresses Y.P.U. Open Meeting

Vaclavik, of the Bowdon Park Church, who was present from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and West Huntingdon Y.P.U. The church was beautifully decorated with large baskets of white and mauve lilacs.

On the communion table was placed a white cross and the word "Prayer" printed plainly over it in large black letters. The open Bible lay at the foot of the cross, and candles on either side, formed a very nice centre for the worship service.

Miss Doris Twiddy, president of the Ivanhoe Y.P.U., on behalf of the Union, welcomed all those present. Mrs. George Wood led in a short song service.

The worship service was conducted by the president, the theme of which was "Prayer". A reading the playing of quiet music by Miss Phyllis Wood, of the lights were turned out the only light being that of the candles set on the cross.

A call to worship was read. The scripture lesson, taken from Matthew 6, was followed all by Miss Eleanor Reid and a short paper on "Prayer" was then read.

The offering was received by Clare Hagerman and Gordon Wood, and dedicated by Miss Doris Twiddy.

A solo "Prayer to a Heart" was rendered very nicely by Joyce Reid, a duet, "Prayer" by the singing of the hymn "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," brought the worship service to a close.

The Secretary, Joyce Reid, read the minutes of the last meeting, and Mrs. Keith Bray also gave a splendid report, her accompanied by Miss Bessie Hemley.

Mr. G. A. Creaser ably introduced the guest speaker, Rev. H. C. Vaclavik, who was born in Czechoslovakia, and in his youth served as an altar boy in Roman Catholic Church. He has a magnetic personality and is widely read and travelled. Mr. Vaclavik spoke on "Prayer" and we fluently yet withal spoke with simple sincerity. The audience in the Ivanhoe Church, brought life to the text of his address. He told of his varied experiences in various countries here and in his native land, as manager of a Bata Shoe factory, officer in the army, farming in Saskatchewan, minister of the Church of All Nations in Toronto and chaplain mentally ill, and helping displaced persons to our shores.

In speaking of the scale of living in the country he said "We in Canada were aristocrats in comparison to the millions elsewhere and felt tribute to the brotherhood who had a marked influence on his life. He told of a very honored man, who, when asked the secret of his greatness replied a friend.

In closing the speaker urged the young people to set an aim, an edge, and a purpose in their lives with Jesus Christ as our Lord and friend.

Mr. George Wood voiced thanks and appreciation to Mr. Vaclavik and the benediction was pronounced by Mr. Creaser. Later at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Twiddy, the speaker, and several of the young people were entertained. Among those present were three displaced persons who were delighted to talk with a fellow countryman in their native tongues.

RITA MARRIED

The many-colored robes of the guests, especially those dressed in native Indian costumes, presented a sight that Hollywood's color cameras would have drunk in. Indian women wore saris of delicately shaded blue, lavender and green.

The wedding bands that Rita and Aly put on were of white gold. Aly was reported to have given Rita a 32-carat diamond engagement ring but she was not wearing it.

Rita stood for a few seconds on the steps of the town hall after her arrival and waved to the crowd which had gathered in the courtyard.

The Aga Khan, father of the bridegroom, arrived in a red roadster preceded through the narrow, twisting streets by two motorcycle policemen. He wore a white suit. His wife, the Begum, who was with him, wore a light blue sari.

The wedding follows a courtship of almost a year.

The couple first met at a party on the French Riviera last summer. From then on it was an idyll covering half the world.

They visited Spain—Rita is of Spanish and Irish descent—the United States, Mexico and Cuba.

Caused a Furor

Rita caused a furor when she refused to make a film career in Hollywood and instead packed up and sailed with Aly.

Aly Khan is half-Italian through his mother and Persian on his father's side. He has no Indian blood although most of his father's religious followers live there.

While Rita and Aly were in Switzerland an international storm burst around their heads.

A London newspaper denounced Rita as "an insult to decent women" and the motion picture chairman of the General Federation of Women's Club of America demanded a boycott of "the red-headed star's pictures."

The couple—whose romance has attracted more attention than any since King Edward VIII quit the throne of Britain for "Wallis Simpson—seemingly ignored the hullabaloo and left for the Riviera —playground of the international set.

To Continue Career

Where Aly's father, the fabulous Aga Khan, met his future daughter-in-law. He was reported charmed by her "modesty." The Aga is spiritual leader of a small sect of Shia Mohammedan religious, centered largely in India and East Africa.

By April, after a winter spent in the Prince's Chateau De L'Horizon at Cannes, both were divorced—Rita from actor Orson Welles, Aly from British heiress Joan Yarde-Buller. There was, however, the wait for Aly's divorce to become final.

Their desire to be married privately in the Chateau, was thwarted by the French government's refusal to waive a law requiring marriages to take place in a local city hall.

Rita, who has starred in some of Hollywood's biggest money-making films, plans to continue her career after marriage to one of the worlds' richest men. He, and his family, are said to have no objections.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman
Courtesy Means "Have a Heart"

I like the expression "have a heart"—it means what courtesy is pleading with someone to be considerate.

"It's a plea for courtesy.

And it's a request . . . lasting to . . . that the word courtesy is derived from the French word coeur, meaning heart.

So, if you are a courteous person you have a heart to consider the feelings of other people —their comfort, their happiness. You enjoy being amiable and tactful. You want to mingle pleasantly and comfortably with other people. You have regard and respect for other people, and you try not to do or say anything that will be disagreeable, unpleasant, painful.

This is another way of saying that it is your intention to live by the Golden Rule . . . "to do unto others as you would they should do to you."

This is the spirit that is in and around good manners, the "heart" of courtesy.

Informal name for signature:

Formal name for public information

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have two questions about name forms that I always bother me. . . and I am further perplexed by the fact that I see a number of my friends write one form and some another form.

1. How should a married woman sign the guest book at a wedding . . . when she signs for herself alone, and when he signs for her husband and herself?

2. What form of name should she write with her return address on the back of an envelope? Margaret

1. A married woman should sign her informal name in the guest book at a wedding . . . Margaret Smith Robinson, or more informally, and intimately Margaret Robinson. In the first place a formal name (that is with the title Mrs.) is not a signature . . . and in the second place, it looks very queer to see a formal name written in a guest book, which in itself is an informal item.

When a woman signs the guest book for her husband and herself, she writes either Margaret and George Robinson or George and Margaret Robinson.

2. The formal name is the one that should be written for "public" information in the return address written on an envelope: Mrs. George Robinson.

Letters to Servants should Have Title Before Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To stage a roaring discussion will you please answer this question: Should letters to servants be addressed with or without the title before the name? That is, "Miss", "Mrs." "Mr." before the name? Freda,

It is extremely rude to address a letter to a servant by the name alone. The envelope should be addressed to Miss Gladys Smith, Nora Brown, Mr. Joseph Peters.

Girl should pay for her prom ticket

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a girl in high school, and we are having a graduation dance next month. I am hoping a boy to escort me to the dance. Should I pay for the tickets and he pay for the corsage and the taxi? S.S.

Since you are inviting the boy as your guest, you pay for the tickets. If the boy sends you a corsage (this is no longer considered absolutely necessary, and in some schools is not permitted), he pays for it. He should not pay for the taxi or whatever transportation.

Lovely Lacy Straw

By ALICE ALDEN

Lacy weave straws ride atop the prettiest heads this summer. Here is straw light as a feather, picture-pretty, and just right for town or country wear, according to the design and adornment. This dramatic picture hat of lacy natural straw, Frederick Fashions has a softly curving brim set up on a bandeau of black velvet. Pink silk roses cluster under the brim at the hairline, and are also placed above the right side of the brim for a nice balance.

Luncheon Specials

Penny-wise hints for homemakers are eagerly sought when warm weather comes and appetites lag. The menu planner is confronted with the extra problem of providing meals that are substantial and still have the air of being light and delicate. When pennies must be considered, difficulties increase and complicate the picture.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest scalloped and creamed dishes to meet the need. The sauce, made with milk is a light and excellent food for the whole family.

Canned peas are on the economy list at present. They carry last year's freshness over into the spring months and are delicious when combined with other foods.

If peas or other canned vegetables are to be served hot, as a vegetable, the flavor will be improved if they are drained, the liquid boiled in an open saucepan until reduced to about half quantity, then the vegetables added and cooked long enough to be well heated. The liquid contains some of the food value and should never be thrown away.

Here are several recipes worth trying for luncheon.

CREOLE PEAS

2 tablespoons fat
1-4 cup chopped onion.
3 tablespoons flour
1-2 cup canned tomatoes or tomato juice
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoon curry powder
1 20-oz. can peas

Melt fat, add onion and cook until clear but not browned. Stir in flour and blend well. Add tomato juice (or canned tomatoes), salt, pepper and curry powder, from peas and continue stirring until smooth and well blended. Stir until thickened. Add liquid. Add peas, bring to boil and serve on toast. Yield six servings.

PEAS WITH CHEESE

1 20-oz. can peas
1 cup grated cheese
6 tablespoons butter
6 slices buttered toast
4 slices crisp bacon

Cook peas in their liquid until the liquid is reduced to 1-3 quantity. Add cheese and fat and cook slowly until cheese is melted. Serve on toast, garnished with crisp bacon. Yield: six servings.

SCALLOPED PEAS WITH EGGS

1 20-oz. can peas
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon spicy meat sauce
3 hard-cooked eggs
1-2 cup soft bread crumbs

Drain liquid from peas, add milk to liquid and heat. Melt butter, add flour and blend well. Slowly add hot liquid, stirring constantly until thickened, then add spicy meat sauce. Slice eggs and combine with peas and sauce; pour into a greased casserole. Top with crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°F., for 15 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Fashion Flashes

The wheat harvest is good this years, sartorially speaking. Wheat is the favorite color for hats, and there are little wheat sprays used as trimming. It is a good color for bags and gloves, and it is a good shade for country cottons.

Not quite so popular as formerly but still to be reckoned with is the faille suit dress. Black or dark blue faille, for a tiered jacket suit, the jacket with a deep surplice closing that tapers to the waist with a one button fastening. The deep tiers form a curving peplum. Bracelet sleeves have deep turn back cuffs.

Taking on all the airs of the fine tailored wool suit is a good town companion, the cotton suit. Deep taupe-colored cotton with white dots is used for a good suit with a flaring, fitted lined jacket that is edged at the collar and down the front with white pique. The hip pockets, with big triangular flaps, are also pique edged, as are the pointed turnback cuffs on the bracelet sleeves.

Little furs were never so big in the fashion scene as they are this year, and a cool day or night breeze brings out pieces that range from beautifully handled squirrel to imperial ermine. Pastel mink is used for a cameo shawl that is shorter and fuller than a stole, and is curved to fit the shoulders.

Not many in-between hats this year, since most hats are either big, of the capeline variety mostly, or quite small and head-hugging. Rustic straw is used for a capeline with softly curved brim on which are arranged little sinnias in pale to bright tones of yellow, orange and red, each with green erect in the unit stem and growing from a band of green velvet ribbon.

After all the shouting about novelty mits, the slim suit done in classic tailored lines is first favorite.

PLANTING BEE

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Excessive Perspiration

No matter how lovely a girl may be, how chic her dress, how fair the complexion, how smart the setting, if she carries the slightest suggestion of perspiration odor she is most likely to be passed by members of the other sex. No suitor will come scouring. No one will wangle a dance with her. She is, in a minor way, a social outcast.

It doesn't seem possible that she can be unaware of this affliction —which is more than any ordinary good-looks grief, since it is likely to affect her life adversely. Many a good job has been lost because of it; is only in remote cases, when excessive skin moisture is caused by illness, that the condition cannot be corrected. Extreme nervousness may be a factor, but it is not so much of an influence that the unpleasant moisture, with its attendant offensive odor, cannot be dispelled.

If all hygienic measures fail, there should be a medical checkup. Every possible means should be taken so that no one will make a high score in delininess.

The first rule . . . bathe daily. That does not mean a casual treatment of the skin with a soaped cloth. There should be friction with a bath brush of heavy bristles, the more vigorous the action on the skin when perspiration evaporates clings to dead cells, and these cells must be removed. When the cutaneous coat is free of them, the skin will function more normally as an organ of elimination.

She is a social outcast.

After the scrubbing in the tub, have a cold shower. Follow with a brisk rubdown with a bath tonic. Apply a deterrent or deodorant to the arm pits.

These preparations come in several forms —powders, creams, liquids —and if one won't work another one will. Any druggist will tell you that checking skin moisture over long or small areas will have no harmful effect upon the health. Perspiration is supposed to other parts of the body where it may evaporate quickly.

More than foolish is the girl who fancies that dash of perfume will kill all evidence of perspiration odor. It won't. The thing to do is to eliminate the trouble. Frocks are often ruined if shields come loose. Someone has said that the ancient Greeks were not bothered with this problem because of the way their clothes were designed —no sleeves to tight clothing under the arms.

The woman who is on a reducing campaign may notice excessive skin moisture. That is because rapid tissue waste is taking place. She will find the salt glow helpful.

Moisten a small bowl of ordinary table salt. Friction it into the entire body surface. Have a cold shower and brisk rubdown.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Shall She Exchange a First-Class Job for "Second Rate Love"

Most people who have come through the very common experience of a youthful romantic fiasco grow entirely out of their emotional disaster, the average persons, looking back on such an experience, is apt to say: "How in the world could I ever have fallen for him?" or as the case may be.

Once in awhile however, some young girl or woman, for some deep-seated emotional reason, idealizes an early romance to the point where it stands in the way of their ability to find happiness later. They cannot let go of something they should quickly relegate to the past.

A young woman of 25 writes me that when she was 21 she was deeply in love with a man who did not return her feeling. Instead he married another girl.

Now, fourteen years later, another man has come along. She first one, apparently, whom she has been willing to consider marrying since that early episode. She has been going with him for several years and he is in her own age group.

"Like a fool," my woman, I would like my own home and family before it is too late," she writes me, "but I know I will not be allowed to keep it if I marry. I love this man. I guess but not everything like the first love.

"Would you give up a good job to marry a second-rate love? Would it be fair to the man to have only second-hand love to offer?"

Whether or not a girl should give up a good job to marry a man with whom she is not deeply in love would entirely depend I should say, on what sort of man he was. For if he loved her if she found him a congenial companion; if she was sure he would take care of her and be good to her; if she sincerely intended to make him the best wife she could; and if, finally having her own home and family is important to her, as if find girl suggests it is, then I would say trading a job for such a marriage would be a good idea. Under such circumstances, I feel sure there would be a very likelihood that the marriage would turn out successful and that the woman would find herself corresponding to it with much more genuine warmth than she had previously believed possible. In fact, I would think it extremely probable that as time went on, she would develop a genuine love for her husband even though she might not have had it to start with. On the other hand if all the factors enumerated just above were not present in the situation and if she were apprehensive about the man's stability or character so that she could not feel secure in marrying him, then I would stay with the job and let the marriage go.

I wish I knew exactly what you mean when she says she would "not be allowed" to keep her job if she married. Does she mean that her employer or she works will not employ married women, or does she mean that the man in the case would refuse to permit her to go on working once she was married to him? The latter circumstance would give me pause, not because the issue would be working outside the home, but because it is a question that calls for some cooperative marriage if a woman feels her husband will not "allow" her to do something. In the right kind of marriage there is no allowing on either side, but rather mutual understanding and willingness to see the other person's point of view.

As for the second question that you ask, about whether or not it would be fair to a man "to have only second-

Last of Nine Ships Stranded By Strike Sails

Halifax, May 27 (CP) — The 7,000-ton collier Wabana, last of nine ships stranded here by a seamen's union strike called two years ago, slipped out of port today under sooty, grey skies.

The Wabana was boarded late Wednesday without incident by a 16-man crew of Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) members. An S.I.U. spokesman said all were Canadians and 13 were former members of the striking Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.).

Halifax signals reported the collier left her mid-stream anchorage shortly after dawn for an unannounced destination. It was presumed, however, she was heading for Newfoundland.

The Wabana and her sister-ships Louisburg and Arthur Cross were moved into the stream by their officers more than a week ago. All are owned by Dominion Coal Company.

Stevedore members of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) began unloading the Arthur Cross at Sydney, N.S., at midnight Wednesday night after a three-day stand-off. C.S.U. pickets did not interfere as the dockworkers crossed. The 11 steelworkers, arrived at the pier.

Chevrier Critical Of PC Leader

Montreal, May 27 — (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier Wednesday night referred to George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, as "an imperialist from Ontario, who raged against Quebec, its leaders and often its people, who suddenly extends his hand on the eve of the election to Mr. (Premier) Duplessis" of Quebec.

The minister told the annual meeting of the Montreal Young Liberal Association that the Progressive Conservatives had no chance of winning the forthcoming federal election "because they are almost exclusively a provincial party" with strength emanating from Ontario.

He said that "throughout his life, Alvez has tried to foment discord and I must admit that he succeeded."

Mr. Chevrier said he referred to Mr. Drew's action in bringing about investigations into the Seven gun contract and the sending of troops to Hong Kong.

Now, the minister said, the Progressive Conservative leader was fomenting new trouble by making groundless charges about aircraft products in Montreal by Canadian Limited.

"His attack on the T.C.A. (Trans-Canada Air Lines) has been on such a character that people in Toronto have been known to cancel their reservations aboard these planes and receipts in the Toronto office of T. C. A. have fallen."

Canada Blocks Persons Using Faked Passports

Ottawa, May 27 (CP)—Canadian immigration officials, acting on a tip from French police, have blocked off a possible influx into Canada of persons using faked passports.

Dr. L. C. Jacobsen, Deputy Minister of Mines and Resources said the information from French police was received "only one or six weeks ago" and indicated that a large number of false French passports were circulating in France.

Actual number in circulation was not stated in the information received from France, but other sources have reported the number to be as high as 4,000 and that the faked documents stemmed from a large phony passport ring with headquarters in Paris.

The information supplied to the department indicated exactly the differences between the faked documents and genuine passports. Immigration branch immediately distributed the information to all of its offices at points in Canada or abroad where passports would be presented by persons seeking entry or leave to the Dominion.

"So far as we know," Dr. Keenleyside said, "nobody has managed to get into Canada with one of these fakes. But you never know, nobody has tried."

He added that at the same time evidently was not aimed at getting people into Canada, according to information available to the department.

In answer to a question, Dr. Keenleyside said, it would have been difficult for a person to enter Canada on such passports since most persons entering usually also have a visa as well.

In obtaining a visa, a person with a false passport would probably be screened out by immigration authorities overseas.

A ring similarly operating in fake passports was broken in Great Britain a year ago. Seven persons who entered Canada on this illegal British passports were deported back to Europe.

The ring, with headquarters in London, smuggled falsified passports from Europe into Britain and sent them on to Canada with false passports issued in Scottish names.

Ideal Weingarten, Polish-born engineer, was sentenced in London Old Bailey Court a year ago last April to two years as the alleged ringleader. Four others, including passport office examiners, drew lesser terms.

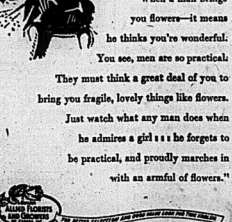
Girl's Claim To be Orphaned Mute Exposed



St. Catharines, May 27 (CP)— A girl claiming to be an orphaned deaf mute caused three detachments of police much questioning and writing before they exposed her as a fraud.

Constable J. Richards of the Provincial Police detachment at nearby Grimsby said the girl introduced herself by a pencilled note Wednesday night as Dorothy Kaufman, 17. She wanted police to find her sister in Grimsby.

Richards turned her over to Chief William James of the Grimsby police. Through notes, she informed him her parents both died in the Windsor tornado in 1947. When she wrote she was United States citizen, the chief called in R.C.M.P.

The girl was placed in a county overnight while police checked Windsor officials and were told "she is faking . . . full chief Ashby of Simcoe." The Simcoe chief said the girl once gave him a line-day runaround before he broke down her dead-mute story. The identified as Elizabeth Rosye, 17, was brought here, to face charges of vagrancy and creating public mischief.

London, May 27 (AP)—Home Secretary Chuller Ede parried all attempts today to find out whether he will declare Communist Gerhard Eisler a genuine political refugee.

This matter is before the court because Ede told questioners in the House of Commons.

COLDWELL SAYS 'BIG BUSINESS' BEING ASSISTED

Claims Older Parties Ignore Requests to Continue Price Controls

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Windsor, Ont., May 27. (CP)—The Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties were lumped Thursday night by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, at answering the "pleas of big business" in dropping price controls and subsidies.

He told a C.C.F. rally in this Western Ontario motor city that the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives had "united in ignoring the requests of the people for retention of controls in the face of the highest profits in history.

Mr. Coldwell contended such action was a denial by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that his party is associated with "big interests", and asked: "Was it not the great monopolistic publishing, gold mining and department store interests which promoted his candidature as leader of the Conservative Party?"

Answers Questions

A questioner asked about the C.C.F. position on alleged French traitors, including Count de Bernonville, who sought haven in Canada and have been convicted in absentia.

"We certainly would not harbor traitors of any description if we were in power in this country," Mr. Coldwell said.

Of the North Atlantic Security pact, he said the reason for the fact is that it will make the Russians realize they will face a united front of democratic nations if they try to provoke war.

A questioner suggested the United States was using the pact as a means of provoking war and destroying Russia.

Mr. Coldwell said the provocation was on the Russian side and that the "western Allies have been patient to the very limit".

NEW ASSISTANCE FOR GOLD MINES IS ANNOUNCED

St. Laurent to Help Gold Producers and Will Not Devalue Dollar

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Timmins, Ont., May 27. (CP)—Further assistance to marginal gold mines was proposed last night by Prime Minister St. Laurent in this Northern Ontario mining town.

Completing a 17-day sweep through the Maritimes, Quebec and Northern Ontario he told a political rally that the government, if re-elected June 27, would amend its gold production bonus plan to help gold producers whose production was not up to a specific mark through no fault of their own, such as retroactive to Jan. 1 this year.

Mr. St. Laurent, who later returned to Ottawa for a weekend political rest, said the government's measures to help gold mines already has meant a substantial increase in gold production and has given the industry financial aid "roughly equal to the devaluation of the dollar by 10 per cent."

Through the plan, 88 mines were obtaining aid which amounted to nearly $2,500,000 last year, an average rate of $2.27 an ounce of gold. That gave more than $32 an ounce, or about the equivalent of a 10-per-cent dollar devaluation. In 1949, the average would be $4.25.

It had been planned to amend the act at the last session of parliament, but the amendment would be introduced at the next session this year if the government was re-elected.

The effect of the amendment would be to benefit those mines whose production was not up to that of the base year under the act—ending June 30, 1947—through no fault of their own, if this can be proved.

At present, a mine whose production equals its output in the base year receives a bonus on one-third of its production.

The proposed amendment would put them all on the same basis, provided earnest effort is proved.

British, Foreign Films Praised By Ont. Board

Toronto, May 27 — (CP)—British and foreign films are praised and Hollywood's products overtly censured in the annual report of Ontario's motion picture censorship board, the province's branch released Thursday.

The report said that British-made films were "mature in outlook, socially significant and ... highly entertaining."

British producers had displayed a "new responsibility" in producing at considerable cost a great number of short subjects to meet demands for children's entertainment.

Increased popularity of the foreign film was due to the elements of appeal not usually found in Hollywood products. "European dramas are unusually realistic."

The board of censors reviewed a total of 606 motion pictures from the United States, Great Britain and Continental Europe. About 25 per cent required "deleting" before being released, it added. One subject was rejected entirely.

"Men being kicked on the head and body and other forms of too realistic violence, as well as gruesome scenes depicting certain types of hold - ups, were ordered removed from most of the crime type pictures."

Violence appeared to be "running rampant." Men were shown being kicked and beaten into unconsciousness in front of the cheaper grade and gangster-type feature productions. The board noted its trend "with alarm."

Excessive display of fire - arms in newspaper and billboard advertising was reduced to a greater extent than usual, and censorship directions of guns were ordered in several western - type pictures.

Witness Claims Police Beat Him With Blackjack

Toronto, May 27. (CP)—A South Carolina, 1918, oliver boyd, 23, testified during a court case here Thursday that police beat him with a rubber hose and a blackjack to get a statement.

The statement was given during a trial in which he and Elsie Gumps, 34, were charged with robbing Harris Kennedy after a crap game in which the complainant was stripped of his clothes.

Because evidence of the two accused, the complainant and defence witnesses conflicted, the magistrate dismissed the charge.

Kennedy said he had gone to a North Toronto address with Miss Gumps. There he got into a crap game, lost his money and was stripped of his clothes. He claimed the woman pulled off his tie while others in the dice game took off the rest of his clothes. He charged Leeboyd hit him in the mouth and face. After being dressed in old clothes, he was put out of the house.

Miss Gumps, in a signed statement blamed a number of men playing dice with stripping Kennedy. She denied having any part in the assault or robbery.

Leeboyd also had a written statement produced in court but he claimed that it was written after he was beaten with a rubber hose and blackjack, pitched against the wall and kicked in the stomach.

He quoted one police officer as saying: "You ought to be shot."

Leeboyd denied striking Kennedy and the fight was between the complainant and the woman. He said a man named "Buck" pulled off Kennedy's jacket because he thought it might fit him. He charged that Kennedy pulled off Kennedy's underwear.

'CANADA FIRST' POLICY URGED BY PC LEADER

Would Take Steps to Make Pound Sterling and Dollar Convertible

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, May 27 — (CP) — Policy of "Canada first" in matters of trade and development was advocated Thursday night by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Drew, scheduled to speak today in Lacombe and High River, Alta., told a national radio audience that "our policy in the opening out of the wide frontiers of this still remains to be developed, should at all times frankly be Canada first."

At a public meeting, he said the free countries of the world should not be forced to endanger their freedom by trading with countries from the iron curtain. Exchange difficulties were forcing the free countries to trade on bilateral basis, he said.

He promised that if his party formed the government after the general election it would take steps to make the pound sterling and the dollar convertible.

In Quebec, meanwhile, he told newspapermen that the Progressive Conservative party has no conditions or arrangements with any party. That, he said, applied to Alberni where there is a Social Credit government, and to Quebec, where there is a Union Nationale government.

Candidate In Every Riding

The Progressive Conservatives, he added, expect to have a candidate in every constituency in Quebec.

In his radio speech, Mr. Drew said Canadians naturally wish to play their full part in the exchange of goods which they required from other lands.

"We should, therefore, have no hesitation in saying that the encouragement we give to development, should be given to the greatest amount of employment for our own people," he said. "Our first concern is to open wider opportunities for our own youth which have been born in Canada."

He told how the southern part of Canada was being developed and then said that "all our thinking in regard to the development of our country must take a new direction."

"We must turn our eyes to the north, just as those of an earlier generation turned their eyes to the west . . ."

To open the full possibilities of the northern area, Canada must be prepared to build rail lines, to build roads, and to provide air communication as well. Canadians must adopt policies which will ensure the maximum use of the resources in Canada.

Trade Crisis Impending Says Solon Low

Port Arthur, May 27 (CP) — A trade crisis is impending in Canada, Solon Low, National leader of the Social Credit party said here Thursday night in an address to a public meeting. His party, he said, is the only one with a solution.

Mr. Low said his party would provide the means whereby the Canadian people could buy the nation's entire output.

Canada has huge surpluses such as pulp and wheat which Canada would not want, he told a political meeting, but real surpluses existed which could easily be exchanged for corresponding surpluses of other nations.

Canadians could expect a recession in "the near future" unless the federal government adopted a positive cushion against unemployment and poor markets.

At Port Arthur and other so-called "seasonal areas," unemployment has been marked. And another sign of recession was the surplus of manpower and goods, he added.

"If we look further," said Mr. Low, "we will see the tell-tale: sales of surplus goods on shelves and the definite trends towards tightening of money for building purposes. These are all sure signs unless we do something about it."

Canadians have to take dictation from the dollar bloc," because of the liberal government's persistence in drawing away from other parts of the Commonwealth and aligning Canada more closely with the dollar bloc.

In a 15-minute address over an Edmonton radio station Mr. Low charged that the Liberal administration in Canada has down the river at Brenton Woods, when the chains of American gold were welded upon the nations of the world."

Cleric Protests Czech Restraints On Religion

By A.I. GOLDBERG

Prague, May 27 (AP) — Archbishop Joseph Beran has written a letter to Czechoslovak president Klement Gottwald protesting the latest government restrictions on religion, it was learned today. Apparently his protest ignored it.

Although the existence of this letter has just been disclosed, it was the precursor of pastoral letters to the Roman Catholic clergy bitterly denouncing recent acts of the communist government.

The letter was sent to Gottwald early this month. Backed by his bishops, the Archbishop said the church was willing to issue a proclamation of loyalty to the government — but only if certain steps were to be respected.

The Archbishop complained the ministry of interior failed to make a proper investigation of charges, discussed even on a church-state accord were broken and that "anti-religious" measures devices were found hidden in the bishops' consultation room.

Archbishop Beran protested communist press articles ridiculing attempt to "re-educate" state employed away from religion, and alleged district action committee moves to prevent parents of Catholic youth for religious schooling.

Building Strike In Toronto Ends

Toronto, May 27 (CP)— The strike of common laborers which tied up millions of dollars worth of construction in Toronto ended late Thursday.

The Hod Carriers and Common Laborers' Union (A.F.L.) went on strike four weeks ago seeking a unified closed shop, under which all non-union members employed by the Toronto Builders Exchange would be compelled to join the union within 30 days. The Builders Exchange, representing contractors, claimed the union did not represent a majority of its employees.

Wages and working conditions were not an issue in the strike which halted construction on the new Hospital for Sick Children and other big projects here.

Settlement was announced by Ontario Labor Minister Daley with notice that the union will apply to the Ontario Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining agent. All pickets are to be withdrawn and skeleton crews of building trades workers will be back on the job tomorrow.

If the union succeeds in its application for certification, negotiations will open on a contract between the Exchange and the Union.

Bench Warrant Ordered For Arrest Of Constable

Toronto, May 27. (CP)— A bench warrant for the arrest of Toronto-policeman Joseph O'Rourke was ordered issued when he failed to appear in court to answer an assault charge.

O'Rourke and two other Toronto policemen, Patrol Sergeant William Kelso and Constable John Peyton, are charged with assaulting Douglas Tolmie, 32, when he resisted being brought to the station for questioning last February.

After the bench order was issued police notified the magistrate that O'Rourke was out of town on holidays and was delayed in returning.

U-Boat Crew Reported Living On S. Sea Isle

Hamburg, May 27 (AP)—The Hamburg, May 26 (AP)—The newspaper Niederdeutsche Zeitung came up today with this tale of the South Pacific:

Forty German U-boat men sneaked their submarine out of a norwegian port before the German surrender in 1945 and headed for the south seas, where they settled on an island. They are living an idyllic life there with wives and children, fully unaware of the world's postwar troubles, and don't intend to move until at least 1951.

This, said the newspaper, came in a letter received by a Hamburg citizen. It was postmarked Wellington, N.Z. The letter did not name the island nor did it give the number of the U-boat.

Steps Are Urged To Safeguard Homes, Shoreline

Toronto, May 27. (CP)—G. B. Langford ,University of Toronto mining and geology professor, urged 'many municipalities bordering Lake Ontario to "take immediate steps to refuse building permits within a fixed distance of the lake's edge" as a solution to the problem of erosion.

In a report to the Ontario government, Prof. Langford said remedies must be applied right away to protect homes already built near the water's edge and "no time should be taken to prevent further construction within 600 feet of the edge of the bluffs.

"The entire shore east of Oakville is like that, under protection," he said. "The loss of land makes the location property of vital public inferest. The protection of this property must be a community effort."

Cry of 'Watch the Cards' Rings Out Again as Team Sets National Loop Afire

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Louis Cardinals, tabbed in pre-season predictions as a weary bunch of veterans who had no place to go but down, suddenly have come to life and are showing some of the class that made the Red Birds the feared Gas House Gang of old.

In recent games Eddie Dyer's veterans have shown new spark and Thursday night's 18-5 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates lifted St. Louis into a fifth place tie with Philadelphia Phillies.

The Red Birds had to come from behind to crush the slumping Pirates.

Pittsburgh sailed into Red Munger for four runs in the first inning, three of them on Ralph Kiner's 10th homer of the season but the Cards stormed back with seven in their half and were in front the rest of the way.

Stanley Hughes made his first start of the season for the Pirates but got only two batters out. Hal Gregg and Cliff Chambers also saw duty in the first before the Cards were retired.

Jim Hearn, who replaced Munger in the first, was chased in the second frame, during a two run Pirate rally that cut the Card advantage to 7-6. Ted Wilks relieved Hearn and stopped the Pirates from the run scoring and the way to gain his third victory.

Musial Slams Homer

Chambers blanked the Cards until the sixth when Stan Musial slammed his sixth homer. Enos Slaughter added his third four-bagger in the seventh and the Cards rapped chambers for four more runs in the eighth.

Washington, who came from behind and beat the slumping Cleveland Indians 5-4 in a night game at Washington. The game was called for light in order to allow the Tribe to entrain for their home lot.

Larry Doby, who has homered in each of Cleveland's last three games, hit one over the fence with one on in the first but Gene Bearden couldn't hold, the lead.

Mickey Haefner, who stopped Cleveland with one hit May 10, went the distance for Washington, allowing seven blows.

Boston and Detroit oversame a 5-3 deficit and nipped St. Louis Browns 7-5 in the major's only day game. The Red Sox scored four runs in the eighth inning to win.

Ed Pellagrini's error with the bases loaded, a disputed play at second and Ted Williams' two-run single broke up the game.

The scheduled game between Detroit and New York at the Yankee Stadium was postponed because of rain. The remainder of the teams were idle.

Status of Feller Most Uncertain, Will Take Rest

(By The Canadian Press)

The status of Bob Feller is an uncertain as ever.

Nobody is willing to say just when the famous Cleveland convalescent will be able to pitch again. Even Bob himself refuses to hazard a guess.

One thing is sure — the 30-year-old hurler is definitely not ready now, not even for relief.

In the clubhouse after Wednesday night's game at Washington Rapid Robert glumly said: "I haven't won a game since May 7 and it looks like the next one I win will be after July 4. And I'm not so sure I'll win a game after the Fourth of July.

"I'm going to take a rest. That is about the only thing that will help me."

There will be no changes either in the field or office management of Chicago Cubs, owner P. K. Wrigley said Thursday at Chicago after a two hour meeting with five key officials of the club.

Manager Charlie Grimm said: "We've been in a slump, but we have nothing out of it. I still believe we've got a good ball club. The players aren't discouraged. They're battling for me and I'm all for them. I'll take the blame myself."

Willis Morrissey, president of the Ontario division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, said Thursday at Toronto the Association will form a national body before June 18.

He said the hopes formation of the National Association will curb the power of the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations. He felt the I. C. R. A., representing race track owners, has "too much power" over Canadian racing.

At Paris, the first bid of Richard Gonnales, United States champion, for a European tennis title ended suddenly Thursday when he was upset by Budge Patty, another Californian, in the semi-finals of the French international championships, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3. In an all-Los Angeles final Saturday, Patty will play defending champion Frankie Parker, who flattened Eric Sturgess of South Africa, 6-4, 6-4, in the day's other semi-final.

At Berne, Switzerland, the Welsh soccer team Thursday bowed 4-0 to Switzerland to wind up a highly - unsuccessful tour of the continent. The Welsh players lost both their other matches, against Belgium and Portugal.

New York Giants Thursday set veteran infielder Dick Culler to Jersey City Giants and at the same time announced the recall of infielder Jack Lohrke from their National League farm club. The Giants shipped Lohrke, a highly - promising youngster, to their farm club last week. Culler was kept then in preference to Lohrke because he needed only 10 more days to become a five-year man in the majors. That would qualify him for the recently - installed pension plan. Culler became eligible Thursday. It means that he get $50 a month from his 50th birthday on.

Negotiations for a welterweight championship fight at the Polo Grounds in New York June 17 between Ray Robinson and Kid Gavilan of Cuba 30) brought at the last minute Thursday because of a disagreement over radio and television rights. When the boxers and promoter Harry Markson got together to sign contracts for the bout, Robinson and his representatives refused to sign because, they said, Madison Square Garden, the promoter, should "yield" the rights to Dept. Markson refused to do this.

At Fairmount Park, Ill., High Hanover, driven by Walter Dispanette, scored a stunning upset in the ninth race of the Grand Circuit program Thursday night, paying backers $105.80 to win the 18 class trot feature. The gaint trotter was ninth in the first half of the feature, he sixth race. Second place in the ninth went to Guy Tramp, who paid $50.20. Guy Tramp was eighth in the first half.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Soccer slips on its shorts, laces its sweaters and tapes its boots for its first appearance here in over a decade Saturday afternoon when the newly formed Bay of Quinte Association Football League makes its initial bow to fandom here. Opening the first season in years by Northern Electric team will entertain the Belleville United eleven at the Fair Grounds, the game getting under way at three o'clock.

The game actually is the second of the league schedule, the first having been played last Saturday when the strong Batawa team turned back the United by a 6-0 score. The city eleven, however has arranged conditionally for tomorrow's tilt and Northern which defeated the Batawans 3-2 in a pre-season exhibition match, (friendly least y'know) will likely have a different result to say in the way of victory.

And there'll be "datin'" before the tee hits leather for the kickoff, Mayor D. L. Sierey will be on hand to boot the ball to start proceedings and if Hinman can kick a ball like he plays baseball he'll probably be offered a contract by the "Geordies," Newcastle United, that is. Then too, in full highland paraphernalia will be the Belleville Pipe Band to skirl the pibrocks for the lads. Alderman Angus Duffy, chairman of fire in the Sierey Government has arranged to have members of the city fire department on hand to give a demonstration of newly-acquired fire-fighting equipment during the half-time festivities.

The opening hig jinks will take place just before game time at three o'clock. There is no admission charge, but bring along your scribbling dimes and fat quarters, for that is believed will be taken up to help defray costs of iodine, tape, injured dignities and a dozen other items that crop up in any athletic endeavor.

Reid Penton, of the Trenton RCAF Coaches School has been appointed referee. Another scheduled game takes place Saturday at Batawa when that team entertains the Trenton squad. Penton will officiate here. Referee will mark the air ladies first appearance this year, but it is felt in soccer quarters generally that the fairer sex will be right at home in 30 players on the dotted lines, they might produce a squad that will give the league-leaders a tough battle. Jack Bennet, Trenton, will officiate at Batawa.

Well, well, well, and a pipe or two. The Fiction entry in the Belleville District Baseball League, whose stock soared to stratospheric heights after their emergence as champs of the world of the 1948 champion Napanee team, were jolted back to earth down Point Anne way last night. Seems as how the Ox Fictionites, the unknown quantity as far as results is concerned, fashioned a right smart piece of baseballing and set the haughty "Spaniards" back on their haunches with a 6-4 defeat.

Tweet, tweet, we are informed a nifty piece of pitching duelling between Johnny Green, of Point Anne and young Alex Tait, product of Wellington Minor ball. The two were scarce on both sides of the scorebook as the two youngsters flung some fancy curves and straight smoke-balls across the platter.

Trenton RCAF Flyers, Point Anne and Kiwanis Juniors are at the moment tied for first place in the league standing with one win and no losses. Picton has one and one and Northern Electric and Trenton Terriers one defeat recorded against them with nothing in the win column. Flyers take on their old enemies from Trenton Town tonight on the latter's diamond, and, being the unknown quantity as far as Wednesday night, Flyers should tuck this one away, and grab the loop lead. Napanee will be the guests of the Juniors at the Fair Grounds on Monday night, and that should be a tidy tiff, By the way, Don Bensey has discarded plate in favor of shortstop and don't be surprised to see the juniors hurler back in action within the next ten days at the most.

Wee Willie Davis (what a name for a six foot six inch giant) is one of the most beautiful specimens of heavyweight bruise. The mighty Davis who meets Whipper Billy Watson here tonight, makes no secret of the fact that he has Watson's number. "I've watched this Whipper in many of his bouts" sounds off Wee Willie, "and while I admit he is a good scientific wrestler I can see plainly that he has a few chinks in his armour. I've watched this Whipper in many of his bouts" sounds off Wee Willie, "and while I admit he is a good scientific wrestler I can see plainly that he has a few chinks in his armour. I've watched this Whipper in many of his bouts" sounds off Wee Willie, "and while I admit he is a good scientific wrestler I can see plainly that he has a few chinks in his armour. I've watched this Whipper in many of his bouts" sounds off Wee Willie, "and while I admit he is a good scientific wrestler I can see plainly that he has a few chinks in his armour. I've watched this Whipper in many of his bouts" sounds off Wee Willie, "and while I admit he is a good scientific wrestler I can see plainly that he has a few chinks rough he folds up. And that's what's going to happen to him on Friday night."

On his part Watson has a score to settle with Davis apart from wrestling railings on the two men. Davis interfered in a match in Toronto between Watson and Atkins and the Whipper has not forgotten it. There is definite heat between the two and tonight's bout should produce more than sparks.

The Cardiff Giant has suffered a bad elbow twist and will not be recovered in time for tonight's bout with Sliding Billy Hansen. His place will be taken by Wee Bill Donnelly, the roughest rubber-man the mat has seen. O'Donnell agreed to sub for the Cardiffian Thursday because he is anxious to see the spectacular Sliding Billy and gain main bouts here. Ed Meske will be welcomed back in the first bout to test the brilliant Swede Tug Carlsen.

Vancouver Leafs Win Cage Title In Three Straight

Vancouver, May 27. (CP)—Vancouver's old guard Dunbar basketballers fished its right to the title of Canada's outstanding present-day basketball team.

A decisive 83-64 triumph over Winnipeg Amateurs Collegiate Thursday night wrapped up a three-point-and-a-third consecutive Dominion title for Vancouver Clover Leafs.

Clover Leafs, whose compact polished style of play reminded Western Canada experts strongly of the great Winnipeg Tuxies of 20 years ago, disposed of the highly-rated Windsor Club in three straight games in the best-of-five final.

It was the first time since the Montreal Sportsmen's trophy went up for competition back in 1925 that any team had captured it three successive years. Dunbar (Dunbar Old Boys Grad) Nanals said they won it on form.

The Leafs, a smoothly oiled outfit that has probably more balance and height than any other Canadian basketball team, would not accept the $969 title by default a month ago when Windsor said it couldn't make it.

They marched until the Purple Raiders had completed college examinations and then underwent a $4,000 series that finished in the early hours Wednesday after the first contest and then fell pray to the clever Leafs.

Leaf Coach Ralph (Hunk) Henderson, a slight, nimble Irishman Sandy Robertson and Bobby Hass to shadow Freddie Hill.

Windsor's second high-scoring ace, and they never let him stride free.

Thomas still led scores throughout the series and night he added 22 points. Had he been allowed to pace the pack, Coach Henderson said the series would have been "tight."

Big Bob Pickrel, Leafs' six foot six inch centre, shook loose from Thomas to lead the Vancouver team with 18 points. Candy Robertson screened in 15 and Dominion general Ron Weber connected for 12 even dozen.

Bill Kohlman fired 11 points for Windsor.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Illustrated is the difference between positioning the ball for a lofted iron shot and positioning the ball for a shot with straight-faced club. With the straight - faced No. 1 or driving club you want the ball well forward of center, because you wish to impact between clubhead and ball to occur when the clubhead is fast starting to rise, with the highly lofted irons you want exactly just the reverse. With the lofted irons you position the ball back of center in order that contact between clubhead and ball will occur just before the clubhead has reached the low point in the arc of the swing. You want the ball to be impact at the clubhead will hit the ball on the downswing. Then the loft of the club face can give you the flight called for by that particular lofted club.

In short irons you are shooting for placement and a specific distance. And since I am standing down, the impact will give the ball a bit of undercut so that the yardage secured with this club will be almost all flight and very little will be opposed to a shot with a straight-faced club, where distance is what you play.

Unknown Pro Waltzes off With Medalist Honors

Richmond, Va., May 27 (AP)—Ray Wade Hill, an unknown "orphan" golf professional from Lynchburg, Va., will today be crowned "king" of the United States Professional Golfers' Association tournament.

Hill waltzed off with medalist honors in the first tournament Thursday by touring the 6,677-yard Hermitage Country Club layout in a four under par 67 for a 36 hole qualifying score of 138 — two strokes over the medal record.

Only twice since 1931 has the star who carded the best score in the qualifying play managed to take home the crown at the close of match competition. Olin Dutra turned the trick in 1932, Byron Nelson, co-medalist with Johnny Revolta in 1945, also was crowned at the finish.

A single stroke behind Hill were Jim Ferrier, Sharon, Pa. medalist laurels was alammin' Sammy Snead, the long-driving masters' champion from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Snead played the back nine in three under par 32 yesterday for a 36 hole total of 137.

Another unknown like Hill, Howard Schmidt, of Chino, Calif. finished two strokes with a 138 as did Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N.C., and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N.C. George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., had a 139.

Today's final round of match play included 64 players with qualifying 36-hole scores of 149 or better.

Missing from the match play picture was one former champion Vic Ghezzi, the 1941 titlist from Englewood, N.J., who had a 150. Other name players failing to qualify were Dick Metz of Douglaston, N.Y., Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., and Tony Penna of Cincinnati with 150s; Chick Harbert of Detroit and Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., with 151s.

The surprising Hill, who quit his job at the Shreveport Country Club a month ago because of salary differences, picked up $250 as medalist.

50 FOOT FALL FROM ROOF FATAL

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 26 — (CP)— Raymond Brossard, 19 Toronto was instantly killed today when he fell 50 feet from the roof of the North American Cyanamid Plant. He was replacing the roof. His two brothers, Gerald and John, were employed on the same job. Dr. Lorne Whittaker, Provincial pathologist will make an autopsy.

The scowling gent grimacing at the handsome mugsie of Whisper Billy Watson would never at first glance be taken for a motion picture star. Well, he's Wee Willie Davis, as tough an hombre as ever flashed a mug on the silver screen and made make-believe how to a Hollywood siren. He has in fact appeared in several pictures notably "Keep the Wild Wind." That was in the Land of Make-up and Make-believe. Friday night, there'll be no make-up and no make-believe when he tangles with the Watson. It will be pre-meditated intent to separate the Whisper Willie, Watson, that is, from his torso, his political leanings and his carcase in general in the main bout in Memorial Arena. But the Whisper has other ideas. He't got his sights lined on that British Empire titular bauble and no hulking rough-house star or no movie studio is going to stop him. It should be enough to give you an idea of what will happen come Friday.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 27 — (CP)—In the sports world of baseball, summer and winter sport schedules has been more and more pre-announced. Most recent example was early this month when the International baseball League openers were being played at Toronto and Montreal and Ottawa and Buffalo. Regina Capitals were still sweating out the Canadian senior hockey championship.

At long last, Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan verifies. Here are early stirrings among the sports hierarchy to remedy the situation. It's a small beginning, but, he says:

"The Canadian Amateur Basketball Association has finally awakened to the fact that winter is the time for playing basketball). As a result, provincial and dominion playdowns will be ended at least a couple of weeks earlier in the future, assuring the winding of activities by the end of April at the latest."

Stories of the superstitions of athletes are legion. Cec (Peter) Hoogkamer Perdue tells a story about the pet peeve of Bobo Newsom, veteran baseball pitcher who has played on just about every major league club in the land. Bobo wouldn't pitch if there were any loose pebbles or other miniature pieces of rubbish around the mound. And, says Cec:

"He sent for a great Cleo one day against the White Sox and had them blitzes for seven heats. Jimmy Dykes might have been going to talkative flinger and finally he noticed Newsom, as he went out inning, picking up a chip of paper and stuffing it in his pocket.

Paper Downfall

"Dykes called Zeke Bonura, playing first base for the Sox, to tear up some paper into fine bits and scatter them near the mound next time he was coming in.

"Zeke did and Bobo was angrily trying to pick up every piece when the umpires ordered him to start pitching. He blew up and the Sox got him for five runs."

Ready to Concede American Victory In British Open

Portmarnock, Ireland, May 27 —(AP)— Ready to concede an American victory, Irish golf fans today are finding it hard to choose between Frank Stranahan and Willie Turnesa for the British amateur title.

Stranahan, the Toledo strong boy, won the crown a year ago and Turnesa, the little Mamaroneck, N.Y., veteran, was the winner in 1947. One or the other seems certain to make it three straight for the United States.

They play quarter final matches this morning and if successful the semi-finals will be played and final play in the afternoon. Tomorrow brings the 36-hole final.

The quarter finals send Stranahan against Sam McCready, a Gordon Fishman, and Turnesa against Mike Power of Ireland.

Stranahan Thursday disposed of two opponents with out losing a hole in the 24 he had to play. He downed Jim Lorrigo of London 7 and 5, then ouited Dawvid Blair, a Scottish army major 8 and 7. Turnesa defeated Robert Walker of Scotland, 5 and 3, then came from behind to beat Ireland's Jordan Scannell, two up.

Stranahan, a studious, earnest player specializes in a long game. He prefers wide deliberation and has been known, even when beating some of the top pros, to keep study before for advice regarding his own game.

Wee Willie, master of the short irons and putting, is regarding as one of the deadliest of match players. His little guy is tougher when forced to come from behind.

Turf Faithful Concede Chance To Three Horses

Toronto, May 27 (CP)— The race entries this afternoon will show just how many horses will probably run in the historic Epsom Handicap at Woodbine Race Track saturday, but so far as the turf faithful are concerned there's little doubt but three horses in the list.

General opinion among trainers is that the race lies between George McCullagh's Speedy Irish and E. P. Taylor's Epic, with a threat from John Stuart's Bunty Lee.

Those three horses have captured all the attention in pre-race speculation of the 90th renewal of the oldest continuously run race in North America.

The weather question was unsettled early this morning, district forecaster was cool, cloudy weather with showers until late tonight; weather if fair and warm for the first time Saturday afternoon wasn't so good.

The Ontario Jockey Club now has a five stall section which can be hooked up to the regular starting gate, to give an automatic break to 17 starters for the mile and eighth classic.

First Raced in 1860

Depending on the size of the field, the race will be worth from $15,000 to $17,000. This includes the Canadian Derby which is worth 50 guineas and $10,000 added by the O.J.C.

The guineas, which give the race its royal classification, were first presented by Queen Victoria, the race, Canada's derby for three year olds has been run every year, but has been widened in recent years to include any Canadian bred, two-year-old not restricted to Ontario breds.

The running of the last few weeks have come in for close scrutiny. None of the Plate trials this year may safely be a three-year-old except in the Plate trials, but the trials run last Saturday were at only six furlongs.

But allowing for the shorter distance, the Plate trial results still had to be reckoned with, and they show Epic as the favorite. The trial win split in two divisions. Epic won in 1:12 4-5, with Bunty Lee second and Bobsets third. Speedy Irish won the other trial in 1:12 flat, Bunty Jewel second and Robertcraig third.

How they'll shape up over the longer Plate distance remains to be seen.

Chuck Connors Sailing Along At .386 Clip

(By The Associated Press)

Chuck Connors, happy-go-lucky first baseman of the Montreal Royals, is making life unhappy for International League pitchers.

Connors, reported to be in disagreement with the parent Brooklyn organization because of his flashy and quick wit on and off the playing field, is proving he's deadserious with a bat in his hands.

The lanky, year-old infielder, is sailing along at a .386 gait for the Royals.

The colorful Connors sparked the Royals in a 16-5 triumph over the Rochester Red Wings Thursday night, driving home five runs on a grand slam and three single. Connors has knocked home 18 runs in 13 games.

Montreal's other hero, Lev Ducak. Don Hile and Willie Mcdonald for six hits in support of the season in the seventh.

Montreal's game between Syracuse and Newark and Jersey City and Baltimore were rained out. Tomorrow Maple Leaf and Buffalo Bisons were not scheduled.

May End Dispute Over Maple Leaf In Beaver's Mouth

Toronto, May 27 (CP) — A month-long controversy over a maple leaf in the mouth of a beaver may be settled when the Toronto Board of Education meets tonight.

Some time ago the Board decided that the maple leaf in the mouth of the beaver on a proposed crest threw it off balance.

Crest designer Scott Carter told the Board his crest conformed to the laws of heraldry and he felt it was in the best traditions of the heraldic design.

He said the beaver was "not seeing the maple leaf," merely holding it in the mouth."

Director of Education Dr. C. C. Goldring said that he and Mr. Carter agreed the maple leaf might be removed entirely if desired. He said he thought this a "good suggestion."

Charges Denied By Superintendent

Elora, May 27 — (CP)—Charges of stagnation and ill - treatment made yesterday by two residents of the Wellington County Home for the Aged were called "utterly ridiculous" Thursday by W. B. Howes, superintendent of the home.

"We never keep our old people under lock and key," said the superintendent.

They are free to wander about as they please during the day but at night we do lock all doors because we can't expect our staff to be wandering around in the dark looking for those who like to take night walks."

"As far as the meals are concerned, our people get the best food possible," he added.

The men were there were not quite bread at meals but had their teeth taken away from them so meat was unchewable, Howes denied both charges.

Hollywood, May 27. (AP)—What kind of girl is Prince Aly Khan marrying today?

She is a child of show business, since she can remember; she has been aimed at stardom. She can't tell you what Disraeli said to Gladstone, but she probably can recite the figures her pictures grossed in Des Moines.

She is not an intellectual, but she has made strides in educating herself. During her marriage to Orson Welles, a friend once observed her reading a volume on geopolitics. She carefully dirded the words she didn't understand and wrote the pertinent meanings in the margin.

A Liberal

She is a Democrat. Thus also is the Welles' influence. During the marriage she lent her name to several Liberal campaigns.

She is not newsconscious, but she knows the value of publicity to her career.

She is a chain smoker, although she smokes little of a cigaret. She drinks only to be sociable.

She is loyal to her co-workers. Whenever they got in trouble with the studio, she tried to take the rap.

She has a sense of humor. Like many show business people, it takes the form of practical jokes.

For an earlier view of Rita Hayworth, I called on Laura Rollinshead-Meyer, principal of her junior high school.

"Rita was one of the kindest, most motherly girls I ever knew. "As a student? Well, she did the best she could, which wasn't too good."

Miss Meyer admitted she never would have imagined that little Marguerite Cansino would some day marry a prince.

The Kibitzer

There is a very good reason why a bridge player who bids should be forcing for one round. All you have to do is consider its purpose and the logic of the situation will appeal to you.

It is important for a pair of partners to decide on their best trump suit, if any. How are they best able to do this? Only by telling each other what biddable suits they are holding.

Thus, it is an essential part of bidding to reveal biddable suits. Only by telling each other about all their biddable suits can a pair decide which suit is their best.

When a player has announced all his biddable suits, partner has a choice. He knows the one to assist. Even though he may have an assist for a first mentioned suit, he may also have support for another.

If frequently happens that support for the second suit is better than support for the first. Or that the division of trumps in the second suit is better for them than in the first.

It is, therefore, evident that the mention of new suits is the first consideration of partners. Assuming, of course, that they have strength enough to bid. Consider his bids.

Thus, a takeout to a new suit takes precedence over any other type of bid. If, therefore, a player assists a suit or bids no-trump, it may be assumed that he has no new suit to show.

Considering all this, when a partner bids a suit he may have an assist or a no-trump bid in reserve. For this reason, a takeout asks partner for another chance to bid.

South opens with a heart and north responds a spade with this hand:

♠ A 7 8 4
♥ K 5 2
♦ A 4 2

Is north worried? No. The takeout to a new suit forces south to bid again. Heart support can be shown later.

Hold nothing back from your partner.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page, and ma said, Learn Louise Lithia was very intriating on the radio this afternoon, Willum.

I'm sorry I wasn't home taking a nap at the time, pop said, and ma said, She talked about child psycology and what a grate mistake it is to deliberatly strike children. The only possible excuse for striking them is when they've made you so angry that the action is purely reflex and they could well understand that the action is uncontrolable and at the same time justified. But a child who is continually being slapped with deliberate intention will get the idea that cruelty and tyranny are normal human expressions, so he'll probably grow up to be a small indicator of some kind, ma said.

G, ma, supposing I sneaked in back of you and scraped a skreeky nale on a peace of tin, would it make you so mad you'd give me an uncontrollable reflex slap? I said, and ma said, Well, sutch a thawt, what an idea. I sincerely hope I'd have enough of mind enough to restrain myself sufficiently to ask you to resist without resorting to bodily violence, she said.

But jiminies, ma, suppose I actually deliberatly did it again after you warned me? I said, and ma said, Well really, I mean, really, the very notion that you'd calmly allow sutch a malicious thawt to enter your head is enough to make me give you an uncontrollable slap rite now, and I'm sure any sensible rycologist would say I was justified.

Well okay, ma, I mean gosh, I haven't even got a peace of tin in my pockit, or a nale either, so back, ma, G roozelem, I said, and ma said: Now never mind, the subject is exhawsted, and I strongly advise you not to revive it.

Which I didn't.

MYSTERY BLAST

Windsor, N.S. (CP) — Local garage mechanics are still puzzled over an explosion which happened when a mechanic, Pete McKinnon, applied a blow torch to a round iron ball he was attaching to the top of a flag-pole. The ball shattered into so many pieces the cause of the blast has not been found. No one was hurt.

FIGURES IN FAMOUS MURDER TRIAL

A murder trial exciting great interest in the U.S. at present is that of Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Rutledge has testified that the man her husband is alleged to have slain, Byron Hattman, seduced her. The case is due to go to a jury soon. Dr. and Mrs. Rutledge are shown as they waited to give evidence in court.—Central Press Canadian.

TORNADO MAKES BASEMENT OF ATTIC

One of the tornadoes which ripped through the Middlewest caused this freakish damage at Woodview, Illinois, where four persons were killed. C. E. Fry stands in front of his house which was picked up bodily by the storm and plunked down on its roof. The tenants were not at home when the storm hit.—Central Press Canadian.

Pigeons in Gore Park, Hamilton, are considered a nuisance by many citizens, but to Maria Schroeder of 242 Wellington St. they are her pets. They land on her shoulders, on her head and are rewarded with peanuts. One will even peck peanut from between her lips.—Globe and Mail.

SOVIET NEWSPAPERS BECOME BURNING ISSUE IN BERLIN

A Berlin train becomes a battleground as striking railroad workers set fire to Soviet newspapers (some flutter from window at right) aboard the Communist-manned cars. Several killed and 700 injured is toll of rioting in the dispute. Workers demand pay in west marks instead of east marks, worth only a fraction as much. Eighteen thousand workers are on strike. Western powers accuse Communists of prolonging the disturbances.—Central Press Canadian.

VICTOR REUTHER EXPECTED TO LIVE

This photo of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Reuther was made when they flew to London some time ago to attend the Anglo-American conference on production. Mr. Reuther, brother of the president of the United Automobile Workers in the U.S., Walter Reuther, is director of education of that union. He was shot in the face by a would-be assassin. Two charges from a shotgun being fired through a window as they sat at breakfast in their home in suburban Detroit. Reuther is in serious condition. The crime closely paralleled the attempted murder of brother Walter, who also was shot through a window and seriously wounded last year. Victor has had one eye removed, is expected to survive.—Central Press Canadian.

Houstons, Stewart-Warner Win Opening Tussles in Commercial Softball League

A fair — sized crowd, confined to the spring of the most part by near — frigid weather, witnessed the opening of the Commercial Softball League season last night at the Alemite Field when last year's champion Houston "Klotholers" downed a scrappy SBH Oil squad 6-4 in the opener, and the Stewart – Warner punched out a 6-3 victory over McFarlane Woodenware in the nightcap.

Pre-game ceremonies had league president Harold Bawden at bat, Parks Board Chairman, Harry Rollins, pitching, and league convener, Bill Dennis, doing the receiving. Mr. Rollins expressed the Mayor's regrets at being unable to attend the opening game.

Shell Oil opened the scoring in the top half of the first frame when lead-off man Miller singled to left field. He was driven home on a towering triple to left by Art Empy for the Oilers' only run of the game.

Houstons went one up in their end of the first counting twice on a double, a sacrifice, a walk and a single. A double and two singles netted the Knotholers two more in the third and they added their final tally in the sixth on a walk, a passed ball, and a single.

Both Go Route

Both pitchers went the route receiving almost perfect support from their mates afield. Youthful Bob Hunter in claiming his first victory, walked one, struck out five, and gave up nine hits to one run. Reid toiled for the losers, walking two, striking out one, and giving up seven hits for five runs.

Best at the plate for Houstons was lead-off man Woods with a double and two singles in three trips, and Spafford with two for three. Art Empy with a triple and double in four trips led the parade for Shell Oil.

Allowed Two Hits

In the night finale under the lights, Harold Dracup slow-balled the Stewart Warner nine to a 6-3 triumph over McFarlane Woodenware. Dracup worked cautiously, setting down the Woodenware crew with two hits over the seven innings. He walked nine but claimed 14 via the strikeout route.

Woodenware opened the scoring in the top half of the first when lead-off man Peters was walked. He went to third on Scanlan's double and scored on an error to shortstop Leforte. Stewart Warner evened the count in their half of the first when Leforte who had singled came home on two errors.

Woodenware took a short-lived lead in the second, counting once on a walk, a stolen base and an error. Bertram slid home for Stewart Warner in the third to tie the game for the second time.

Allette took the lead for good in the fourth when Shaw homered to left field with one aboard.

Two walks, a single, and a long fly gave McFarlane's their final tally in the fifth. Stewart Warner garnered single tallies in the fifth and sixth for their win victory.

Baldwin worked well for the losers for four innings, walking three, striking out eight, and giving up six hits for five runs. Young came in to relieve him in the fifth and in two innings walked four, struck out four and gave up no hits for two runs.

Best at the plate for the winners was Leforte with a single and double in four trips.

Teen-Age Youths Assist Police To Make Arrest

Toronto, May 27 (CP)— Suburban York Township police aided by four teen-age youths Thursday night chased and caught a juvenile who is charged with indecent assault on an 18-year-old girl.

The girl told police she was attacked in front of her home. She screamed and fought the boy off, finally breaking away from him and rushing into the house.

Driving through the streets of the district in a police car, the girl identified the youth, and he was caught after a short chase.

STRIKERS KEEP

His words underscored how the strike has become a big factor in the cold war between Russia on the one hand, and Britain, the United States, and France on the other, even while the four-power foreign ministers are meeting in Paris in an effort to settle the German problem.

Stay All Trade

The United States army stopped all trains at Helmstedt, on the Soviet-zone border, because of the strike-caused traffic jam. Thirty-five loaded trains lay idle on the single track that links Berlin with Western Germany.

Inside the Berlin metropolitan area, 1,500 loaded freight cars are stalled for lack of someone to unload them or switch them to the proper trucks. Supply conditions in Berlin are just as bad as they were during the Russian blockade of the city.

The Western Allies accused the Russians of using the strike as a means to hold West-Berlin blockaded by rail. They take the position that the Russian railway managers had ample warnings and could have headed off the walkout.

The Russians contend the western powers are supporting the strike as a means to keep Germany split and to create disorder.

Strikers control switches and rail installations in the western sectors of the city—those Britain, the United States and France ordered Soviet-controlled trains out and replaced them with western police.

Negotiations for a settlement remain deadlocked, the western rejected an offer by the Soviet-controlled railway management to meet their main demands—payment of wages in west-marks, four times as valuable as the Russian backed east marks they previously drew.

Washington Spotlight:

Election Campaign for 1950 Already Taking Shape in U.S.

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 27 — (CP)—

The country — wide 1950 election campaign already is taking shape. Organized labor in the United States is seeing to that.

The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations are planning a new drive for the kind of legislation the unions want. Their strategy is to elect another Democratic United States Congress, but one which will waste no time writing President Truman's "fair deal" into law.

The present 81st Congress, although dominated by Democrats, has made little progress in that direction.

That is why labor is looking ahead 17 months to November, 1950, when a new House of Representatives will be chosen and 33 of the Senate seats will be contested. Truman and his administration will remain in office until 1953; between 1950 and 1953 the "fair deal" could be made a reality.

Labor's chief complaint right now is the juggling of Truman's pre - election promise to repeal the Taft - Hartley labor law. This legislation survived a recent onslaught in the House of Representatives and still is on the books.

A new attempt will be launched — perhaps within a month — to replace this law, but the A.F.L. and C.I.O. aren't at all pleased about Sir Stafford Cripps, Nor is Truman himself.

He promised that the Taft - Hartley measure would be killed; he's back in the White House in a large extent because of the backing Labor gave him last November, and he intends to carry out that pledge.

Won't Sit Back

But even if the present Congress does come through with a labor act acceptable to the unions, the A.F.L. and C.I.O. won't sit back and take it easy. They want action, too, on national health insurance, housing, civil rights.

SMEAR CAMPAIGN AGAINST C.C.F. SAYS COLDWELL

Coldwell Says There Will be No Coalition With Other Parties

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, May 28 (CP) — M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, predicted here last night that his party soon will be subjected to "smear" campaign, but said it had no fear of that type of attack.

Addressing a C.C.F. rally in this Ontario steel centre, he said he knew the campaign was in the offing because business men who were members of the party already have received appeals for funds "to wage a campaign of vilification against us as in 1945 and again dust the mail boxes with propaganda."

At the same time, he declared his opposition to coalition with either the Liberal or the Progressive Conservative parties in the new House of Commons to be elected June 27. "No matter what the outcome of the election, there would be "no compromise, no coalition."

The C.C.F. was responsible to "nobody but the people who elect us to parliament." But the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives were responsible to "big business interests" which supplied campaign funds.

He recalled that H.G. Hilton, president of the Steel Company of Canada, had told a C.C.F. member of parliament under questioning before the commons committee on prices last year that he had contributed to the campaign funds of both the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

Turning to his prediction of a developing campaign, he named campaign director B.A. Trestrail of Toronto and Gladstone Murray, Toronto policy counsellor, as men who were playing "big business for suckers" because they work for the old parties for a month before an election and receive enough money to live in comfort for the whole year.

Mr. Coldwell, who now carried his campaign to the mining areas of northern Ontario, pledged the C.C.F. to enactment of labor legislation which would "end delays, settle disputes, and ensure social and economic justice." The country badly needed a national labor code which would protect the worker.

"I believe labor has finally learned the utter futility of playing in either of the old parties and I am certain it will elect a complete slate of labor candidates in the industrial cities of Canada.

ALL-NIGHT PEACE TALKS LEAVE STRIKE UNSETTLED

Two Issues Hold Up Unexpected Settlement

Detroit, May 28. (AP)—Thirteen hours of continuous all-night peace talks left the nearly 24-day old Ford strike still unsettled today.

Negotiators called off the long session at 10.25 a.m. E.D.T. and set another for 9 a.m. tonight.

Two last-minute choice of an arbitrator to settle the dispute over manpower on assembly lines, and the discipling of 35 Ford workers after the strike began, held up an unexpected settlement.

Exhausted negotiators for both sides left the conference room with word that the choice of an arbitrator was the main source of the deadlock.

Nevertheless, hopes were still high that the crippling strike which has made 10,000 Ford workers idle soon will be over.

They resumed conference Friday night after five hours of talks earlier yesterday in two separate sessions.

Selections of the man to arbitrate the "speed-up" issue and a union demand for the reinstatement of 21 discharged or suspended workers were reported the only unsolved matters.

Agreements for both sides said Ford wanted an industrial engineer as arbitrator and the union opposed this.

The union has claimed heretofore that the "human factor" involved in assembly line production rules could not properly be judged by a "technical" expert.

Production rates and manpower on the Ford assembly lines have been the core of the dispute.

Ford argued at the start that arbitration should deal only with the question of whether work rates impaired the "health or safety" of employees.

On the other hand the union said it was a question of whether management could "require" a man to work at a rate above "100 per cent of established standards."

The U.A.W. charged the company had done this in violation of an understanding.

The union also asked:

"Does the company under the contract have the right to require an employee to perform his work assignment on each unit in less time than the company's time study shows it should be done."

Ripley Noted Cartoonist Dies

New York, May 28 .(AP)— Robert L. Ripley, 55, who gave the title Believe It or Not to a one shot sports cartoon that grew into one of the world's most widely syndicated features, died Friday.

Mr. Ripley entered the Harkness Pavilion of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center Thursday after a brief illness. The hospital said he died of an acute heart attack.

Only last Tuesday night he appeared on his weekly television show, latest phase in the fabulous career of the Believe It or Not idea.

It may be started the cartoon in 1918 it had grown into a weekly then a daily feature appearing in a single newspaper feature to a chain of 30 papers and later to scores in the United States. It also was widely circulated in Canada.

Aged Man Who Lived Miserably Left Fortune of $320,000 in Rusty Boiler

Montreal, May 28 (CP) — The story of a fortune of $320,000, hidden in a rusty hot water boiler by an aged man, came to light here today, just a month after his death.

The money was mostly in small notes.

Revelation of the fortune, now deposited in a bank by the municipal estate, was another strange aspect to the life of a strange, miserly man.

Joseph Napoleon Belanger was often seen on the streets of Montreal wearing old, shabby clothes; his shoes laced with wrapping string. He was known to many persons only as "Hot Dog" because he was always eating them.

Belanger died April 29 from burns suffered in a fire at a shed within his home on Hutchison Street. He insisted on repairing the shed himself to save money.

Last October Belanger and his 35-year-old niece, Miss Alice Belanger, were nearly asphyxiated in the same flames from a stove in their home. They both recovered but after also being burned.

The niece said that in addition to the money found, it now is thought the estate will be properly valued at possibly more than $350,000.

Belanger was said by acquaintances to have lived in a terrible pinch-penny, saving every bit of money he could. He left the modest one-car cellar boiler fortune was largely made up of bills ranging up to some of $100 denomination.

Belanger was formerly an employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He was born in St. Pie De Bagot, St. Hyacinthe, 64 years ago. Until he became engineer on freight trains and in his later years before retirement he was engineer of yard engines in the Outremont yards at Montreal.

NEW PROVINCE HOLDS ELECTION

Newfoundlanders have held their first provincial elections in history. Progressive Conservative and Liberal candidates opposed each other as in other provinces. Harry Mews, Progressive Conservative leader, headed the anti-Confederation forces defeated in referendum by the Confederation party of Joseph Smallwood, now Liberal leader. Fishermen such as the one above, find elections and politics their main topic of conversation, were expected to turn out almost 100 per cent to cast their votes.—Central Press Canadian.

Guests Toast Rita, Aly In Champagne

Cannes, France, May 28 (AP) — Newlyweds Rita Hayworth and Prince Aly Khan secluded themselves today in their luxurious Chateau De L'Horizon, guarding well the secret of their honeymoon plans.

Gone were the gay, beautifully-dressed guests who Friday toasted their wedding in champagne (the Prince provided 15 bottles per guest), strolled around the scented swimming pool and tasted caviar and other delicacies.

The Prince and Princess said they would stay at the Chateau late this afternoon, but beyond that their plans are their own secret.

Where will they spend their honeymoon?

Well, Rita giggled Friday, it all will involve some travelling. And chimed in to say that he hoped to attend the English Derby at Epsom Downs June 4 and "I'm sure my wife will come with me."

Will there be a Moslem religious service?

Yes, the couple said, probably in a few days in Paris.

The Prince is heir to the spiritual leadership of the Ismaili Moslems now held by his father, the Aga Khan.

Rita was born a Roman Catholic. If she still considers herself one, a Vatican source said Friday, the Moslem marriage service would automatically excommunicate her.

The French civil ceremony, performed Friday by Communist Mayor Paul Derigon in the town hall of the village of Vallauris, is not recognized by the church.

Still to be decided is where the couple will live.

Aly Khan owns homes in India, France, England and Ireland.

But Rita has said, and Aly has agreed, that she will continue with her career in Hollywood.

3,000 Canadian Boy Scouts to Hold Jamboree

Ottawa, May 28 (CP)—A hurdle to get there still goes up near here in July when 3,000 Canadian Boy Scouts—and visiting scouts from the United States—gather for the first Canadian Boy Scout Jamboree.

On Connaught rifle ranges, 14 miles east of Ottawa, the Scouts will spend eight days in camp from July 16-24.

The Jamboree's purpose, Maj.-Gen. Dan Spry said Friday, is to "help produce the sort of citizens we would like to have around us."

Gen. Spry, chief executive commissioner of the Boy Scouts Association, spoke at a luncheon for the press here of the Jamboree.

It will take three days to assemble and dismantle the tent city which will include a hospitals, a canteen, postal and telegraph services.

It will take three days to assemble and dismantle the tent city, which will include a hospitals, a canteen, postal and telegraph services and a weather bureau.

There now are 105,278 Boy Scouts in Canada, and all-time record. Gen. Spry said. But only first-class scouts, between the ages of 14 and 17 1-2 are eligible to attend. In many cases, they will pay their own expenses but service clubs, civic organizations and public subscriptions are expected to pay some of the cost.

Viscount Alexander, Canada's Governor-General, will open the Jamboree July 16 after the march past. The eight days will be recorded in a documentary film by the National Film Board.

700-Pound Case Of Butter Topples Over, Kills Worker

Ottawa, May 28 — (CP) — John Ball, 49-year-old dairy employee, was crushed to death early today when a 700-pound case of butter toppled over him in a manually-run elevator cage.

Ball had loaded the butter onto a wagon on the second floor of the dairy and was descending to the first in the elevator when the heavy load apparently became unbalanced, toppled over and pinned him to the cage wall.

He was discovered by another employee when the 700 pounds of butter failed to show up. Fire axes were used for almost an hour to cut a hole into the elevator cage which had stopped midway between the second and first floor.

Police said an inquest will be held.

BRITISH PRESS MOSTLY APPROVES EISLER RELEASE

Matter of Principle, Says Justice Upheld

London, May 28 (Reuters) — Press comment in today's British morning newspapers on the release by a British court of Gerhart Eisler, German-born Communist inquisitor, generally supports the British action as a matter of principle.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian says:

"There will be general relief in this country that the application for the extradition of Gerhart Eisler has not succeeded in the courts. The matter was decided on purely legal grounds and without any political sentiment. It was a surprisingly weak case legally.

May Cause Strain

"The American officials put an undue strain on good relations with this country by the long time which led to the removal of the man from a ship under duress. We do not like this sort of thing, even when the man concerned is a Communist ball-bumper."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph comments: "Eisler may indeed well ask himself whether similar treatment would have been meted out in analogous circumstances to any of those countries to which he owes spiritual allegiance."

"In America the decision has aroused some disappointment, but will be reflected. Pro respected. There, as in this country, the inviolability of legal progresses is fully recognized."

Case Badly Handled

The Liberal News Chronicle says: "This case has been badly handled from the beginning. It is not to the credit of the American Government that Britain was requested with political motives in mind—and none will do but that has motives existed.

"British justice has been fully exonerated by the magistrate's decision which set Eisler free."

The Communist Daily Worker, however, declares:

"The British government has yet to justify its extraordinary procedure in allowing Eisler to be forcibly shipped to the Polish vessel.

"There is no precedent in British history for this act and the British people must make it clear to the politicians that it must not be allowed to happen again."

Four Liberals, One Independent Elected in Nfld.

Conservatives in Lead In Two Dual Districts

St. John's, Nfld., May 28 — (CP)—Four Liberals and one Independent were elected in Newfoundland first provincial election on the basis of results coming in from Friday's balloting.

The voting was for 27 seats representing 24 electoral districts.

The Independent was Peter Cashin, in Fortyland, finance minister in the last Conservative government in Newfoundland back in the 1920s.

At the same time, Progressive Conservatives were in the lead in the two dual districts, four seats, of St. John's East and Harbor Main-Bell Island.

Mr. Cashin, outspoken critic of Confederation, was elected over Liberal and Progressive Conservative opposition.

There was still no count from Newfoundland's third two-seat riding — St. John's West — where Progressive Conservative Leader Harry Mews was a candidate.

Neither was there any result from Bonavista North where Liberal leader Joseph Smallwood was a candidate.

In Placentia-St. Mary's, M. J. Simms, police chief, defeated Newfoundland's interim cabinet, led by his Progressive Conservative opponent by only two votes.

Popular Vote

Liberals had piled up a popular vote of nearly two to one over the Progressive Conservatives in the eight districts heard from. Progressive Conservatives held a substantial lead in St. John's East and a slight edge in Harbor Main-Bell Island.

Smallwood's party won with large majorities in Harbor Grace, Port De Grave, Grand Falls and Conception Bay South Vedre.

The Liberals had 11,840 of the popular vote up to noon, compared with 6,924 for the Progressive Conservatives.

The vote in some places was heavier than in last summer's referendum when nearly 90 per cent of eligible voters turned out to decide the issue of confederation.

Children Give Fine Performance In First Annual Music Festival

A large and enthusiastic audience jammed the auditorium of the Queen Alexandra School Friday evening for the first annual Spring Festival of the South Hastings Educational Association.

The overflow crowd, many of whom had to stand in the hall, saw and heard a sparkling two hour program of songs and dances by pupils of the schools right from the opening number. The various schools taking part moved on and off stage with an order and despatch that left little to be desired.

Following "O Canada", president of the Association, Mr. J. W. Sargeant addressed the assembly with a few brief remarks.

The Foxboro senior room, taught by Mrs. M. Hayton, opened the program with a medley of two part songs. They were followed by a choir from the Trenton schools, conducted by music supervisor George Downs.

An Irish jig performed by fifty costumed little boys and girls from Point Anne presented a pleasing stage picture. Another little dancer was taught by Miss Jean Aylesworth. An all girl choir from Frankford Public School, taught by Mrs. M. Rogers sang a medley of two-part songs. Miss Cay "Alices"

Nine coy "Alices" from school Number 10, Sidney, presented a long flowing blue gowns and huge hats and the entire group was taught by Mrs. Iva Rikley.

Shelva Ann Bell and Carol Ann Cummins, two tiny tots, from No. 4 Tyendinaga, sang, with gestures, "Down in Toonerville Trolley At Your Yard." Mrs. Helen Shetler was their teacher.

The choir from North Thurlow Schools led by Mrs. Edilia Moody sang "Lead Kindly Light."

The "Wedding of the Painted Doll" number, with bridesmaids, bride, groom, best man, and minister, was staged and directed by pupils of the Cannifton school. The choir then became a rhythm band that played to the accompaniment of the same number. Mrs. Marion McTaggert is their teacher.

"Bless This House," sang the choir from No. 4 Sidney, led by Miss Ruth Palmer. Soloists were Charles Fraser and Joan Jeffery.

Band of Irish Minstrels

A delightfully costumed band of Irish minstrels appeared next to sing some Irish favorites. A trio of boys, Jack and Harold Bradnock, and Jack Terrillion, wearing green capes and big black sombreros, sang "The Old Shillelagh My Father Brought From Ireland" while shaking the traditional weapon at the audience to demonstrate its prowess. The boys then did a creditable Irish-lid rendition of McNamara's Band that left the audience shouting for encores. The group was trained by Mrs. Agnes Loveless.

Four new tots from Cole Cannifton's junior room led by Mrs Hilda Dewey sang "Three Little Fishes" but entitled "My Piddle."

Pupils from the Johnstown school, directed by Mrs. Aileen Booker, presented a song and dance version of "Pretty Little Spring Flowers." Soloists were Marion Bush and Mary Grulick.

A quintet from the Quinteview school, taught by Mrs. Mary Campbell, sang "Harvest Song."

The choral part of the program ended with the singing of a well-balanced and well-trained girls' choir from Trenton, led by Music Supervisor George Downs.

Offers Congratulations

Dr. R. B. Macklem, Public School Inspector for South Hastings introduced Miss E. Jean Public School Inspector for Belleville, who conducted the members of the association to Queen Alexandra School on behalf of the Spring Festival Association. He congratulated the association on the festival which had just been presented.

Dr. Macklem then introduced to the audience the music supervisors who were responsible for the training of the pupils who participated in the festival. The festival closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Canada is Playing Host To World Farmers' Conference

Guelph, Ont., May 28 — (CP)— Delegates from some 30 nations are gathering for a 10-day conference, beginning Tuesday, at Ontario Agricultural College on the world's most pressing problems will be sought.

For the first time in her history, Canada is playing host to a world farmers' conference. The delegates are all members of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers. They will, among other things, attempt to suggest a partial solution to the age - old problem of food surpluses on one side of the world and starvation on the other.

Host organization for the conference at the Ontario Agricultural College here, is the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. Its president, H. H. Hannam, is third vice-president of the International Organization.

Sir James Turner, president of the International Federation and president of the British Farmers' Union, will preside. Canada's Agriculture Minister, J. G. Gardiner will deliver the opening address.

Among the proposals to be discussed is a Canadian plan to feed hungry nations with food supplied by surplus - producing countries, the cost to be borne by an international emergency fund.

The plan would work through the United Nations and would enable needy countries to provide their people with food at a cost they could afford.

It would provide for the fund purchasing surplus food at the price normally paid the producer. The fund would then sell the food, at some percentage deduction agreed upon, to the country needing it.

IN MEMORIAM

CONNERS—In sweet memory of my husband, George Conners, who passed away May 30, 1948.
Sweet memories linger around me,
I seem to see in the soft dim light
A face I loved the best
And I think of him when the sun's at rest.
So down in the far-off west.
We will remember and mourn in silence
For absence can never close the doors
And the lamps of love still glowing
Through the days and years. All the best to recall
Is the heart that is dearest of all.
His wife, Ada. M28

CONNERS—In loving memory of our brother, George Conners, who passed away May 30th, 1948.
Sweet memories linger around me
So God must have a wonderful place
In His heart for the best.
Always remembered by son, Kenneth and family. M28

KENNEDY—In fondest memory of a dear mother, Sarah A. (Spencer) Kennedy, who passed away suddenly May 30, 1942.
Once again this day dawns, Mum.
Oh, what a sad day for me.
Once this earth was filled with joy
But now your voice again
Has answered your last summons call, Mum.
And the day weary wag,
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.
To the rest of the world you were
But all to me.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Lucy, son-in-law, Richard Belleville; son Wesley and family of Cobalt. M28

KENNEDY—In fond and loving memory of a dear mother, Susan D. (Spencer) Kennedy, and grandmother of Keith, Glen and Joan who passed away suddenly May 30, 1942.
It's right the world should know
Of the love we bore for thee,
Then dear mother, in each home,
The one we love so dear.
The deepest love the world could hold.
The choicest smile and a heart of gold.
For those who knew her, all will know
How much we lost two years ago.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Laura and son-in-law Reginald. M28

M. ET FT. EMUL: SIG. ET T.I.D.P.C.
No, they're not hieroglyphics : : : they're part of the prescription your doctor gave you the other day.
To you, that strange-looked-Latin legend meant nothing, but to your pharmacist it said, "Mix the ingredients of this prescription in the form of an emulsion, and label the bottle 'Use teaspoonful three times a day after meals'."
Your physician often uses Latin in writing prescriptions, and for two reasons. First, Latin is the universal language of medical science, and a prescription written in any part of the world, by a physician of any nationality, can be filled by any pharmacist. Second, Latin is a "dead" language, and, therefore, the exact meanings of words are not subject to variation from year to year as are words in the modern languages.
Many drugs that have almost similar names, have very different actions. Take, for example, mercurous chloride and mercuric chloride . . . one is calomel, a laxative, the other is highly poisonous bichloride of mercury.
There are phenobarbital and pentobarbital, sodium salicylate and sodium salicylate, acetanilid and acetone, aconite and aconitine, and a hundred other drug names equally confusing to you.
They are not confusing to your pharmacist, however. His familiarity with medical, chemical, health and pharmaceutical terms is but a part of his skill as a pharmacist . . . a skill developed through years of college training and experience in compounding prescriptions and rendering other necessary professional services. Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

A Leaf from Nature
Butterflies--Their Habits

By A. Hendeirson

With the coming of the flowers and the warm sunny days, those lovely denizens of the ether, the butterflies, will soon be with us again. I wonder how many recognize even a small number of these brilliantly colored little winged insects, or how many have ever had the enjoyment of watching the miraculous change from the unsightly caterpillar to the beautiful chrysalis, and from the chrysalis to the full-fledged butterfly? It is a hobby both interesting and educational and our trips through the fields and woods, will take on an added enthusiasm when once the interest is aroused.

We miss so much of the truly beautiful around us, in the quest of daily living. So, for a few moments, let us learn something about these 'flying flowers' if one might so name them. We can lean against the mower handle, or lay the hoe down, and gain a rest, and mental uplift at the same time, as we watch them wing their flight in airy undulations about the garden, from flower to flower.

Distinguishing Marks

The butterfly belongs to the order of the phopalocera, and is distinguished from moths by their slender, knobbed antennae. The body is small with head, thorax, and abdomen being nearly equal in size, and when in repose, the wings are usually carried erect.

The eggs are deposited upon the underside of the plant leaf upon which the caterpillar feeds, showing Nature's care of her own. When the eggs hatch, the larvae or caterpillars vary as to shape and size, depending upon the genus, varying from two to three inches or more in length and are of individual type of segmentation. As a rule, besides the thoracic legs, there are five pairs of abdominal legs.

The next stage in the development of the butterfly is the pupa or chrysalis or "aurelian" stage, so called because of the brilliant golden hues on some of the chrysalises, as that of the Monarch Butterfly, and which disappear just before the butterfly emerges.

Different Habits

Some butterflies hibernate, some swarm, and others migrate, and fly south during the autumn, and are found in all parts of the world, except the frigid zones, wherever suitable plants exist for food. There are nearly 30,000 species of the lepidopters--which simply means wings having scales, and the wings of the butterfly are four that, lace-like arrayment of minute scales overlapping. Among 13,000 species have been catalogued and described.

Some of the best known are the Mourning Cloak, so called because of its sombre colored wings edged with a narrow band of white; the pale yellow, Tiger Swallow-tail, with the elongated points on the posterior wings, the with black markings, dots and dashes; the Silvery Fritillary, a gem of an insect with its brown-fish wings, silver spotted on the under side, which so easily tanned, the King of butterflies, the Monarch, with its orange-red wings, outlined with a band of black, flecked with white dots.

It is of this particular type we wish to draw your attention mainly because it is seen so often in our gardens, along the roadsides, in the meadows among the daisies, and then because the writer of this article had the unstinted and rare pleasure of watching the then two-colored caterpillar, with its green coloring set well concealed from birds which might attempt to eat them, for, if they are at all like the butterfly itself, they are anything but a toothsome morsel. In size, the Monarch caterpillar is between two and three inches in length, having a vivid green segmented body each segment in turn having transverse stripes of yellow, white and black. The head is yellow, with two black horn, or angular stripes of black, with black horns.

The Monarch is one of the 'swarming types', and when ready to migrate to Florida, Texas, or South America, often gather in the tops of trees, ready for the long trek to the South. On the return trip, they come in small flocks, or singly, or flight. In flight, the Monarch glides, or sails very rapidly with a graceful motion.

The Transformation

It was our delight to capture several of these caterpillars, and place them in an ordinary shoe box, with plenty of fresh milkweed leaves, daily, and also the tree on the window sill in a sunny exposure, and watch them gorge themselves. After about three or four days, depending on the maturity of the caterpillar--the smaller ones of necessity having more growth to make, took more time, to come to full development,--they would begin to get restless, and crawl to which was the signals to remove the netting from the box top, which had prevented them becoming too promiscuous--which the other members of the family refused to tolerate.--

Soon, one by one, descending on their age, they would crawl out of the box, spin a silken, sticky ladder up the window pane, crawl along the sash till they found a convenient location, and there deposit some glue-like substance to which the posterior end was attached, and hang themselves for twenty-four hours, almost to the quite motionless state.

Nature's Masterpiece

During this time, a gradual change was taking place; the skin was becoming darker; the transverse markings disappearing, till almost indiscernible, and following this, a slow but half-hearted motion would begin, becoming more and more, but still slow, this in turn was followed by an up and down motion, much like the contractions of a concertina, until suddenly the old skin sloughed off, fell to the window sill in a discarded heap, revealing one of Nature's most beautiful works of house, emerged the lovely Monarch wet, drooping wings, hanging motionless from the erstwhile home. The Monarch butterfly was born.

Gradually the wings dried; and as strength went into them, they were lifted, till at last the glorious Monarch, in all his beauty, was born. The transformation revealed, a regal creature.

Soon Ready For Food

Almost as soon as the butterfly is perfectly dry, he is ready for food, and, will with gentle coaxing uncroil his long, twisted proboscis for diluted honey and water, or sugar and water held to his mouth. They learn very tame, and recognize the owner, by the fondness for nectar. The writer of this article has had as many as five or six light at one time, shoulders and hands when out doors, eagerly looking for the honey solution.

An amusing instance occurred in an early fall day, after the making of some crabapple jelly. Too pulp was temporarily discarded in the far corner of the garden, and in a short time the hot sun had fermented the residue. Like bees, with the result, one could situate the source by their humming. "Show Me The Way to go Home," so much prevalent of the caterpillar--a small manner is a living parable on man's transition from earth to heaven, revealing the great Creator through His creation, and making the beholder remember these lines from Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner":

"He prayeth best, who loveth best,
All things both great and small;
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all."

Historical Soc. Campaigns for More Members

The Ontario Historical Society will hold its annual meeting here on June 2 and 3. One of the purposes of the meeting is to enlarge the membership which has a very small number in Eastern Ontario.

The Society, which was organized in 1888, has a membership of over 500, the largest it has ever had, but most of these are from the west part of Southern Ontario.

Over the past fifty years the Society has been engaged in collecting and publishing records of traditions, the stories of pioneer things and events that have been significant and noteworthy in the history of many local communities. The yearly membership also covers a subscription to the quarterly magazine.

Municipal and business organizations as well as many individuals in the eastern counties are spending money in good deal of money in promoting tourist activity.

The Society could have a membership of several hundred in Eastern counties and it is hoped that this will be a fact in the not distant future.

Anyone may become a member by sending the annual fee of $2 to the treasurer, Dr. C. W. Spragge, 209 Huron Street, Toronto 5.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

KEEP OUT

"Aunt Louie, look at Mrs. Wren in front of the little house in the cherry tree. What do you suppose she's trying to do with that twigh?" asked Bobbie. "It isn't any longer than mine. Why I've seen her carry in, but it must be stuck, somehow, for it still sticking out."

"She is just barring the door so that naughty chipmunk can't enter and break her eggs."

Different species of birds have their own methods of preventing intruders from damaging their possessions of their babies. Peregrine Falcons fight the marauders, doing battle, if possible, with cruel, hooked beaks and strong, curved talons. Some birds are incapable of actually hitting back effectively, but rely on a show of fierceness, remaining on the nest and shouting all sorts of bad names. Into this group come the Nighthawks. But few species own satisfactory means for such a low-lest attack: they must resort to methods other than force.

Many birds rely entirely on camouflage. Mrs. Ruffed Grouse lays her eggs on the ground and rounded by last autumn's brown leaves. Then, when danger or approaches she does not fear detection, therefore remains on the nest. But instead of decorate their nests in birch trees with strips of bark, so that they will be mistaken for bulges on a branch.

Over-shrubs arch over their nests, making it difficult for anything to get through the small aperture to get at themselves. The Meadowlark's home, made of grass on the floor of a meadow, is well hidden by a roof being put over most of the nest. Thus deceives the

CAR ACCIDENTS AND CAUSES

Twenty-two per cent more accidents occurred on the roads of Ontario in the first quarter of this year than in the same period last year, reports of the Ontario Highways Department show. There was only one district, No. 11 (Stormont, Glengarry, Prescott, Russell and Carleton Counties) with a decrease, 8.1 per cent less. The highest increase was in District 6 (Bruce, Grey, Huron, Perth, Waterloo and Wellington Counties) where it stood at 62.4 per cent. District 8 (Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton Counties) increased 53 per cent this year in the same period. In the district in which Belleville is (No. 9, composed of the Counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac and Prince Edward) the rise was 13.9 per cent from 237 to 270 accidents, which totalled 3.9 per cent of the total number in the Province.

By counties some of the figures are as follows, an increase from 84 accidents to 109 in Hastings, from 75 to 85 in Peterborough, from 64 to 91 in Northumberland, from 28 to 34 in Lennox and Addington and from 108 to 109. A number of the counties showed declines in the accidents, Carleton in No. 11 dropping from 345 to 305.

For the same quarter in 1949 the Department has issued a summary of statistics. For instance the actions of the drivers in 1,609 accidents this year in the first three months shows he was driving too fast for the road or traffic conditions in 506 accidents, he was on the wrong side of the road in 338 cases, he did not have the right of way in 400, he was cutting in in 26, in 215 he drove off the highway, in 13 instances the car ran away without the driver, in 124 cases the driver failed to signal, in 18 cases he was on the wrong side of the road, in 15 he passed on a curve or hill and in four cases he passed a standing street car.

Among other details are the following: In 11,944 accidents considered 7878 of them occurred while the car was going straight, 956 as the cars were turning right, 659 turning left, 161 backing, 1190 were parked or standing still, 407 when slowing down or stopping.

The condition of the vehicle in 11,994 accidents, was found to be as follows: in apparent good condition 11,663; defective brakes in 109 cases in which four persons were killed and 96 injured; defective steering mechanisms in 59, glaring headlights 2; one or both headlights out 17; tail light out or obscured 12, no chains (wet or icy road) 0, other defects in equipment 58, puncture or blowout 17; not stated 57.

Further facts show that collision with other vehicles caused most accidents, namely 4,432, collision with pedestrians 835 of which 62 were fatal, collision with fixed object 788; non-collision accidents 417; collision with train 93 with twelve fatal.

From such facts (and there are many more of them in the report) drivers can study the most likely causes of smashes and the means of preventing them.

The comparison of the number of women drivers with men figuring in accidents stood as follows, male 10967 and women 405. Men drivers figured in 150 fatal accidents and women drivers in two.

The frequency of accidents by days is recorded in order as follows, Saturday, Monday, Friday, Thursday, Sunday, Wednesday and Tuesday. The season it must be remembered was the winter season, the first three months of the year.

Pedestrians have to learn the danger of walking on or crossing roads and highways for they are the class making for a large increase in fatalities from 43 in the first three months of 1948 to 66 in the same period in 1949 while in accidents altogether pedestrians to the number of 768 were injured non-fatally to date this year. These figures speak and should be heard by those who have to walk over and along roads.

Study of such a report should have valuable lessons for everyone.

Driving is an action that calls for every care and for full possession of the body and mind with the thought of driving and pedestrians who have to use the roads should safeguard themselves with very close attention to the traffic and the road rules.

Above all there must be care and courtesy in the use of the roads by motorists and pedestrians. Courtesy means ever taking every care to avoid hurting another fellow creature with a car or causing an accident.

How will we find good? It is not a thing of choice; it is a river that flows from the invisible throne, and flows by the path of obedience.—George Eliot.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In the boyhood of the present baldheads, there were at least three or four boys in every city street who collected birds' eggs. Around 1900-1910, there must have been literally hundreds of thousands of wild birds' eggs in cotton batting lined boxes in every Canadian city of any size.

It was just as popular a hobby as stamp collecting. The indoor type of boy collected stamps. The outdoor type collected birds' eggs. In every city and town were dealers in birds' eggs and collecting supplies. A lively trade was carried on. It was developed by the boys themselves. But for something right and unusual you had to go to a dealer. Older boys, growing into men, would sell off their collections to younger lads for handsome sums: for example, a fellow could buy an engagement ring for his fiancee with his egg collection.

At this time of year, the woods and fields around the cities and towns were alive with boys of all ages, from ten to twenty, creeping, hunting, wading, climbing trees, as they identified and purchased the rarer warblers, indigo buntings, grosbeaks, and tracked them to their nests.

Then, around that same first decade, something sudden happened to bird collecting. The migratory birds convention brought protection to all wild birds. With the law came a sudden sentimental change of heart in the whole community. Birds' nest collecting became not merely illegal but unsportsmanlike. Through the schools, a wave of sentiment spread as to the "cruelty" of attitude towards nature, and children were exhorted not merely to leave birds' nests alone but even to pick wild flowers. The outdoor type of boy became an idle sentimentalist, with his hands in his pockets.

But with a snicker, the indoor type of boy who had been collecting postage stamps went right ahead collecting stamps. The dealers in that commodity were with us still. The crafty little boys grew up into bankers, accountants, coupon clippers, traders, brokers, cagey investors. And wild birds have multiplied exceedingly.

Gives Particulars On Swimming Pool

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

A short time ago, Mary Smith (wh: yer he or she might be) requested certain information through your columns, as to the financial status of the Belleville community swimming pool for Belleville. Particulars of this fund are given below, also the information of "Mary" and the citizens of Belleville.

It should be stated that the Chamber of Commerce sponsored this idea and then the project was taken over by the Inter-Service Club Council, which comprises representatives from the six service clubs. This body moved as far as was in their power and then made request for consideration and guidance from higher authority in the city.

The organization was approved with Cmdr. F. W. Wills, Mr. W. H. Morton and the undersigned appointed as trustees of the fund. Certain duties were held with delegates present from the Inter-Service Club Council, Parks Board, Home and School Associations, Rotary Association, City Council, and others, under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce. From these gatherings there developed the idea of organizing the services of a recreational director for the city and the Parks Board, which was more gradually relegated to the background. In the fall the girls will have to go to the Sand Banks, Lazier's Bay or Foxboro beaches for their swimming fun.

Many large industries in locating in Belleville, bringing, as they do, many hundreds of families, it seems only right that there is no provision made for the proper training in sports on supervised recreational facilities for these people. Sports and games may be taught some of the finer things of life. Let us hope the result of our labors will be the formation of the so-called Belleville Athletic Club.

Could we do better than erect a "Memorial Swimming Pool community Centre" in honor of our "boys" who fought for us?

And now "Mary" here is the financial statement as of date:—

Chamber of Commerce	$73.22
Inter-Service Club	500.00
Belleville Conservative Club	10.00
Royal Auxiliary A.N. A. Veterans	50.00

Says Socialist Govt. Doing Splendid Job

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer,

I should appreciate the opportunity of replying to a letter which you published over the name of Mr. Malcolm Robb.

Mr. Robb seemed very anxious to make a great case against the people of this country, and made far emphasis on their ability to solve the difficult trade problems which confronted them at the end of the war in which they were forced to liquidate all their overseas investments in order to pay for the cost of war.

I believe your readers would be interested in the statement of Mr. Paul Hoffman, the great American industrialist who has been accorded the chairmanship of the European Recovery Program. In October last year, Mr. Hoffman was on his way back to America from Britain and said this "I am going back to America with a clear impression that the United Kingdom has made remarkable progress in making good on its pledge of self help. When I took this job in April it seemed to me that the goals which Britain had set in the first year were quite unattainable. The very gallant and successful fight which Great Britain has put up to build her exports and hold down imports and thus achieve financial stability is one which commands the admiration of the world." Mr. Hoffman was not only said this in London, but he said much the same thing at a press conference in Washington when he arrived there.

Mr. Robb suggests that Britain has not been able to deliver the goods to her "normal world markets," and mentions, in particular, Canada. Will Mr. Robb tell us our own Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports that Britain exported to Canada 299 million dollars worth of goods in 1946 increased to 189 million in 1947 and 114 million in 1939. If Mr. Robb is really interested in Britain's welfare he might be reminded that Britain is now under the traditional market of the United Kingdom fell off by 36 million dollars during the first quarter of 1949 compared to one year ago. It is we who are failing to keep up exports.

We have no contract to supply Britain 140,000,000 tons of coal on this year. We supplied only 14,000,000 pounds in the first three months, and Agriculture Minister Gardiner has announced he shall fail to fill the contract as we have failed steadily for the last four years.

Britain's export target after the war was set down on the basis of above the 1938 figures. This target was reached by December 1948.

How was it reached? Largely by increased productivity. When Labor was elected in 1945 the output per manshift in the coal mines was 1.01 tons. During the years after nationalization of the mines, this increased to 1.25 tons. In the same period absenteeism had dropped from 11.8 per cent to 9.2 per cent, wages were up substantially and production per head per year from 200 tons in 1945 to 256,420,000 tons in 1948. Mr. Hoffman declares incentive is not lacking in Britain. It is much improved, not only in the matter of pay but in getting a square deal under their own government.

Mr. Robb chooses to label this square deal "boondoggles to the public." What is termed "boondoggle measures" the cost of which, he says, is "killing" Mr. Robb so much more than the British workers who keep winning by election after election, on the basis of such measures? They are the measures of health, social insurance, and the social security plan.

The British government spent almost half a billion pounds on food subsidies last year. With such subsidies and price controls the cost of living has gone up in Britain by 30 per cent since 1939 while in Canada and the United States it has gone up 60 per cent.

The health insurance and social security plan of Britain, which Mr. Robb has introduced in Britain are so popular with the people that every political party that has attempted to state that it would repeal the measures.

Mr. Robb attempts to make Britain look ridiculous by saying that she wants to borrow 3 billion dollars for a ton of newsprint when she can buy it for less than 100 dollars. Of course the answer to that is that Sweden will sell newsprint to Britain for nothing and Canada will only sell for dollars. Britain has the pounds with which to buy newsprint, because she needs all she has for wheat and other products she must buy here. So Britain chooses between buying newsprint for 189 dollars in Sweden or 100 dollars in Canada. Because we won't sell it her for any amount of the kind of money she has.

It is too bad that certain people in this country can't get their print with an unfair picture of a country whose productive machinery was largely built up by small measure by bombardment and whose ours was expanded, safe from the onslaughts of thousand plane raids. It is unfortunate that the people of Britain who are doing such a grand job of building a better and safer society, joining economic security with real freedom, should be maligned in a shameful way by attacks from the supporters of an unfair trade system which benefits and money before human needs.

PREVENTION OF COLLAPSE OF THE LUNG

Such inhalations of carbon-dioxide and oxygen, as mentioned, constitute the best treatment for coma or semi-unconsciousness due to alcohol, ether or carbon monoxide (asphyxia). But in any case where the patient can co-operate or follow instructions regarding breathing, breathing constitute the next best treatment for such conditions. In order to get the best effects from belly breathing, however, it is important that the doctor or instructor should understand clearly the physiology of breathing.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Contagious or Infectious?

Please explain the difference between contagious and infectious diseases. Is influenza one or both? (Mrs. F.)

Answer—Originally contagious meant those diseases spread by actual contact, contagere, to touch). Infectious diseases are diseases conveyed indirectly through some such medium as drinking water, contaminated food, the feet of flies or, as the old timers used to say, miasmic interests of our time believed or would have you believe, even via the air. This distinction is not unimportant. Any infectious disease may be contagious and any contagious disease may be infectious. So the common cold-disease is used in modern public health administration, whether the disease is caught by personal contact or by drinking polluted water or by breathing (exposed with the conversational spray of a person who is coming down with, say, measles, pneumonia or cerebro-spinal meningitis.

Discrimination

For the past year I have been thinking of writing to the editor of the leading houses and streets go in the direction of Bridge Street which I want to go That is, I am positive the place I mislooking for it seems to be on Bridge Street or further westward. (M. G. M.)

Answer—Sorry, I know. Meadowview, sometimes. Take Chicago for instance. First thing I'd do if the plane I got into a taxi at the railway station and streeted the driver to take me to Bridge Street. The driver seemed to take me across town through the alley before he finally reached the lake front. The turns did it. We drove day or two after getting to the right. That seemed to be one reason, so directed the driver southward. There it has about ever since, although sometimes maybe we ought to know how assured me it is northward from Bridge Street. I can't help you anything about it other towning Bridge Street. I'd encourage you to keep their city disoriented like, that it is no concern of mine. (Copyright 1948, by John F. Dille Co.)

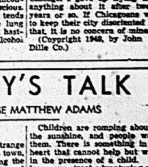
TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Street Adventuring

Whenever I get to a strange city I like to walk about, looking into windows, noting the type of people on the streets, and the kind of goods that fill the windows of the shops. I like to go into different parts of the city to see how each part lives.

If there are many churches, schools and other public buildings, like a library or art gallery, then I know that there are the happy and intelligent people who make up the town. I see the social sensibility of a town soon after you have walked around, in it for a little. You scent the worth and standing. If there are many parks and playgrounds you know there are those in the city who love their children.



Every once in a while I leave my office in the city where I live and just go out exploring and adventuring. I enter a large shop, admiring parlor and eat my shoe shined, while I look on at what is going on in there. People take off their shoes and have them resoled while they wait. Hats are cleaned, too. Then I hear shoes almost make music with their brushes.

Then I walk out and before I know it, I am waylaid at a second-hand book-shop, where I linger and browse. What an interesting group of people you find in such a place. Every type you can imagine. All bent upon some objective.

I walk up to a little church, almost hidden between great buildings. The doors are open so I go in and sit down. A few others are there, in their prayer communion, seeking spiritual uplift. I find the moments spent there just as refreshing as if I had gone there might be more such open doors, scattered all about every city.

Then there are the parks that you can't help but run into in a progressive city. There you will see other types of people sitting, congregated, sitting there to gaze upon or to plan but the every move.

The Invisible Wings

In his book The Gathering Storm, Winston Churchill tells how after the elections of 1935, Prime Minister Baldwin sent officials for their support, and great was the joy when the news came of Churchill's reversal. "But now," writes Churchill, "one can see how lucky I was. Over me beat the invisible wings."

More often than we realize the invisible wings beat over us. We have great reason to be thankful for the whole testimony of the Word of God is invalid. There is a destiny which names our souls, though how them though we may. There is purpose in the universe. Men scurry around like ants performing tasks which seem to them important, but which are no more significant than the activities of the ants to us. God broods over all. He has His plans for every man and woman, every boy and girl. Sometimes it is through the testimony always. It is a place of significance. The picture of the world's life is marred and incomplete, every time an individual departs from God's plan and His purpose. God has arranged a pattern of our lives which is perfect, and when we are foolish enough to depart from it, we mar the whole picture. Over us beat the invisible wings; let us never forget that.

WEDDINGS

BISHOP—COATS

Divinity Hall, McGill University, Montreal, was the scene of an interesting and pretty wedding on Wednesday, May 25, at 4 p.m., when April Bunten Coats, London, England, formerly of Belleville, daughter of the late Major Coats and Mrs. J. A. Coats, of Ayre, Scotland, and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bunten, niece of Mrs. D'Arcy Rutherford, London, England, formerly of Belleville, was united in marriage to Thomas J. H. Bishop, son of Major C. G. Bishop, of Ayre, Scotland, and Mrs. Florence Bishop, of London, England. The Reverend Doctor Ryder officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Frederick Dougall, of Montreal, was charming in a navy blue suit, piped with white, with matching hat. Cap also piped in white. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gardenias and white orchids.

Miss Jean Dougall, of Montreal, was bridesmaid, wearing a beige suit with navy blue accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Doctor Stratford of Brantford, was groomsman.

A reception was later held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dougall, which was prettily decorated with white snapdragons and tulips.

Mrs. D. P. Simpson poured the tea, and Miss Stirrett Walton, the coffee.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop left for the Dougall's summer home at Metlin, Lake of Bays, Ont. They will reside in Montreal until Mr. Bishop receives his M. A. degree at McGill.

Among the many guests were Mrs. D. B. Simpson, cousin of the bride, Castleton, Ont.; Mrs. Erdly Wilmot, Brantford, Ont.; Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Belleville; Miss Monique Laporte, Corbyville, Ont.; Miss Marion Sargent, of Toronto, formerly of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. G. Dixon, Montreal, formerly of Belleville, and Miss Stirrett Walton, Montreal, formerly of Belleville.

WOODLEY—MARKLE

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Christ Church on Monday afternoon, May 23rd, when Rev. Grant Sparling united in marriage Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Markle, to Kenneth Harold younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woodley.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Olive Mclsaac and the groom, by his brother, Mr. Tom Woodley.

A reception was held at the Lansdowne Inn.

For a wedding trip, the couple motored to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Exotic Fashions of the East Outshine Those of West At Rita Hayworth's Wedding

By KATHERINE RUNSON

Vallauris, France, May 23 (AP) —The exotic fashions of the East outshone those of the West today at the Rita Hayworth-Aly Khan wedding. The two types of correct attire, according to women of two worlds, casts creations were much in evidence at the little town hall of Vallauris.

Rita Hayworth was simply, but sweetly, dressed for the ceremony that made her a princess. The multitude of tiny pleats of her half-length pale-blue crepe dress fluttered gracefully as she walked up the front steps of the tiny city hall to be welcomed by Paul Rediguo, the mayor of Vallauris.

Tightly Fitted Dress

The bodice of the dress was tightly fitted as were the long sleeves. The neckline was modest by the fashion of the day. A large picture hat was pinned to the back of her head revealing the fine dark auburn hair. It was pulled behind her ears and curled in shoulder length.

Small pearl earrings were at her ears. The only jewelry the princess-to-be wore when she left the Hotel du Cap to be complete her outfit Rita wore wrist-length black suede gloves and black suede shoes with high slender heels.

Her bridal bouquet might have been picked in any small garden of the village. It was small and consisted of full-blooomed white gardenias centered with orange blossoms. Rita's nervousness was betrayed by the twisting of the lace handkerchief at the base of the bouquet.

All the rest of the female western guests with the exception of Lady Mendl, were dressed in pastel-flowered prints, straw hats and carried gloves and bags. The exceptions consisted of one checked taffeta, one polka dot, one black and a gray silk suit topped by a large blue hat with polka dots. Lady Mendl was in black.

No one wore the Moslem dress with more charm than the beautiful Begum, present wife of the Aga Khan. Her floor length skyblue satin and Bolivian scarf over her head were of crepe de chine. Pearl necklaces and earrings and two large diamond brooches on her arm completed her dress.

The Aga Khan's Moslem guests, four of them princes in their own right, were like exotic birds dressed all floor-length draped dresses and a large shawl which covers the head and shoulders. As usual, their fabulous wealth revealed them as they filed in quietly and took their places in the second row of wooden seats.

The first arrival of the Moslem guests was the Begum Salimi Ryder Bundaly, whose husband is the president of Aga Khan's 20,000 Moslem-sect followers in Karachi. Her costume was a rich wine color and embroidered with very heavy gold threads. Her fingers, wrists and throat were heavy with precious stones.

No Dresses Alike

It would have seemed that the five Moslem princess guests had come together to compare notes on their costumes. There were none. No two were dressed alike and the kind of colors of the dress was pleasing to the sensitive eye. There was a deep blue, a light blue, white with coral, green with silver, blue with white, pink with grey and white.

All fabrics were of pastel shades of crepe de chine and brocaded with contrasting and expensive looking embroidery of jewelry worn by these women. Dress fastenings of precious stones adorned their necks, their arms and their fingers, and three of these had diamond-studded diamonds on the left side of their noses. The nose was also perforated to accommodate big precious stones. Any one of these three diamonds was much larger than most women wear. It was alleged to wear on the ring finger of their left hand.

Rita left the marriage hall wearing an additional piece of jewelry—a gold band of wedding gold, testimony that she is now Princess Aly Khan.

Y.W.C.A. to Hold International Convention

Ottawa, May 23 (CP)— International staff will spice the convention of the Young Women's Christian Association which opens here Monday.

More than 300 delegates from each of Canada's 10 provinces will converge on the capital for the first national Y.W.C.A. meeting since 1945. In addition visitors from such faraway places as New Zealand, India, Trinidad, China, Japan, are expected to attend.

"All phases of Y.W.C.A. activities will be discussed during this week of meetings," said Olive Zeron, executive director of Ottawa Y.W.C.A. which is playing host to the convention.

Miss Zeron said the Ottawa association will present a recommendation to the convention regarding the standards necessary for household employment.

Mrs. Ethel Wilson, who work with Displaced Persons and the place of counselling and travellers' aid in the organization also will be discussed at the meetings.

Main speaker during the convention will be Dr. Margaret McWilliams, Winnipeg, who will address the convention at 8 o'clock meeting Thursday. Dr. McWilliams, who will speak on "citizenship" is the wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, Hon. R. F. McWilliams.

Emerald Like Traffic Light Gift to Rita

New York, May 23. (AP)—Elsa Maxwell, writing in the New York Post, said today her first thing Rita Hayworth and Prince Aly Khan did after their wedding Friday morning was to telephone her in London.

"After all," the famous party-giver wrote, "it was I who introduced them."

She quoted Aly as saying:

"You will be glad to know that it was very dignified in spite of all the ballyhoo. It was not a real Hollywood wedding in any way.

"You know, darling, my favorite star is the Morning Star—and to me Rita is Venus, only with a soul and sweetness."

Rita, said, according to Miss Maxwell, was a virgin bride.

Aly gave me the largest diamond in the world, and two magnificent emerald tiaras. The Aga Khan's present was an enormous emerald, exactly like the traffic light at Times Square."

Miss Maxwell said she told Prince Aly:

"I'm going to see a happy ending. I know it."

"Thank you, darling," Aly replied.

"If you think that Aly is not a darling," Miss Maxwell, added "you've hit a wrong guess."

Career Changing Clinic Finds New, Pleasing Jobs

New York, May 23 — (CP) — The weary, disillusioned, five-o'clock faces of men and women who hated every minute of their working day bothered Anne Heywood.

So with the aid of three other women, she launched the Career Changing Clinic, a service which already has successfully found new — and more pleasing — jobs for more than 200 persons.

Anne says the world is "vocational-test happy." These tests used blindly by many personnel and employment agencies, she says — tell you what you are best fitted to do. But they never tell you how to do it, Miss Heywood adds.

She first became convinced that many persons were unhappy in their work while she was working in an employment agency. She found hundreds of persons who wanted to change their jobs but did not have the required experience.

Her clinic is not an employment agency, she stresses. It just shows people how to make the changes they want.

"The first interview them to find if they mean business," she says. "Then we leave no stones unturned to land them the right job."

Anne says more women than men are unhappy in their jobs because men are more likely to do something about being dissatisfied.

"Women think they'll get married and quit soon, so it doesn't make any difference," she said. "That's 100-per-cent wrong."

"If they hate their jobs, it will show up in them. But if women love their jobs, they come to life and men like to be around them."

Anne has a "well - rounded" background for her job-advising position. In her 34 years she has held 34 different jobs — and "love" them all."

St. Michael's Choristers Excel In Wide Range of Selections

By EUGENE LANG

Friday evening the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute was filled to near capacity by hundreds of lovers of choral music to hear the Saint Michael's Choristers Schola Cantorum of Toronto in a concert of diversified appeal to one and all. This very gifted group of male singers was presented by the Parent-Teacher Association of St. Michael's Academy under the patronage of Right Reverend J. F. Nicholson.

The thirty-seven members of this choir were under the direction of Rt. Rev. J. E. Ronan, the distinguished leader of this choral ensemble for many years. The ages of the singers vary from eight to thirty, those under fifteen being male soprano who are enrolled in the St. Michael's Chorister's School of Toronto, the only one of its kind in Canada.

Besides a fine musical training these young choristers receive a regular education comparable in public and early high school training. The older members are made up of former members of this school who are now men of varied vocations in the religious, professional and industrial life of Toronto.

Five-Group Program

The program was made up of five distinct groups, the first of which featured liturgical music of the Renaissance period of history, "Laudate Dominum" by Palestrine; "O Magnum Mysterium," a Christmas Motet of Vittoria; a Georgian Chant entitled "Ambrosian Gloria" and "Oremus" by Pontifex written by Msgr. Ronan were all performed with splendid intonation and concentrated interweaving of voices, a feature so necessary for the proper phrasing of ecclesiastical vocal music of this type.

In the second group of religious offerings, two arrangements for male choir were the most beautifully, namely the Andante Cantabile from the string quartet of Tschaikowsky and the familiar "Ave Maria" of Bach-Gounod.

Master John Bishop was soprano soloist in the latter selection

Two tenor solos, "Panis Angelicus" by Franck and "Cavalleria" by Mascagni, the latter a well known Spanish song were finely sung by one of the tenor vocalist a very young singer, Master Burton Culpperton followed this with his flowing playing on the piano of a Sonatina by Kuhlau, well performed and appreciatively received. The chorus "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings" from Brahms "A German Requiem" was sung with a stylistic approach by the choir thus bringing the first half of the concert to a close.

Songs of Varied Contrast

Following the intermission a group of secular songs of varied contrast was rendered by the entire choir. Notable among these was the humorous ditty "Such a Song of Sixpence" arranged by R. M. Stanley, also in the style of Handel, a clever little work artfully vocalized; and the beloved "Dan-

Princess Pawns Diadem Worth Over $200,000

Buenos Aires, May 23 —(AP)— A jewelled diadem that once adorned the heads of European royalty has been pawned here by Princess Ileana of the exiled Rumanian royal family for a reported 300,000 pesos ($200,000).

It now is on display in the municipal pawn shop.

Experts who have seen it there estimated it is worth over $200,000. Friends said the reason for the transaction was the need for ready cash to finance business enterprises of Princess Ileana's husband, Archduke Anton of Hapsburg.

Princess Ileana is a daughter of the late Queen Marie of Rumania. She and her husband and their six children were the last of the Rumanian royal family to flee the country when her nephew, King Michael, was deposed by a Communist regime.

Friends of the archduke and his wife explained that they are by no means poverty stricken. They have a large collection of jewels, silver and art objects. But they wanted ready cash for business. The archduke is an engineer by profession.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beckman

A Graduate's Manners Should be "Extra Special"

On commencement day all details of courtesy have a way of shining forth in beautifully clear outlines. The graduates' gracious thanks and thoughtfulness to their families and relatives and to their friends at the Commencement Exercises. Their sure knowledge of the proper and gracious forms of making introductions and of acknowledging invitations. Their appealing habit of listening attentively and courteously . . . most important to a graduate, most important. Their grace in accepting congratulations, and in thanking for them. Their manner when greeting guests, when shaking hands, when saying good-bye. Their sure sense of expressing appreciation to the head of the school and to the teachers. Their charming way of using the name of the person being introduced, spoken to . . . "How do you do, Mrs. Alient". . . "Thank you for your good wishes, Dorothy, dear." . . . "That was a wonderful commencement speech, Dr. Goodwin. Every word of it will inspire me, and I shall always remember its great message."

Attention, Graduates — Write a Thank-You Note for Every Gift

Dear Mrs Beeckman:

Most of the members of our high school senior class read your column, and when you answer a question we've discussed it in class or outside, we post the answer on our bulletin board. Now we'd like Mrs. Vanderwater for our "bulletin" this question on which we've had much discussion: Must all graduation presents be thanked for by notes or may one thank by telephone?

Seniors

It is a must of courtesy that a graduate should write a prompt and warmly enthusiastic thank-note for every graduation present he or she receives. If the impulse to write a thank-you note for a gift isn't "automatic" for the boy of high school age, graduation time is a good time to cultivate this endearing and so important habit. For certainly it is true that one of the most significant things that your diploma is going to mean to your relatives and friends is that now you will be expected to write a good letter, a gracious note. Good handwriting . . . good letter form . . . good letter personality. Else why, they will wonder, did you deserve that diploma?

When relatives and friends give kind thought and time and money to give you something to make you happy, certainly you have the right to expect you to give them the pleasure of receiving a thank-you note from you. You should show your manners by writing these thank-you notes promptly. . . . (1) thank for the kind thought; (2) thank for the gift, mentioning it specifically by name (not, vaguely, relatively and indirectly); and (3) comment enthusiastically about special features of the gift. Although this may sound like a large order, you can write these notes with charm and gusto! . . . in two or three sentences.

Graduates Should Answer Cards of Congratulation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Now that stationery stores and other stores that sell greeting cards are showing so many congratulatory cards for graduation, my classmates and I were discussing today whether or not it is necessary for a graduate, if she receives cards of this kind, to write thank you notes for them, or how she would write thank-you notes for graduation presents that are not about congratulatory cards?

Betty C.

This important and significant time in your lives . . . this time of your school commencement . . . is a perfect time for you girls to commence to achieve the graceful habit of saying "Thank you" should thank not only for gifts of material things but should thank, also, always and heartily for the gift of kind words and thoughtful messages. You will be proud of yourselves . . . and your teachers and your parents will be proud of you if you write a note of appreciation for every piece of congratulation and good wishes, not only for every graduation present

SUBTLE INSULT

Ancient Egyptians painted the figure of an enemy on the soles of their sandals so they could insult him daily by treading him underfoot.

Use Cosmetics Faithfully

If you have a handsome beauty kit like this one, don't use it only when you travel. Take it to the office, for instance, for day-to-day beauty.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you happen to be that type of woman who goes on a cosmetic binge, lugging home various precious items, only to salt them away? It is being done all the time by short sighted beauty cosmeters.

The dimmer is filled with the paraphernalia that, as it is tucked away some place where the light won't strike it and cause its fragrance and contents to evaporate, it is overlooked by the owner in those hurried, panicky dressers, always late for any kind of an appointment. There is no time to use it.

For some reason it is easy to forget to sprinkle bath salts in the tub. That is indeed a pity as they soften the water, impart a compelling scent, make one feel like a million dollars.

Beauty Kits

So it is with some of those grand beauty kits. Always waiting for the holiday trip or journey to other parts. Why not use it every day? You can get refills for whatever cosmetic comes in those fascinating containers. You have everything at hand when you want to make yourself a new face—powder, powder pad, rouge, lipstick, eye shadows.

A manicure outfit is a priceless treasure. If you haven't one and your birthday approaches, start hinting. Some member of your family, staying awake nights wondering what gift to select for you, will be grateful for the suggestion.

If your hair brush is looking a bit tired and worn, bristles bending under the strain of grooming your precious locks, you may apply to replace it. It would be heavenly to have a nice white-backed brush, with a plastic case to keep it in so no dust will touch it.

And that reminds us, you can get a transparent plastic case for your powder puff. It is practically the only cleaning and keeping it in sanitary state.

Take a survey of offerings at cosmetic counters. New items being displayed all the time.

BEAUTY ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By HELEN JAMIESON

By HELEN JAMIESON

Eyeglasses conform to the features

Dorothy Parker said, "men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses," and you believe it! So many women are wearing specs these days that the silly notion that they make one look older or no account has worn itself out. Some women look better more distinguished, classier in certain lines, with glasses than without them.

Opticians have joined up with that great army of goodlooks helpers — cosmeticians, milliners, shoe designers, dressmakers. Then a woman is ready to select glasses she is shown a large array of frames and lenses of different styles. The attendant will illustrate her needs by displaying pictures of models with different profiles, different features, each luscious one wearing spectacles that are most becoming. Best point to be type. She will explain that if the nose is too long according to the standard of beauty, the bridge set low and bridge will shorten it. Sounds sensible! But suppose you are low on a Roman nose, concealing that inward curve between the eyes. Then you'll want glasses to accentuate more dignified appearance if there is a highly arched bridge to give an illusion of length.

For the nose that fills up a wide space between the eyes, a low bridge. For the nose that is as thin as a wafer — you see them sometimes — the opticians have designed a lens with a nose piece. For round plump faces angular lenses are recommended; they detract from the curves. High cheek bones are less prominent if lenses are straight-sided. The lady of fashion blessed with regular features, will select that which most becomes her, and impart dignity and distinction.

Fashions in glasses change, as do fashions in dress.

You will find a variety of frames, a relief after the oval like, dark models of the past. Colorful ones, or those of delicate tints, give softness to the countenance, often accent the color of eyes and hair.

Round frames, it is said are becoming to the individual. The features are usually improved if there is a curve on the lower lens, a slight uplift on the upper.

Fashions in glasses change as do fashions in dress; the girl who wears them should keep in step with the mood she looks parade. The design that is flattering to one face may not be the happy choice for another.

If you have ideas of your own about lens styling, yours will be cut to order; the opticians are that obliging.

Can't Make up Her Mind About Her Love Affairs . . .

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 21 and engaged to be married.

My problem is that before I go to live with him I want to with his buddy, and sometimes I think I still like the other boy. I can't seem to make myself up. Sometimes I think I don't like the boy I am engaged to, but when we have an argument and break up for a day or two, I am terribly hurt.

Please help me, because I am all mixed up.

Anonymous

Dear Anonymous:

No girl in your confused state of mind has any business being engaged to anybody.

The best advice I can give you is that you tell your fiance you have decided you would rather have a little more time to make up your mind, and a lot more of yourself, and that you would like to be free to go out and see other boys for a while until you find out just where you stand.

A Message to a Reader

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This is for "worried" whose letter about the embarrassment caused by her husband's drinking was printed in your column.

Many times I have been hurt and very humiliated by the remarks he made when he was drinking.

My husband's drinking got worse. He used to tell many things after a few drinks that should have been kept family secrets.

I solved my problem by refusing to go anywhere where there would be drink. He soon got tired of that and except for one or two slips at home I am pleased to say he does not drink at all, and he admits he has a better time.

Ex-Worried!

It is very kind of you indeed to try and offer reassurance and help to the worried wife whose letter you read in this column.

You yourself were a very unusually fortunate girl in having such a plan work with your husband, for it is not one time in a million, would have any effect on a true alcoholic, which your husband undoubtedly was. Alcoholic however, this other woman's husband is not a real alcoholic, either, and the plan might also help solve her problem. I am passing it along for her in this way, in the thought that she might care to try it. I am sure she will be glad to know of your letter anyhow.

Mackenzie's Column:

Rita's Position Will be Unique In World Circles

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Her Highness Rita Hayworth has married into a position which she may, or will be when her husband, Prince Aly Khan, succeeds his father, the Aga Khan, as head of the great Ismailian sect of Mohammedans.

The Aga Khan claims direct descent from the prophet Mohammed, and as Iman is spiritual leader of many millions of people in India, Afghanistan, Kohorsan, Persia, Arabia, Central Asia, Syria and Morocco.

There is no other position comparable to this.

Has Title of Prince

The Aga Khan also has the title of Prince, and is addressed as "Your Highness" like the now-defunct Indian Maharajahs. Thus Rita will be called Princess and in due course presumably will have the distinction of being the wife of the Iman, since Aly is heir to that position.

Being a purely spiritual ruler, the Aga Khan has no principality, although he has a palace (Aga Hall) in Bombay and many in other places. His disputed personal income comes from offerings from his followers.

Many think that the Aga Khan is weighed in balance against gold or diamonds every year. That's fiction, but a pleasing one.

His Highness was weighed against gold — and he tips the scales at 1-8 of a ton — on his golden jubilee as Iman. He twice was weighed against diamonds on his diamond jubilee. However, most of the great sums thus acquired he established a charitable foundation for his followers.

Under the Mohammedan creed a man may have more, than one wife at a time. However, neither the Aga Khan or Aly has taken advantage of this privilege. The Aga Khan has been married three times, his first wife being Italian and his other two French. Aly previously was married to an English woman.

Children of Holland were so pleased with school supplies sent them by Canadian children they have sent 6,000 copies of a book entitled "Behind the Dunes and Dykes" for distribution in Canadian schools. Drew Urges Vote For Conservatives To Halt Socialism

Lacombe, Alta., May 28 (CP)—Progressive Conservative leader George Drew, a whirlwind election tour of Alberta completed, today is en route to Kamloops, B.C., where he is scheduled to speak tonight.

Friday, Mr. Drew, whose main speech was confined to this central Alberta town, said that the "only way we can prevent the advance of socialism in Canada is to vote for the Progressive Conservative party, which alone can form a government and stem the tide of state control."

A vote for the Liberal was a vote for the socialists, Mr. Drew said, because the trend was against the Liberals, and to form a government they would have to rely on the support of the Socialists who wanted the trend toward centralization to continue.

The Progressive Conservative party was fighting against Socialism and against state control, under which "long-haired theoretical people are trying to run the whole country from Ottawa."

Mr. Drew, on a trans-Canada election tour, came here from Edmonton. Then he drove 150 miles south to address a meeting in High River, Alta. En route he stopped briefly at Red Deer.

At High River, Mr. Drew reiterated his party's stand on social security, agriculture, and on the whole, confined himself to the lines of his speech at Lacombe.

Before leaving Lacombe, Mr. Drew said there was a tendency to ask what one man could do at Ottawa. One man who knows the needs of his constituency could do a great deal in a freed parliament where the voice of the representatives of the people could still be heard.

British Troops Begin Unloading Banana Cargo

Bristol, England, May 27 (CP) — Troops late today began unloading 11,000,000 bananas from the British freighter Bayano which dock workers refused to handle.

The Tommies went to work as the dockers' strike in sympathy with the world - wide walkout of the Canadian Seamen's Union (C. L. C.) spread to Liverpool where 1,500 stevedores defied orders from union chiefs and quit work.

The government stepped into the dispute to save the perishable £50,000 ($200,000) cargo aboard the Bayano. The troops — 200 men of the King's Shropshire Light Infantry — entered the docks at Avonmouth, Bristol port, by a side entrance. Three minutes later the conveyor belts were moving.

In Britain only children receive a ration of bananas.

Russian Plane, Flown to Sweden, Is Shipped Back

London, May 27 (Reuters)—The Russia Air Force plane in which a Russian pilot recently arrived in Sweden to claim asylum as a political refugee, today was shipped back to Russia, radio Stockholm reported.

The aircraft was shipped on a Russian freighter on demand of the Soviet diplomatic representative in Stockholm, the report said.

It added that the aircraft was despatched at night from the Swedish airfield where it had been landed to the port so as not to arouse unnecessary curiosity.

The 27-year-old Russian pilot, whose name has not been disclosed, took off from a base in the vicinity of Riga in the Latvian Republic and landed in Sweden May 18. He was interned.

The report said his case is being considered by the Allens Department which is expected to make a decision next week.

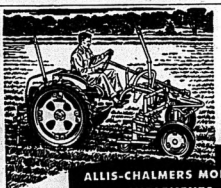
Michigan Visitor Killed in Crash



Hamilton, May 27 (CP)—A visitor to Canada, believed to be a Mr. Grisman, of Detroit, was killed in an accident involving two cars and a bus on the Bronte bridge today. Mrs. Nettie Grisman, seriously injured, was rushed to the general hospital in Hamilton and is being treated there for undetermined injuries.

Reports indicate that, at the west end of the bridge, one car tried to pass another and they collided. Mr. Grisman, driving one of the vehicles, was thrown out of his car and in front of a bus which passed over him.

Dramatic Third-Fall Effort Enables Whipper Watson to Defeat 'Wee Willie' Davis

Whipper Billy Watson, erstwhile British Empire wrestling champion is an opportunist, to say the least.

Last night in Memorial Arena, the Whip, alone, unassisted by his usual mastermind went out there and in a thrilling last fall display, took the decision from "Wee Willie Davis" in the main bout of the card.

The towering Davis, who stretches at least a foot above the "puny Watson" made no bones as to what he was going to do to the comparative foe.

In short, the Whipper, in a fast furious fast fall climax that lasted about2 minutes, sealed signed and delivered the coup de grace to hulking "Wee Willie" to win the bout.

Up to this point it was nip and tuck, with the Davis guy using everything but his Hollywood connections to subdue a fighting Watson.

Routing Battle

It was a thrilling rousing battle that had the faithful in stitches throughout. The popular Whipper, elected to receive terrific punishment in the first two falls, made no mistake about the final decision.

He was tossed helplessly out of the ring by the infuriated Davis in the second fall and the pair battled furiously in front of the boisterous pews.

"Wee Willie" had the idea that hair-pulling was after all, one of the regulations. He used it to advantage on numerous occasions. It was effective to say the least—and—when the two finally went into action things appeared to be different.

Infuriated, "Wee Willie", hit back but savagely. At one time he had the Whipper more or less entangled in the ropes upside down and seemed to punish the living daylights out of the Pride of East York.

After two thrilling falls the end came swiftly. Both men came to the ring at the sound of the gong. Wee Willie" started to leap swiftly to the attack in an effort to catch Watson off guard. "Silly Boy".

Sandy O'Donnell, elongated villain of the piece used all his villainous tricks to subdue the popular Sliding Billy Hansen in the semi-final. It was a ripsnorting match that should be brought back. Referee Fox split the decision. It was a draw.

Jack Carter, newcomer here, was matched against Frank Violo, of Montreal, in the curtain-jingler. Valois, the "villain" used all his tactics but his bright newcome to Belleville met the foe at his own game and pinned him for his first victory here.

Two-Buck Flier Will be Taken On Pair in Plate

Toronto, May 25. (CP)—The winner of today's King's plate? Why, Bunty Lawless.

Practically everybody, from the Woodbine Park stable boys and hot-dog sellers to the one on the best, figure its industrialist E. P. Taylor's Epic or publisher George McCullagh's Speedy Irish (you know the luck of the Irish) in a shoo-in, with McCullagh's black colts getting the nod by a whisker. The way people look at it, either one will trot into the winner's enclosure shortly after 4 p.m., E.D.T. today.

But there must be at least a couple of good ones in the other 14 Canadian-breds. And top rating in this bureau's books for the nine-furlong event goes to Bunty Line, out of Bunty Lawless-Crinline.

As a sneaker, a two-buck flier is going on Grandchester, owned by the Braeside stable of Toronto. The black filly could lose by a city block, which wouldn't be too disappointing, or she could finish with Bunty Lawless, Epic or Speedy Irish chewing her tail. Which case the bettors who like to nibble at the long-shots would have a pay-off with enough to fill an oats sack.

The 1939 reason for going out on a limb in favor of the John Hendrie filly is that she is a ground on the turn in the six-furlong Plate trial a week ago and, although trailing Epic, was roaring at the finish. There's no reason he can't scamper home in front over the longer distance. He did all right as a two-year-old.

Shown Plenty of Stuff

Since the King's plate nominations went to Archibald quarters a few weeks ago the rail-birds and public have had trained their sights on Epic and Speedy Irish. They've shown the early riders plenty of stuff and most of the publicity for this 90th renewal is the oldest continuously-run race in North America has come their way.

Most of the others could have been mustering power in the infield of the mile oval for the attention they received. It also could be that trainers of the fillies and colts have intentionally kept them under wraps.

As a two-year-old, Speedy Irish is a star-studded record. He won the Canadian racing triple crown, the Coronation Futurity, Coronation Stakes and Clarendon Plate—and on this showing rates plenty consistent.

Epic is the mystery entry in the field. The Plate trial was the only race of his career, but he looked impressive but it isn't known if he can travel the Plate course at racing speed.

The answer will be known this afternoon. He's a colt.

Bunty Lawless, 1938 Plate winner for Toronto hotel-owner Willie Hortonsey, has produced some good ones.

CHIPS

OFF THE SHOULDER

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The men of Easton from the Batawan confines safari to Oshawa this awfternoon where they take on the rejuvenated Motor City aggregation under the guiding hands of one "Pye" Pyzer in a scheduled Central Ontario Baseball League battle. Slated over the showing of the team in Brockville last Tuesday, the Oshawa mentor is confident that he has a baseball team in the making that will be as good as any in the circuit. Bataswa lost a close game to the Petes in their opener and dropped the the second to the same team with a mediocre display in the field.

Since the COBL executive decided to open wide the import gates there has been a move on the friendship front on the part of Brockville and Oshawa to the USA where college players have been approached and in some cases signed. Now along comes word that Peterborough mentor Ed Murphy has his orbits glued on four Yankee collitch stars and if this is the case the calibre of baseball in the senior loop will be considerably improved. It is la, ye gods, the loop will get a mention in the Toronto sports pages.

With Oshawa, Peterborough and Brockville bolstering their teams with star imports, Bataswa had better start looking to its future. The Shoemen looked anything but impressive in their first home game here last Tuesday. Their feeding at times could come under the heading of "sloppy" and there was a lack of the desired fancier ay-plenty in the defensive corners. True, it is only the beginning of the season, but the same applies to the other three teams in the circuit.

But at the same time there are some gaps in the Bataswa nine that can be filled. It is to be hoped that Easton's Shoemen are to carry the gonfalon of this part of the district in the COBL that reinforcements will be added to the team and that a popular with Belleville baseball fandom and if this support is to continue the Shoemen management should make every effort to bring the team up to par as possible with the other teams in the loop. Oshawa, Peterborough and Brockville have been and are to their intentions of bringing in the best players available, if some of their plans materialize, and if Bataswa does nothing about it the Shoemen might find themselves in a bit of a hopeless position.

This department is not taking a dictatorial attitude as regards the Bataswa team. We have merely stated the facts as we can, at least as far as that goes, we in this column are for best interests of baseball. We have followed the ups and downs of the Shoemen since the team was born and will continue to give them our support. We are all for them. But we want to see senior baseball in this city on a par with the rest of the league. In short, Bataswa should bolster its club in order to keep pace with the three other teams in the league.

This afternoon soccer makes the bow. Northern Electric clashes with Belleville Rovers in a scheduled tennis game at the Fair Grounds. As we have mentioned before in this column, there will be operators on hand to handle the play. We admission, kiddies, so go up there and see the game —but —take a nickel or a dime and toss it into the kitty. Game at 3 o'clock.

Memo to golfers: Listen, gang, just in case you don't know it, there's to be a mixed two-ball foursome at the Bay of Quinte Country Club links on Sunday. If you feel inclined just call the club professional and he will be glad to take care of your entry. And here's more information for youse guys and gals that claim you're not in the Sunday golf picture. There is to be a tournament at the Kingston Club. And that lis for the nonce.

No it isn't. Just remember, The King's Plate at four today. We've a hunch and deserve an Epic. To win, swelp me, we'll join the next Pyramid club that comes along. Sorry, we shouldn't resurrect the dead. Mrs. Peter Dundas Street thought she was kidding the troops. Tsk, tsk, Betty, you should be more careful. That was not yours truly you called up a few days ago from the Income Tax Extraction Department, in other words, the Income Tax blokes.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Every golfer knows, at least hazily, (it took me years to learn and some days I don't seem to know even now) the purpose of the different irons, but to make this understanding of the functions of the different clubs sharp and vivid, let's take a look at the irons of the different clubs and take a straight-faced iron. It's the purpose of this No. 1 or 2 club to deliver you distance—primarily. When you get down to the middle distance iron, like the No. 4, 5 and 6, you are then seeking placement and a definite distance rather than just distance. When you consider the No. 7, 8 and 9 irons you definitely want a particular kind of flight, specific distance and very little roll. Placement with these short distance, highly lofted irons is definitely a major consideration. You hit down at the ball with all irons from No. 5 up through No. 9 and you do this so that the loft of the face will give you the flight called for by that particular situation. And because you are hitting the ball with irons on the downswing, you automatically take a pivot since the low point in the arc of your swing with all highly lofted irons occurs after impact with the ball.

Sport Shorts From Britain

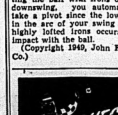
London, May 28 (CP)—Pretty dark-haired Jean Phethean is in love. And men don't even come into the picture.

"Jean's passion is roller-skating and it's now her the British women's figure championships for the last four years. Next month at Manchester she will be Britain's main challenge for the world's women's championships in Barcelona.

When Jean finishes work every day—she is a comptometer operator—she goes to the rink near her Manchester home and practises alone for hours. After that it's home to bed.

She considers sleep an important part of training. Sunday finally came to prevent her from going to movie theatres and dances but she doesn't mind.



"Roller skating is everything to Jean," says Mrs. Nellie Harwell, director of the Levenshulme Rink where Jean trains. "She practises for hours every day."

"I have seen her do six steps over and over again for two hours just to get one movement right."

There is one man in Jean's life —Kenneth Burn, 21-year-old writer. He is the other half of the skating partnership started when they were kids. They have become European pairs champions.

Ken will partner Jean again when they skate for the title at Herne Bay June 4, and later for the world's title at Barcelona.

It was a lovely morning.

Intercounty Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

It was a sad night for Jim Loader, Stratford's hard-working third baseman.

His error in the first inning of last night's senior Intercounty baseball fixture at Stratford with two out cost the Nationals a 6-3 loss to Guelph Maple Leafs who garnered four runs in that session.

Waterloo made it five straight and moved into the league's top spot by stopping the Brantford Red Sox, 8-5.

In the Nickel Belt - Senior League, Windsor's Rochon Brothers—Hurler Dennis and third-baseman Leo—led the Coniston buzzers to a 7-3 victory over Copper Cliff Redmen.

At Stratford, Vern Richardson pitched a losing game in the Maple Leafs' first victory- faux pas. Arn Cooper of Guelph was credited with the win.

Frankie Liscombe, Guelph coach, provided the fielding thrills grabbing Billy Flick's hard smash on the ground in the seventh and sharing two difficult fouls. Coach Pappy Smith, playing his first game of the season for the Nationals, snared Frank Redmond's right-field drive with one hand and claimed batting honors with three hits in five appearances.

At Waterloo, the Brantford squad opened strongly with three runs in the first frame, but the Tigers knotted the count via a three-run homer by second baseman Jim Muldoon. Playing-manager Don Gallinger clubbed a two-run homer in the third to give the surging Tigers the lead.

Yankees, Dodgers Hottest Teams in Majors as Season Nears End of First Quarter

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees are the hottest teams in baseball as the pennant racers swing past the quarter-pole.

At the end of the first six weeks of the 24 - week major league season, the Dodgers are tied with the defending Boston Braves for the National League lead. The Yankees enjoy a solid, 4½-game edge in the American.

It took the youthful Brooks a time to get rolling but they sizzled through the west on their first long road trip. Back home at Ebbets field last night, they moved up even with the Braves by beating the Boston ace, Johnny Sain, 4-0.

Preacher Roe, a not-so-youthful Dodger, turned in his second straight shutout, with the help of a four-run seventh inning against Sain, who struck out nine batters.

Poor pitching — a familiar ailment — cost New York Giants a chance to take over the lead. Clint Hartung failed to get past the third inning as the Phillies clubbed five Giant throwers for 14 hits and a 9-3 victory.

Del Ennis hit a two - run homer and a single, driving in three runs to lead the Phils back into the win column.

Cardinals Win

Al Brazle and Eddie Kazak combined to beat Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 for St. Louis Cardinals. Brazle scattered nine Pirate hits and Kazak hit a homer off Murry Dickson with a man on base to account for all the Card scores.

Johnny Schmitz made it a clean sweep for the second time for the National by pitching Chicago Cubs to a 3-1 edge over Cincinnati. Emil Verdan was the big wheel for the Bruins with a double and two singles to send Howie Fox down to his fouth loss. He also played brilliant ball in the field.

Eddie Lopat, top pitcher in the American, continued to reverse his normal spring form with 5th straight victory, usually Ed does not start to win until hot weather time. The chunky Yankee southpaw blanked the second - place Philadelphia A's with six hits, 3-0. It was the seventh Yankee victory in their last eight starts, all at home.

Tommy Henrich eased Lopat's task with a two - run homer off Joe Coleman in the first inning. Yogi Berra added the other Yank run with his fifth homer in the fourth.

Indians Back

Cleveland started its season again with a mock "reopening day" and got off on the right side of the ledger with a 4-0 whitewash of the Chicago White Sox. Al Benton, purchased from Sacramento in April, did a better job than Bobby Feller did on the real opening day. Benton, 38-year-old Detroit castoff, threw a six-hitter at the Sox while the Tribe hopped on Bill Wight for two in the 3rd and two more in the seventh.

Detroit returned home from a poor eastern trip to break a six-game losing streak with a 5-4 edge over St. Louis.

Rain washed out a scheduled night game between Washington and Boston. It was a big night for attendance. Led by the Yankees' 50,581, the six night games attracted a total of 176,900 paid.

Legal Fish Hogs Too Common

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
Noted Sportsman, Author And Creator of Sabuae Tackles

Try as I will, I can't find justification for the behavior of some of our "sportsmen." I try to make allowances and to put myself in the other fellow's shoes, but to me if I can't get his slant on things. Somehow it doesn't work out.

Today I received a letter from a friend of mine who watched a party of fishermen in action last Sunday. These men were using spinning rods and were working over one of our good streams, using minnows for bait.

That evening these eight men left the stream with eighty fine trout. The fish were of ample size and no ordinary family could possibly have eaten more than five of them. Just the same, those boys all took their legal limits.

The stream is not a large one and can hold only a limited supply of adult fish. Yet these fellows went to work systematically, and deliberately cleaned out the supply of fish.

Another Fish Hog

Last season I met a fisherman on the bank of one of our streams and was stopped to pass the time of day. In reply to my inquiry about his luck he said, "Good, I've had a good day this year on this stream. Took my limit ten straight days."

Ten legal limits in Pennsylvania means one hundred trout. Yet here this fellow was, striving for his eleventh limit of fish.

A friend in Wisconsin writes me that legal fish hogs are causing some self comment around Wisconsin's Sunset Lake. Night fishing is allowed in Wisconsin and the big rainbows of Sunset Lake are really taking a beating.

Two fellows took in one night twenty-one beautiful trout ranging in size from sixteen to twenty-two inches. They were back again the next night to take twenty more fish of ideal size.

And it does beat all hell what some people will do to get their names and, still better, their pictures into public print. Have you seen these heroes lined up behind shameful catches of game fish, all beautifully portrayed in the advertising pages of the outdoor magazines.

Assist Abuses

That's another thing I can't understand—why tackle manufacturers, who cater to the angling trade, will continue to publish these dead-fish pictures. They must have a reason. Evidently such pictures sell tackle. Just the same, you'd think that these companies would realize that it is false economy to encourage killing large numbers of fish.

One man who lives in this vicinity marched into the newspaper office one day last year with a limit catch of large trout. Unfortunately he talked with a reporter who is not a fisherman. That evening our astonished eyes were greeted by a picture of this brief, proudly displaying his catch. With the picture was published interview explaining that he brought home four hundred and twenty-five trout last year but this year he hoped to do better.

This is the sort of thing that gives the Conservation Departments of our nation a severe collective headache. The legislatures have their hands tied. Every time they try to lower the limits to reasonable proportions the "sportsmen" apply so much political pressure that the measure dies aborning.

Returns Most of Fish

I suppose that I catch a good many more fish than most folks. I shoulder all my limit every day. Yet during the first four weeks of the fishing season I killed exactly eight trout.

The rest of the fish that I caught were unhooked carefully and returned to the water. These will live to fight another day. I'm not exaggerating when I say that I honestly believe that I get more fun out of my fishing than the great majority of the fishermen.

Last March, while I was in Florida, we spent two wonderful days down among the Ten Thousand Islands. Fishing with big fly rods and streamer flies, five of us hooked and landed over six hundred game fish of various sorts. Of these we killed seventeen. The rest went back into the water, none the worse for their experience.

After the first thrill that comes with displaying a large catch to admiring friends, dead fish are a pain in the neck. They must be cared for, cleaned, and then preserved until you want to eat them.

Ignorance Chief Cause

Only on strict orders from my better half that we are due for a mess of trout will I inflict upon myself the messy chore of bringing home a batch of dead fish. It's far less trouble and, in the final analysis, much more fun, to release them and watch them swim away.

Maybe these legal fish hogs are "fish-hungry." Maybe they are broke and need fish to feed their families, although I doubt that. Maybe they simply don't know better than to keep more than their rightful share. Three cheers for me and to hell with the whole wide world! That seems to be their creed.

I sometimes wonder whether I'm doing the wise thing by telling some of them when they can catch more fish. Maybe I'd be smarter not to urge them to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods. They do enough damage without my coming along to give them new ideas.

Toronto, May 28 — (CP) — A lot of big names in golf tee-off this week in the 31st American Professional Golfers Association tournament. And among the more easily remembered names was that of Gene Sarazen, taking what he claimed to be his last fling at the title he once held.

In tribute to one of the best golfers in several decades, Bill Ottawa Journal) Westwick writes:

"When you go back through the pages of golfing history, it's difficult to discover any of the greats to top Sarazen who learned the game as a caddy and, by sheer determination and a flaming competitive spirit, lifted himself along the paths of golfing glory to fame and affluence."

Useless Delays

Occasionally players have a legitimate protest against a referee's decision, but Michael (Kingston Whig - Standard) Rodden thinks too much time is wasted by players or managers who hold up a game arguing with officials.

"As a rule, fans will bear with managers or players on a legitimate protest, but this sort of thing is often overdone in baseball, just as it is in hockey," says Mike. "In the end, umpires are not by way of changing their decisions and there is nothing more irritating for the customers than to have a ball game constantly interrupted by the bickering of performers."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 28 (AP)—Dan Dodge, heading for Britain to join the Jack Kramer-Bobby Riggs professional tennis troupe and Fred Perry for a tackle sponsors at Wembley, has promised to return for the United States pro championships at Forest Hills, June 20...and from all reports, Don is really hot for a guy who is nearly 34 years old and who was a bit plump the last time we saw him...In practice in California Pancho Gonzalez took only one set in 38 from Budge and Bob Falkenburg and Ted Schroeder couldn't do that well...Looks like California Jackie Jensen, probably the season's most sought-after college baseball player, made a smart move when he signed with Oakland instead of the Yankees. Now he'll still have 16 chances of making the majors...At Texas Farmhand Jackie probably would be forced to associate with such characters as Wally Hood and Hank Workman from Southern Illinois at Newark.

Shorts and Shells

Ray Wade Hill, who won the P.G.A. qualifying medal, is another product of Craig Wadle's "school" at Winged Foot. Others include Claude Harmon, who succeed Wood Jackie Burke, Paul Runyan, Clarence Clark, Vic Ghezzi and Jimmy McHale...

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbon

Times have changed and with it the bridge ideas of the early experts. If you are a young old timer, you will no doubt still recall some of their awful rules.

Take the nightmare that went the rounds about : determining when you had enough for an opening two bid. It took an adding machine, a memory marvel, and a strong constitution to decide it.

You were told to total so many and a half of these and those, add a half for this or that; append a plus for each whatnot; and if the dog had fleas or something you had enough for a two bid. . . .

It sounded impressive. It worked often enough to seem efficient. It was also unnecessary. All it did was clutter up the brain with a lot of figuring that could have been avoided.

An opening of two in a suit is a simple signal. It says: "Partner, help me keep the bidding alive until we reach a game. It matters not how weak or strong your hand. Just help me keep alive."

Such an opening admits a holding that includes at least nine tricks. With nine tricks in one hand, a game should be tried by a pair. Seldom is partner found absolutely trickless.

♠ None
♥ K Q 2
♦ J 10 9 3
♣ A K Q 5 4 3

Count the tricks: one for each high card (ace or king or queen) and one for each short card (each card short of three). Your seven high and the nines in your hearts are a total of ten tricks.

Since you have nine or more, open with a bid of two in a suit. This gives your pair plenty of chance to count the information before game is reached. You may even discover if there is slam.

Your opening bid will be in which suit? Clubs, of course. It is your longest suit of biddable character. Come with two clubs. Some bridge players make a problem of every simple task.

Toronto, May 27 — (CP) — Mrs. Gertrude Dennis of Toronto Thursday was granted a final divorce from Gerrard Dennis, alleged society jewelry thief now awaiting trial at White Plains N. Y. Mrs. Dennis obtained a decree nisi in 1947 but her counsel said application for a final decree was not made earlier because of his client's reduced circumstances.

Theatre Season Closes Next Week, 'Death of Salesman' Best Play

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, May 28 (CP) — The Manhattan theatre season of 1948-49 closes next week with Arthur Miller's magnificent drama of a frustrated salesman as its outstanding achievement.

"Death of a Salesman," the sombre story of one of the "Little Men" of business who found he could not go on, well deserved the honors heaped upon it, including a Pulitzer Prize and the Critics' Circle Award as the season's best play.

Memorable also among the productions of the last 12 months were two fine musicals, "South Pacific" with the superb voice of Ezio Pinza, and "Kiss Me Kate" a sprightly tale based in part on Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew."

Among the really worth while things in the season about to end were "The Madwoman of Chaillot" with Martita Hunt, "Anne of the Thousand Days" with Rex Harrison as Henry VIII and Joyce Redman as the unfortunate Anne Boleyn; and the performances of Robert Morley and Peggy Ashcroft in "Edward, My Son."

Fairy plays were prominent in the season's varied fare. An adaptation of Jean-Paul Sartre's "Red Gloves" had a lengthy run with Charles Boyer in the leading role.

The revivals included Max Weall's triumph in "Diamond Lil." It seemed all set for a good run but Miss West suffered an ankle injury which made it necessary to suspend the production. She is not yet well enough for the show to reopen.

Canadian Addijen

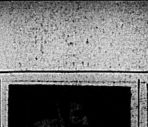
Betty Low, Ottawa dancer, this week took over a terpsichorean role from Nancy Franklin in the successful revue, "Lend an Ear." Another Canadian, comedian George Hall of Toronto, has been with the show since it opened here last December.

Preserves Report

"The Happy Time" the adaptation for the stage of Robert Fontaine's delightful book of the same name, which reflects a small boy's view of life in Ottawa and Hull, is one step nearer production. Robert Lewis has been obtained to direct it, current reports say. Producers Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II now face the problem of finding a qualified juvenile actor to play the 12-year-old lad around whom the action centres.

Three Canadians Admit Being Ex-Convicts

Syracuse, N.Y., May 28 (AP) —Three Canadians, who police say admit being ex-convicts, are being held for United States immigration authorities after they were taken into custody Friday.



Detective Sgt. Arthur Casey identified the trio as: Alexander MacDonald, 30, Alfred Goldfinch, 26, and Harry Deakins, 31, all of Toronto.

Casey said the three were taken into custody in a downtown hotel after a delegate to a Knights of Columbus convention reported the theft of $165 from his hotel room. Casey said no evidence was found to connect the trio with the theft.

Samuel E. Lyons, officer in charge of the United States immigration office here, said warrants would be requested from the Buffalo headquarters charging all with illegal entry into the United States.

Lyons said their failure to declare felony records when entering the United States could constitute illegal entry.

In addition, Lyons said, a felony charge may be pressed against Goldfinch here. He has previously been deported from the United States.

AT THE McCARTHY — "What's cooking, Ma?" Marjorie Main tests the family soup, while keeping an appraisalsome eye on her fifteen year old "son" at a scene in Universal-International's "The Further Adventures of Ma and Pa Kettle," one of Ontario McCarthy Theatre, Percy Kilbride is co-starred.

Hollywood, May 28 (AP)—Let us delve into the Hollywood language.

Hollywood has its own idiom. Listeners to comedy air shows often hear segments of the language with such foreignisms as "Madman Muntz," "Honest John," "Cucamonga," "Smog" and the like.

Having been brought up on the language as a native, I feel able to interpret it for outsiders. I am preparing a dictionary of Hollywood terms with their special, local meanings. Here are a few of the entries:

Actor—A man who hates directors.

Agent—An optimist with a client.

Boffo—A surefire success, such as Esther Williams in a bathing suit.

Colossal—Good.

Daring—Designation of any picture that wont show a profit.

"Darling!"—A variation of "hey, you!"

Director—A man who hates actors.

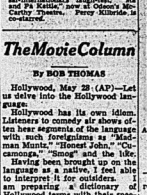
Gorgeous—Description of any color film.

Great—Mediocre.

Magnificent—Not Bad.



Model—Any female Hollywood resident under 40.

Press Agent—A man who can prove Barnum wasn't wrong.

Sensational—Kinda punk.

Starlet—A chorus girl out of work.

This is just the first edition of a volume which may overshadow Noah Webster. I may go after verbs next.

AT THE BELLE — Joel McCrea and Alexis Smith are starred in Warner Bros. action ... saga, "South of St. Louis," featuring Zachary Scott and Dorothy Malone. The picture, is filmed in Technicolor.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I said, Hay pop?

I hear the pop berd calling, pop said.

Meaning what, and I said, Would it be expensive for me to take some boxing lessons?

Well, the more you took the more it would mount up, pop said, and I said, How many lessons do you think I'd need to be able to lick Reddy Marty?

Has Reddy been pushing you around? pop said, and I said, Well not exactly, but he probably would if I talked back to him.

You'd better use extreme judgment in talking back to him, pop said, and I said, Beleeve me I do. But heck, pop, it's no fun having to be so careful all the time how you talk back to somebody. Gosh, I mean jimminies, he thinks he can talk to me any way he darn wants to. This afternoon he was marking squares on the street with chalk, and he told me if I didn't stop jumping in them he'd land on me so hard I'd think it was a earthquake. Heck, he dont own the street, I said.

It seems to me I heard you talking rather ruffly to little Shorty Judge not long ago, pop said. It seems to me you were threatening his life, or at least his health, he said, and I said, Oh that was different. I was trying to look at my Speed Kelly comic book while I was looking at it, so I had to warn him, I said.

I see what you meen, pop said. Well, all I can suggest is, you and Shorty had better take boxing lessons together. A small class in that will be less expensive than individual instruction, and then Shorty can learn to keep you at bay while you're learning to hold your own, against Reddy, he said.

Being partly sarcastic and proving that everybody is libel to take advantage of their advantages, including me.

Vancouver Team Wins Blind Bowling Title

(By The Canadian Press)

A five man team from Vancouver is the winner of the Canadian five pin blind bowling championship.

The contestants rolled up their scores in various cities last week-end. Results, announced at Toronto Friday by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, show the winning team members averaged slightly better than 183 for three games each — a total of 2,756 points. Hamilton's team came second with a total score of 2,671 and the Prince Albert, Saskatchewan team was third with 2,339.

Other teams in order of standing were: Regina, Toronto, Windsor, Saskatoon, London, Victoria, New Westminster and Brantford.

St. Catharines Rams and Toronto Notre Dame were admitted Friday to the Ontario Junior Big Four Football League. They replace Oshawa Red Raiders and Toronto Argonauts. The other teams in the league are Toronto Parkdale Lions and Hamilton Wildcats.

League executive members, meeting at Toronto Friday, recommended that a Canadian championship playoff be held again this season. It was held last season for the first time in 10 years and the title went to Hamilton Wildcats, who defeated Saskatoon Hilltops.

Chuck Rowan secretary of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, said Friday at Toronto that the teams have entered intermediate ranks and more entries are expected before the June 3 deadline.

Tentative groupings have already been made for 10 entries: Orangeville, Fergus, North Peel, Norval and Woodbridge have been placed in one group, and Shawesen Six Nations Iroquois, Brantford, Port Dover, Hespeler and Dundas for a second group.

The other nine teams may be placed in two groups with an interlocking schedule or in one group with a single schedule. The teams are Brooklin, Toronto Maitlands, Maple, Port Hope, Toronto, Newmarket, Midland, Bradford and Huntsville.

At New York, Chris Rogers, Toronto jockey, said Friday that if Canadian jockeys could ride in the United States without undue hardship under contract to an American stable it would be "the greatest thing in the world for the Canadian boys".

He was referring to an investigation to be made by the National Association of State Racing Commissioners into riding, independently in the United States.

Rocky Graziano, the bad boy of boxing, cleared another hurdle in his fight to get back in the ring when the National Boxing Association reinstated him.

Abe J. Greene, N.B.A., commissioner at Paterson, N.J., announced the reinstatement which permits the former middleweight champion to box in all N.B.A. states except in instances where local bans have been imposed.

Last June Rome, New York Boxing Commission listed its suspension on Graziano then at 180.

Shortstop Stan Tarczewski and second baseman Tony Babich have been given their outright release by Jack Corbett, Athletic of the Border Baseball League. Maj. William Cox, Phillies general manager said that Harry G. Wilson righthanded hurler obtained from Reno, Nevada, has been placed on the suspended list. Wilson was unable to reach a salary agreement with the Athletics and has agreed to buy back his contract.

Richard Malcolm Ross, 63, well known Saskatchewan curler, died at Regina Friday. He skipped the Saskatchewan rink at the Dominion curling championship in 1929.

Irsel Wilkes, 69, a familiar figure on Toronto's sporting world, died Friday. For 20 years he was assistant to the late Abe Orpen, handicapper at the race track. Born in England, Wilkes brought the first roller skating hockey team to Toronto.

Johnny Green held the Picton batters to three hits while Alex Tait, Picton hurler scattered five hits in a tight pitching duel. Mallory hit for three bases and Murney Green and Bennett got two baggers for Point Anne. Perry and Lighthall were the only Picton hitters.

Engineers Dunk Anti Tank Regt. By 24-6 Score

Scoring in every inning but the seventh, Provincial Engineers rolled in a 24-6 victory over Anti-Tank last night in a Commercial Softball League game played at the East Hill Playgrounds.

Nine walks and an 18 hit barrage contributed to the one-sided contest, which was witnessed by a small crowd.

The Engineers opened the scoring in the top of the first on a walk, a single, and a passed ball. They added four more in the second on a walk, a double and two singles and scored another in the third on two walks and two errors. They continued their scoring ways by counting twice in the fourth once in the fifth and five times in the sixth.

Anti-tank broke into the scoring column in the bottom half of the sixth tallying a brace of runs on a walk, a single and a double. Three singles produced two more for them in the seventh.

The Provincial bluejackets went to work in their end of the eighth pouring over seven runs on five walks, four singles and two doubles. Emerson came in to relieve Kimmett in the eighth with two away and relired the side with no further runs being done, in the eighth. The Engineers teed off on his slants in the ninth, though, for two home runs and a double for three runs.

Play Sprinkled With Pair of Revenge Battles

Richmond, Va., May 26 (AP) — The Globe of marbles plays in the P.G.A. drama being unfolded today over the Hermitage Country Club layout is sprinkled with a pair of revenge battles in the tournament's lower brackets.

Slamin' Sammy Snead, the sweet-swinger from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., has a score to settle with Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del.

In the other revenge struggle, Jim Turnesa of Briar Cliff, N.Y. will tee off against Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., determined to get even with the crooning golf star.

Snead hasn't forgotten a day last February. The event was the Texas open. The place was San Antonio. Douglas Snead's opponent today, nosed out the slammer by a single stroke to win the Lone Star State classic. Needing an ace on the final hole to tie Douglas, Snead missed by a mere 18 inches.

Turnesa remembers 1940 and Portland, Ore.—the P.G.A. Jim had eliminated Dutch Harrison, Jug McSpaden, Ben Hogan, and Byron Nelson. Then came the quarter-finals and Demaret. Turnesa was three up after the morning round, but Demaret won, 2 and 5.

Only nine of the 18 third-rounders count as "labelled sharpshooters". The remainder, some of them on the move up golf's glory ladder, are mostly all youngsters comparatively unknown or professionals who took time out from clubs chores to qualify and play in the P.G.A.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

Polly McMurray thought surely Squaw Peak would ignite at any moment.

Sunrise made an overwhelming brilliance behind it. Golden spears fanned out, piercing clouds; then, losing intensity in blue, it turned the purple of the mountain second to Jean against those rays as if straining to hold them back.

One spear sneaked through a crack; crimson and struck Polly's horse, Pintado. The conchos on his bridle were high-lighted, and the hand-tooled silver on his saddle were little mirrors. Pintado said a flattery "Whi-hi-hi-hi-hi" and started galloping of his own accord, just because he felt so doggone good this morning. Polly broke into song.

"Arizona maiden,
Beautiful and gay,
Hold a woman for you
When you want to play.
Leave your cares behind you,
Love is here to stay;
Boys and girls are singing,
Can't you hear them say—
Viva-a-a-a Lo Fiesta-a-a-a!"

It was a snatch of gaiety from last year's fiesta, but Polly, a hilarious week which still lingered in her heart as a time to sing and than a fiesta week, it had been Polly's very first. She was a new Frontier University, had been chosen fiesta queen. Leo Carillo himself had come down from Hollywood to lead the parade, just ahead of the gaily decorated float. And that evening Gary Cooper, who was then film-ing a picture near Phoenix, had waved to have the first dance with her. Gary Carillo had defied him, and the two movie stars had fought a pretend duel about the breeches in many ways, and singularly mature in others.

About 100 yards to her left was a gigantic capital P, the college initial made of white rocks visible for miles on this precipitous slope of Ho-Ho-Kam Mountain. But immediately below her lay Frontier itself.

It was 1,264 feet straight down (the mathematics department had long since measured it) from this point to the Administration Building. Polly felt small in the saddle to split, with no sense of intellectuality. Even the settlers were right, the spit would turn and curve and presently hit the A.B. She had scoffed often, although the spit was hard to see after the 600-foot level. She would, actually, if she could spit through the chimney or something and hit the new president on the head. A Dr. Palmer, Kenyon Nor-D. Palmer, appears had said. She felt no disrespect about the spitting at him. Just childish. She would never have actually tried it even if it were feasible, which it wasn't. She wouldn't even have mentioned it. But then, Polly McMurray was virtually teen-age still; twenty-one is out of the teens, but is not old. She did chide herself momentarily, though, because she would be a senior starting on Monday, and seniors absolutely have to be dignified.

Her spurs touched Pintado, and in a quarter-hour or so she had wound back and forth, back and forth, back and forth along the down-trail and stopped with her in front of the main dormitory. She tied him to a hitching rack there and walked across the compound to the A.B. Since this was only Friday not many students were likely to be seen. Registration would be a rush tomorrow, but Polly had agreed to ride up the Verde River and fish in a pool with her brother Ward, on Saturday, so she'd sign up for school today.

The campus was neat, cleaned and raked for school opening. The five buildings had been designed without much imagination, but even so traditions already had begun to cling vaguely to them like old ivy or like the peculiar sick mold. There was the room where a United States Senator's daughter had lived until she was graduated in 1936. There was the library given by an old-time cattleman who could neither read nor write. Yonder the dormitory room where pretty Princess Yvonne, from one of those funny European countries, had spent almost a year and then died tragically from heart disease. The school had loved Yvonne, and Yvonne's family had sent over a gratitude check—the only funds which had kept the struggling little college alive during these recent years.

Still humming her fiesta song, Polly thought momentarily of those things as she walked up the Administration Building steps and turned to the registrar's office.

The door there was nine feet tall and four inches thick. Of heavy oak and strap iron, it weighed twice Polly McMurray's 109 pounds, and because it opened outward she had to have one booted foot against the door jamb and pull the iron handle with her two hands.

"Uhh!" she grunted a little, straining at them.

WHOOF!

The great door exploded from within. Some irresistable force obviously had struck the immovable object.

"For pete's sake!" exclaimed Polly, sitting—and considerably—on the stone steps.

The huge rancher hat she wore had been jerked momentarily to one side of her black head. Her blue riding skirt, fringed cowgirl style and divided for comfort, was flounced up above her knees, revealing two of the prettiest legs imaginable.

"Hoi - i - i - am—!" The irresistable force was trying to speak.

"I should think you are!" snapped Polly. "Whatever is—are you trying to do, something? Can't—"

"Y-yes! . . . I mean—no! You see—you—"

He had been waving a yellow sheet of paper, obviously a telegram, but now appeared now to be distinctly in his way. He fumbled at it. He was a huge fellow, six feet or more and somehow as powerful looking as the oak door behind him. He was blond and his light skin was crimson now. He couldn't find the paper like a boy he suddenly held the telegram in his hand, then stooped to pick up Polly McMurray.

He lifted her easily, boldly, as if she were a doll.

Quite unconsciously, in fact, he had her momentarily a foot off the stone floor and inspected her closely.

"Then you humph!" he asked, earnestly, through the telegram.

Polly's eyes widened . . . and grabbed the paper before repeating: "Are you short? Oh my!"

"Yes. No. . . . No!"

It all hadn't taken a half minute, and now Polly burst into laughter. At herself and the funny scene she must have made. The laughter was genuine, musical. She looked at the big fellow and poked him once in the chest with her finger, an unconscious gesture.

"It's all right," she declared then. "I'm sorry."

"No! No, I'm the one to be sorry. Polly wouldn't—one of the students, hunh?"

"Yes. Polly McMurray."

"Oh. Oh fine! My name is Ken Palmer, I'm here, too."

"Yes? The! This is a girl's school!"

"I know, but—look here, this telegram concerns me herself! . . . Had you? Joy Boone's coming! Joy Boone! She's going to school here! Polly, really, looking up at his beaming face in keen amusement, but impressed by his size never even so. Then all at once his name clicked. Palmer! She was suddenly appalled.

"Maybe you better calm down, Dr. Palmer, and start at the beginning. I'm open to conviction but—you look awful young to be a college president! And who in the high hopping hades is Joy Boone?"

Apparently he did not hear. He was staring again. Polly had begun quite naturally to adjust her hat, pitting stray waves back where they belonged and disclaiming the wisps that wanted to stay out in the breeze. She had to lift her arms to do it and this gave her added grace and beauty. She was not ill at ease because of such search things and she wore city clothes. Like any sensible girl, she knew when she had the right frame for a picture; she knew, without conceit, that she was pretty, for she had studied out this business of western togs a long while ago.

Liberal Party Assured Victory In Newfoundland

Already Have Sixteen Seats And Count Still Incomplete

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's Nfld., May 30 (CP)—The Liberal Party has won Newfoundland's first election as a province of Canada.

Outport returns today confirmed the forecast of Monday progressions that became apparent in early counting following the election Friday.

With 25 of the 27 seats heard from, the tally showed election of 16 Liberals, two Progressive Conservatives and one Independent. Each party was leading in three states.

The Liberal victories — most of them by overwhelming majorities — came from outport ridings but the party also polled a large vote where it lost or was trailing.

In the popular vote totals, the Liberals were ahead by more than two-to-one.

Prog. Conservatives found their greatest support in the two-member district of St. John's East Extern, their home island where one candidate was elected and three others leading.

When counting resumed at 9 a.m. NDT (7.30 a.m. EST) today 47 polls remained unheard from. Most had already captured 11 seats and appeared to be leading in the progressive Conservatives were elected to one seat and leading in two. The latter count followed the Friday election.

The Independent also had been elected.

Liberal Leader Joseph Smallwood — who won a thumping majority in Bonavista N., termed the election a "remarkable victory" and told reporters the new province "eclipsed about leading his wildest dreams."

By-Play Enjoyed

The Prime Minister seemingly enjoyed bits of by-play immensely, smiling and waving to the crowd.

Honorary degrees were also conferred on E. J. Pratt, noted poet and professor of English literature at Victoria College Toronto, and Henry Forbes August, Treasurer who received an honorary law degree.

In a brief address Mr. St. Laurent told the graduating class he had no patience with those who say the present generation is not something its elders had.

He contrasted the serious activity of student veterans of the Second World War with the "flaming youth" which characterized the period after the First World War.

Canadians, he added, have never been so conscious of their good fortune at living in Canada. Canadians have never been more united.

The Prime Minister spoke on three aspects of unity:

Unity of the family, the community and the country, and said all three will be richer and fuller human life built and lived by knowledge and warmed by understanding.

TRENTON GIRL WINS

Kingston, Ont., May 30 — (CP) — Muriel Hammond of Carleton Place, Ont., today was awarded a $500 scholarship by the Women's Aid of Kingston General Hospital. It was announced Sunday.

Miss Hammond is one of 47 young women who will graduate today from the hospital's School of Nursing.

A gold medal was won by Alice Jessie Fetterly of Trenton, Ont., and a similar award was awarded to Joyce Anita Hawkins of Pembroke, Ont.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—Synopsis: Weather is colder today but warmer today bringing an end to the cool weather of the past few days. High temperatures today will average nearly 10 degrees above those on Sunday and fine and warming is expected Tuesday.

Minister air is moving slowly northward from the Gulf of Mexico but only scattered showers or thunderstorms are accompanying the advance. There is little hope for an immediate end of the drought, which has stricken many sections of Southern Ontario.

McGILL HONORS PRIME MINISTER ST. LAURENT

Students Replace Horses in Shafts and Haul Premier Onto Campus

By DOUGLAS ROW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 30 (CP)—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent on a brief holiday from the election hustings, received a free degree and a free ride from McGill University today.

He was given the honorary Degree of Doctor of Civil Law from Principal F. Cyril James of McGill at the end of Convocation exercises which were a record class of more than 1,700 graduates into the world.

The Prime Minister was greeted at the main gate by McGill students. He arrived in one of the horse drawn carriages which take tourists on sight seeing trips up the mountain but on reaching the inside of the college grounds the horse was unhitched and students took over the wheel.

They pulled the Prime Minister into the campus area and the motorcade followed, about leading his wife.

24-DAY STRIKE AT FORD PLANT COMES TO END

Will Take Two Weeks For Full Production

Detroit, May 30 (AP)— About 1,200 Ford maintenance workers returned to their jobs today at the conclusion of the 24-day strike by the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

But the Ford Motor Company estimated it may be two weeks before full production is resumed in all its plants and 160,000 employees are back on the job.

An agreement lasting the main issue in the speed-up dispute to arbitration, was reached early Sunday after days of steady negotiations. About 65,000 U.A.W. members employed in the struck Rouge and Lincoln plants rattled off by big margins at meetings later in the day.

Ironically, neither company nor union will know for some time who actually won the strike that cost Ford and the workers an estimated $77,000,000.

Carrier Boys and Girls Of Ontario Intelligencer Enjoy Outing to Toronto

The final trip is over for the carrier boys of the Ontario Intelligencer but the memories of their thrilling and exciting trip to Toronto as guests of the Ontario Intelligencer will stay with them for some time to come.

The second half of the boys and girls were taken to Toronto on Saturday where they saw Toronto from atop of the Bank of Commerce, saw Riverdale Zoo, Maple Leaf Gardens and the Royal Ontario Museum and they topped it off by attending the Toronto Maple Leaf ball club in action against the Buffalo Bisons.

Twenty-seven boys made the trip in a Rawson bus and they were in charge of Richard L. Cowan, circulation manager of the Ontario Intelligencer, and three carrier girls were driven in a special car by Glenda D. Tice and they were also accompanied by Miss Betty Donnelly.

Many of the carriers were on hand at 7.15 on Saturday morning and shortly after 8.00 a.m., the bus left Belleville. Wm. E. Riley was on hand to take pictures of the group and a few parents were also there to give their children last minute instructions. They were well stocked with comic books, chocolate bars and autograph books. It did not take long before the bus was really rolling along the open highway and not a thing was missed by any of the boys.

Short Stop Made

A short stop was made near Bowmanville and the boys and girls loaded up with hot dogs, pop and chocolate bars. From there it was an easy drive right into Toronto on the new dual highway. The first stop that was made was the observation tower of the Bank of Commerce, where the boys had a delightful view of Toronto as the sky was very clear about that time.

Immediately following this they left and it was decided to be their favorite pastime and that was eating. A very delicious meal was served them at Child's new restaurant on Yonge Street.

U.S. Commerce Secretary Proposes Fewer Trade Barriers Between Countries

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—Charles Sawyer, United States Secretary of Commerce, today proposed tightening of economic ties between Canada and the United States.

Reduction of trade barriers should be his big step in the right direction, he said at the opening of the second Canadian International Trade Fair here.

Closer integration of Canadian and United States economy will strengthen both countries and emphasize to all the world the "area of real liberality and Jointer," Mr. Sawyer said.

Canada's dollar shortage, he said, is part of a world problem in which all countries will be involved. Import restrictions were a "minor disaster" to some United States industries, he said, "but those who have taken the trouble to try to understand Canada's problems know how necessary it was for Canada to restrict imports from goods and countries."

Aged Man Dazed, Thinks Present Is Year 1907

Cookeville, Ont., May 30 (CP)— A man identified as "J. Descriers" confused police here Sunday by implying that he was the "original Big Van Horne."

Brought in by police after he told a youth he was lost, Descriers said he could not remember his name but did know he was in Cookeville, near Toronto. He said he was 39 years old and that the year was 1907.

Police identified the man, who appeared to be 70-75 years of age from the collar of his shirt which had his name inked on it.

An unusual charge of vagrancy was laid against him to provide him shelter until his home could be found. He was taken to Brampton jail.

Although taking treatments for years for a heart condition, he refused to live any way but "at full speed." He suffered three attacks of coronary thrombosis. The fourth took his life.

DOG TEAM REACHES MISSING PLANE DOWNED AT SEA

Carried Three Men And All Uninjured

Winnipeg, May 30 — (CP) — A dog team standby of northern transportation — was out over aircraft in the search for a civilian plane forced down on sea ice Friday when running short of fuel.

The RCAF, which had put two Lancaster aircraft into the search area, the western fringes of the Hudson Bay coastline north of Churchill, planned to expand the searching force to four today.

But late Sunday night the grounded plane, a ski - equipped Norseman based at Churchill, reported by radio that a dog team had reached it from Chesterfield Inlet, N. W. T., 1,000 miles north of Winnipeg and on the west coast of Hudson Bay.

The Norseman carried three men — Pilot Charles Weber, Ray Hjorleifson, the engineer; and an army signals field sergeant identified as Newnham.

Call on Brigades Of Four Towns Help Fight Fires

Victoria Harbour, Ont., May 30 (CP)—Firemen here had to call on brigades from four neighboring towns Sunday to fight a blaze which threatened several business buildings in the downtown business section.

The fire started in a general store and spread across the street to a barber shop and poolroom. The store was completely destroyed by the blaze and damage to the shop and poolroom were believed to exceed $50,000 when firemen brought the fire under control.

Heat was said to be so intense that the windows of the building here smashed. A garage was also badly scorched but the loss was partially covered by insurance.

Cause of the blaze is reported by Victoria Harbour firemen as being unknown. Victoria Harbour is 10 miles east of Midland.

Seven Have Narrow Escape in Lake As Rod Tears Through Boat Bottom

Oshawa, May 30 (CP)—Seven persons escaped possible death in the icy waters of Lake Simcoe Sunday after a motor launch they had tore through the bottom of a speed fishing craft a half-mile from shore.

The seven—three Oshawa couples and a guide—shivered halfnaked in a near-freezing wind for nearly an hour after stripping to their underwear in the expectation of having to swim for it. Desperate paddling with the one paddle and frenzied bailing of the water boat kept them afloat and moving until they reached shore.

The group, Mr. and Mrs. William Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Dean P. Ity and the unidentified guide, left Alderley, some 90 miles north of Toronto on a fishing trip. Out on the lake, they said today, they heard a terrific crash and water started to pour into the motorboat.

"We didn't panic," they said. "We paddle available and swinging of bailing cans followed. They lost most of their equipment and clothing in the desperate action of bailing, one member of the party said.

"We didn't care what went overboard—we were working for dear life and we knew we couldn't stop a second," he said.

Woman Is Found Beaten in Bed, Dies Soon After

Husband Held for Murder, Alarm Given by Neighbors

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 30 — (CP) — A mother of three was found slain early today and her husband was charged with her murder after what police said was a drinking - fighting spree in their west end apartment.

The husband John Olinsky, 36, formerly of Fort William, later of Sudbury, was in court on the charge and was remanded to June 7 for preliminary hearing.

The woman died shortly after police arrived in answer to an urgent call that a fight was going on in the apartment. They found the woman lying nude on the bed her head and body battered and marks on her throat.

Olinsky, who was in the apartment was arrested at the scene. He claimed his wife drank a portion of sweet cider Friday and said they could not find either the bottle or any of the contents. They said Olinsky told them both he and his wife were drinking during the night.

Neighbors put in the call for police after hearing sounds of slapping and other loud noises coming from the apartment.

Says Russia Uses Girls to Lure Yugoslav Officers

Belgrade, May 30 (AP) — Borba, newspaper of the Yugoslav Communist party today says Russia is using pretty girls in her Yugoslav offices this time in the form of "provocation against Marshal Tito's government."

It accuses the Russians of using girls and other inducements, including promises of high rank when the Tito regime is overthrown.

The newspaper says such a campaign is built on the fact that Tito clique in Russia began only a day after passage of resolution condemning a year ago blacklisting Yugoslavia's present leadership as traitors and pursuing "nationalistic Trotzkyite policies."

Moscow (AP)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda says today that Political Pic of Yugoslavia is pushing his country "into a blind alley."

D. G. Shepilov, chief of the propaganda and agitation administration in the Soviet Union's Communist party, makes the statement in a review of the 10th volume of Prime Minister Joseph Stalin's collected works. Shepilov writes:

"The path of Tito is the path of political careerists and turncoats leading into the camp of international bandits. Everybody teaches historical experience."

Traffic Halted By Upset Coal

Toronto, May 30 — (CP)—Traffic was delayed in Toronto's west end in the height of the morning rush hour today when a truck overturned and deposited eight tons of coal on busy Lakeshore Road opposite the Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

No one was hurt in the freak accident which occurred when the driver's steering gear jammed as he attempted to round a sharp curve.

The truck was righted and the road cleared a half - hour after the accident.

Shot by Police When he Fled From Theft Scene

Toronto, May 30 — (CP)—Police said today Charles Britain, 31, shot when he fled from the scene of a theft early today, and William Smith, 21, will be charged with shop - breaking and theft.

Four persons — one a woman — were surprised by police following the theft of a 25-pound safe from a store in suburban East York.

Britain was shot in the back by police, and hospital authorities said today there has been "a slight improvement" in his condition. Brittain's wife Hazel, also 31, was arrested, but police declined to say what charges will be laid against her. The fourth person — a man—escaped.

The group was surprised in an upstairs room of the store by officers on a routine check in a cruiser. The car was chased to a nearby gas station where the two cars collided and the quartet scattered. Constable John Aitkin fired, dropping Britain. The unopened safe was found in the trunk of the car.

Boat Paddle Instead of Rain Tumbles From Sky

It is only natural to expect water in the form of rain to fall out of the clouds but when boat paddles start tumbling out of the sky it is something else again.

But that was the experience of Mrs. R. J. Brooks, 38 Ridley Ave., who this morning reported a small light varnished paddle with a red-tip fell into her backyard from an aircraft based here. The paddle is presumed to have been an emergency oar with which light seaplanes are equipped and is thought to have become loose from the craft as it passed over the city. The paddle was taken to the local police station.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—Prices continued sliding lower for the fifth successive day here today. Base metals were under steady selling pressure to silo into lower ground and junior gold producers dipped. Industrials moved irregularly.

Consolidated Smelters led the downtrend in base metals, dipping $4 to a new low at $85. A wide list of base metal issues were lower as selling pressure increased steadily and many stocks sold at new lows for the year or longer.

Losses in the golds were scattered throughout junior producers. Seniors were quiet with Dome slagging 3-8 at 17 1-2. Macassa, Marsden, Malartic, Upper Canada, Eldona and Pickle Crow were among the losers.

Industrials moved without direction from a holidaying New York market. Papers showed a weaker tone as losses began to appear in mid-session and several utilities and refining oils eased.

Church of England Prayer Book 400th Anniversary Observed

On Whit-Sunday, in the year 1549, the English people first participated in public worship with a service of their own language. They sat and "thank God we are worshipping in English. Thank God for an English prayer book."

These were the opening remarks of a sermon delivered in Christ Church on Sunday morning by its rector, Reverend Rural Dean Sparling, when the 400th anniversary of the Church of England prayer book was observed. The note of thanksgiving ran through the whole service coming to a climax at the end of the sermon when the congregation led in a special arrangement of thanksgiving prayers.

Reaches Back to Pentecost

The English prayer book, which was authorized for use before and after the Feast of Pentecost 1549, reaches back through history to that day of Pentecost, when the disciples having all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication were filled with the Holy Ghost and men heard their own several tongues the wonderful works of God.

Today it is translated into dozens of languages; it being the genius of Anglican communion to conduct its worship in the language of the people whom it serves. The prayer book was described by Lambeth as "the bond of union of the whole world-wide Anglican communion."

Book Revised

From time to time the book of communion prayer has been revised, chiefly to suit the language needs, but it has never varied in principle from the book of 1549 which was Catholic in doctrine, and reformed ceremonials. The book used by the Church of England in Canada was revised in 1918 and there has been no complete revision since that time.

"The prayer book," said the rector, "impresses so beautifully the things which we want in which we could never express in our own words because of our poverty of language. We are a bit "too earthy" to make adequate expression for worship in our own words but the prayer book puts in our hearts and before our eyes and on our tongues the loftiest hopes of our souls."

"We thank God for it, it has also enriched the worship of the other denominations who have seen fit to make use of some of the gems from the prayer book."

The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. J. Grant Sparling, and he was assisted by the Reverend Everett Smith. The choir sang an anthem entitled "Incline Thine Ear" with the bass solo taken by Gerald Bongard. Arthur Simpson was in charge of the music with Dana Cooke at the organ.

Eisler May Stay In U.K. Until Polish Plans Made

London, May 30 — (Reuters) — Gerhart Eisler, German communist discharged from a British London court which rejected a United States extradition application, has been told he may stay in Britain for the time necessary to enable him to make arrangements for his journey to Poland.

Home Secretary James Chuter Ede, announcing this in parliament, said Eisler was given a document of identity by the Home office today.

Ede said there was "no justified claim for compensation against this country."

Eisler's legal advisers said earlier today he was claiming compensation from the British Home Secretary for having been "forcibly removed from a foreign ship on a charge of extraditable crime that proved to be groundless."

ACCEPTS CALL TO OSHAWA

Oshawa, May 30 (CP) — Rev. Harry A. Mellow, minister of Leaside United Church, Toronto, for the last nine years, has accepted a call to Northminster United Church, Oshawa, it was learned today. He served previously at Manilla, Ivanhoe and Gore's Landing, all in Ontario.

Soviet-Controlled Congress Ratifies Constitution

Berlin, May 30 (AP)— The Russian-controlled German peoples congress today ratified by a show of hands a "Sovietized" constitution it wants to make the basic law for all Germany.

Only one of the 2,000 delegates abstained officially. There was no debate.

The ratification came as the wind-up of a two-day meeting in the east-Berlin opera house. The constitution of a "German democratic republic" is the Soviet zone's answer to the west-German constitution recently adopted at Bonn and ratified by the 11 German states of the three western occupation zones.

Earlier, the congress named Gerhart Eisler, Communist leader who fled the United States, to a list of 400 candidates for the Russian-approved German People's Council for eastern Germany.

The 52-year-old German-born Communist leader is expected to reach here via Poland in a few days. Eisler, who was freed by a British court which refused United States request for his extradition last week, has not lived in Germany since the Nazi era.

The list drawn up by the Communists described the alleged top Communist agent as a professor at Leipzig University.

Sunday, the delegates heard a speaker declare the Berlin railway strike would have flared into a third world war but for the Soviet Union's "love of peace."

The Congress begins today's session by naming Max Reimann, Communist leader now jailed in the British zone, as a delegate to the Paris conference of Foreign Ministers.

The delegation, in effect, is entrusted with supporting Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky's proposals in the Paris talks on Germany's future. Reimann was arrested Sunday by British authorities to complete a three months jail term for an anti-allied speech in the Ruhr.

Child's Condition Is 'Dangerous'

Toronto, May 30 (CP)— Johnny Anderson, 11-month-old Calgary youngster, can't be allowed to cry, become excited or eat solid food. Johnny is seriously ill with a heart condition and if he cries or loses breath, his skin takes on a bluish tinge.

The 15-pound boy, born with a heart ailment, was taken to Toronto's Sick Children's Hospital more than a week ago and appeared to be on the road to recovery when he was released last Monday. But he took ill again last Saturday and hospital officials said he is on the "dangerously ill" list with an intestinal infection.

Johnny's mother said X-rays show the inside walls of his heart are not completely developed. The ailment makes him abnormally susceptible to any infection.

55,500 BRITONS COME TO CANADA

Canada gained the largest share of the emigrants from Britain to the Commonwealth according to figures of the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations. British men, women, and children leaving the homeland during the period between April 1947 to March 1949 came organized schemes or otherwise to make their home in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa totalled approximately 180,000. The figures for the individual nations receiving the new citizens are, Canada 58,500, Australia 54,800, New Zealand 13,100 and South Africa 54,300.

SHANGHAI AS TEST

Chinese Communists may be put to the test as they face the problem of administration of the seaport of Shanghai as Shanghai depends upon foreign trade in a very large degree. The problem is far larger and more complex than anything the Chinese Communists have so far had to deal with, according to the New York Times. It has been suggested that their own former maladministration may in time prove the falsehood of their Utopian claims and that China would become for the Reds, "not a springboard but a mirror."

Commenting on this the Times says:

"There is more than a little over-optimism in this point of view. The experience of the Soviet Union and some of its satellites indicates that there is not necessarily so close a connection between government control and popular support as the apologists for the Chinese Communists and the detractors of the Chinese Government often imply. On the contrary, it has been demonstrated that a cleverly knit, well-organized, well-armed and ruthless minority (in the case of the Soviet Union a very small minority) can maintain a regime in power for a long time regardless of what it does for or to the populace. If the Chinese Communists have learned anything from the Russians they should have learned that they have learned, first of all, how to entrench and maintain themselves in power.

"What is really wrong with that point of view, however, is not its roseate hue but its perhaps unconscious cruelty. It implies that the long-suffering Chinese shall again enter a period of long suffering to demonstrate once more the political incompetence and political slavery of a Communist regime. When that has been demonstrated the policy of aloofness will have been vindicated—at the expense of the Chinese."

BACKGROUND OF ROAD ACCIDENTS

Volume of traffic and the great number using the highways are indicated in the figures of the first quarter of this year relating to highway accidents. No fewer than 11,372 drivers were involved in accidents with which many of course were innocently associated through no fault of their own.

The latest report throws a flood of light on what happens on the highways, streets and roads under the term "accident." The action of drivers shows 560 driving too fast for traffic or road conditions, 338 on the wrong side of the road, 40 without right of way, 28 cutting in and so on. passing on curve or hill, on wrong side, failing to signal and cars running away with the drivers and driving off the roadway.

Most of the drivers involved were in the age class 25 to 40 years, while 279 were under 18 years and only 263 had reached the age of 65 or over. The greatest number in accidents were those with the longest driving experience, five years and over.

As to condition of drivers the report shows that the great majority, 11,239, were sober, the number listed as intoxicated and involved in mishaps as 74 while 56 had physical defects and 23 were in a state of extreme fatigue.

1,574 drivers are classified as follows, hit-and-run 62, hit-and-run apprehended 74, 1404 arrested or summoned and non-residents arrested 34.

This gives an insight into the background of the accidents which were reported in Ontario and probed during the quarter. As to the vehicles they were driving, the great majority were in apparent good condition, namely 11,663 out of 11,994 classified. Passenger cars were more than three to one of commercial vehicles, 8,560 to 2,742. Then there were 976 taxi cabs, 224 buses, 44 motorcycles, one trailer investigated linked up in accidents.

Were the summaries of highway accidents and the findings of the authorities as to the causes of accidents studied by every motorist and other user of the streets and highways and roads, there could not but be fewer of these distressing calamities which mar travel, pleasure and business.

JUST FOLKS

IF

If is a little word beginning
With a world of winding
If I had harder tried.

"If" is the saddest word
Of any tongue or pen
"If" I had only known!

"Last night, in anger, speech
I uttered
Too coarse for printer's
Ink.

Words such as that I never should have uttered
If I had stopped to think."

If I had harder tried."

Two letters only, "I" and "f"
But they spell
A friend dies, and I own
I would have made that call that he expected,
If I had only known!

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The usual number of motor cars returned from the weekend in the country suffering from an encounter with a skunk. This is a very skunky time of year, because the motor hounds are now leading processions of their bodies on nightly crawls of the fields in search of worms, bugs, frogs and other suitable diet for wrestling in.

And since the babies are already well able to fend, to put it nicely, for themselves, careless motorists aren't quick enough on the brakes to avoid disaster.

And as for city dogs, they are mere dopes. The baptism should be enough, you would think. But it would be hard to estimate the number of city dogs who, this week and the next three, will have to learn all over again that neither a black cat nor an oversized black squirrel ever wears stripes. Probably everybody knows that cream tomato juice is the remedy for a skunked dog. Plenty of it. A cocker spaniel's coat should sop up a can or, better, three cans, of it dry and cake on him.

Whether it is the tomato juice or the skunk scorch that is responsible, my cocker never looks better than when he has had a skunk. It seems to sharpen him up. An Indian told me that, in the old days, whenever his people caught a cold, he went and hunted up a skunk and deliberately irritated it into spraying him. It was, the Indian assured me, a sure and certain cure for a cold. The overpowering fog of the skunk attack penetrates, as any dog will tell you, the uttermost corners of the lungs. If it does not kill germs, it ought to. It seems to cauterize the lungs.

Now, it is an interesting thing that there was no tuberculosis among the Indians until the white man brought it, with devastating effect on the aborigines. Could it be that, as the case of penicillin and streptomycin, which are commonplace moulds lying every hand around us, the skunk has been available all these years, as the answer to the common cold?

Several Rackeeters Bombed Buildings in Attempt To Corner Gambling

Waukegan, Ill., May 30 (AP)—Three Lake county buildings were bombed Sunday night in what the sheriff said was an attempt by "Chicago racketeers" to muscle in on Lake County gambling.

Black powder bombs were used at two resorts in the county and at a downtown building housing a pinball machine repair business, he said. The bombing attacks were almost simultaneous.

An unidentified woman was hurt by flying glass at one of the resorts, but damage to the buildings was not extensive.

Mackenzie's Column:

No Explanation Of Labor Losses Has Been Given

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

Sizeable labor losses to the Conservatives in recent county council election in British have given rise to the widespread desire as to the reasons for these setbacks to the country's ruling party.

The only one explanation which is widely satisfactory has been evolved. In general it seems to be agreed that such elections often are governed by purely local conditions and sentiment, and don't necessarily reflect the views of the voters on national matters.

However, there is an observant school which feels the Conservative vote does in considerable degree reflect the opposition of those classes of society which are against the socialist program of nationalization.

Fewer Millionaires

Be that as may, it's true that incomes in Britain are fast being levelled off. The object in order to meet taxes. When it happens, that property changes hands twice within a year or so because of deaths, then the estate may be practically wiped out.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently stated during a speech in the House of Commons that the number of persons receiving incomes of £2000 (about $8000) after taxation, had dropped from a peak figure of 11,000 to 250 at present.

Lost Baronets

Apropos of this situation, the editor of Burke's Peerage, recently pointed out that they had lost track of 13 Baronets. These are titles which, like Peerages, are hereditary. Since this announcement a couple of the "missing" men have turned up, as follows:

Sir Norman Hamilton Pringle is serving drinks in a hotel in Worcester, Sir John Henry Dunn, son of a Scottish Member of Lords, is found checking coal trucks as they came from an open pit mine near Barnsley.

BITTERN AND LOON KILLED

Preston, May 30 (AP)— Two birds suffered flying accidents in this town a few miles north of Galt during the weekend. A bittern was killed when it crashed into hydro wires and a loon flew into a concrete bridge abutment along the Speed River. The bittern was also killed by water emergency treatment.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A Rare Experience

At the invitation of my friend Prof. Herbert F. West, head of Communication Literature at Dartmouth College, I gave a talk to his class of boys about my life and my work. It was to me my first experience before a class. It brought back many memories of when I was in one of those similar seats occupied by that fine class of boys.

After this enjoyable event, which included dinner, I watched ball games, talked with students, and then, before retiring, proudly opun their coveted rail fence, cutting initials upon their own individual panels, and visited the fine Baker library, and compartments where are housed their beautiful college setting.

Being the guest of a great institution for a day is a rare experience, but it was highlighted by a visit to Robert Frost, New England's beloved poet, at the Hanover Inn. There over we adjourned to the attractive home of Prof. West, upon one of the lovely Hanover hills, where I had a most attentive evening in talk that I shall never forget. Robert Frost has always been a favorite poet of mine, but to listen to his talk for several hours is an outstanding event.

Few poets have been so honored as has Robert Frost, and justly so. Poetry was in his blood, but he was forty years of age before recognition. His first published poem was entitled "My Butterfly." It appeared in the old Independent when I was a boy. My favorite poem is the title selection of his first book, "A Boy's Will," published first in England. Sadly did time pass before it was remarkable that I had selected two volumes of Frost poems, duly inscribing his book to me "for reading when I am gone." Perhaps I was ill-fated. I really began my poetry with it.

I was especially interested in Robert Frost's broad and wholesome appreciation of the contributions to other poets. He has a quaint humor. His opinions are incisive and honestly his own. His tastes are simple, and he is a lover of human being, and genuinely American. His closest companion is his beautiful black-and-white shepherd dog, to which he is devoted. I wish he would immortalize it with a poem!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

Say "Thanks" and Mean It

The fifty-five men who drew up the Constitution of the United States were a short quarter of liberty for which we should always be thankful. Those men were just as imperfect as human beings always are. For the most part they were wealthy, well-educated aristocracy, and they looked at life through glasses which had been colored by their social experiences.

There has been a widespread attempt by modern historians to discredit these men. To show that they were self-seeking champions of the status quo. This is an unjust criticism. They were men who saw life from the station to which they were born, but they had a deep appreciation of the value of humanity as a whole.

Think of what it means to be an American, or a Britisher — to live as heirs of Magna Charta, the Bloodless Revolution, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. It was unmerited good fortune which has put all of us in the real area where human rights are first and liberty is guarded with the greatest zeal.

So when we thank God for liberty today, let us show that we thank Him for these blessings which are the foundations upon which many of these blessings rest.

Company Studies Proposal to End Asbestos Strike

Montreal, May 30 (CP) — The Canadian Johns-Manville Company is studying a proposed settlement of the asbestos strike, Vice-President K.E. Sabourin of that company said here Saturday.

"It has been planned that representatives of management on the proposal to Labor Minister Antonio Barrette some time Monday," Mr. Sabourin said. "I cannot say at this time what those views will be."

The Canadian Johns-Manville Company is a subsidiary of the largest employer among five companies in the Eastern Townships area, which 5,000 members of the Federation of Asbestos Workers have been on strike since May 13.

It is understood that the union proposal for settlement is along the same lines as the proposal on which conciliation and mediation talks were ended by the workers' pullout in January. The "conciliation" of the Canadian Johns-Manville Company on possible settlement failed when the union and men could not be satisfactorily reached.

Dance Ends in Fight

Sherbrooke, Que.—A barn dance in the hills overlooking nearby Asbestos and Richmond on Saturday night ended in a free-for-all, provincial police said.

Police said one man was taken to hospital for treatment of an eye injury suffered in the brawl which developed after an argument between strikers and non-strikers in the asbestos dispute.

The police said the names of those involved were not known and no arrests were made.

YOU'LL PAT EVEN IF YOU DON'T LIKE

At the end of 1947 7,500,000 persons were subscribers to Blue Cross and other voluntary medical service plans, as I mentioned here April 26. These subscribers are obviously satisfied with the hospital and medical service they receive. If they were not satisfied they would not continue to pay their dues or premiums year after year.

Some new statistics released at about the time I mentioned these figures are still more impressive. Total membership for the seventy-one plans in Blue Shield numbered 10,367,464 at the end of 1948. Total membership for the ninety Blue Cross plans at the end of 1948 was 22,907,161.

The Utopian schemes proponents of federal government sickness and hospital insurance seem to have in mind are going to be too bad or too expensive if they cover everyone and so brought practically the entire medical profession under direction and control of government bureaucrats, commissioners, agents or proteges of the political party in power. Especial pictures projected by the Washington Solons do not provide for the eleven million Americans over sixty-five years of age—the very people who need medical care more than any other class.

When you write the question of government or state medicine as a vague development of the future you are not facing the issue in its present features, such as the extension of the Veterans Bill and even free medicine, free dentures, free eye glasses, free drugs and free hospitalization, disregard its unpleasant features, such as the differentiation of doctors and patients.

The government, after all, can remain solvent only if its revenues exceed its expenditures. In order to have a healthful and efficient kind of medical and hospitalization service at no price the government must find the money to pay for it. Where money to pay for the service must come but in the form of billions of dollars—is not pleasant to think about, but unfortunately it is still true. Any future possibility, so why worry about it now?

The various voluntary pre-pay hospital and medical service plans now in successful operation and rapidly gaining new members are therefore a boon of tremendous advantage over anything the government can possibly administer. If the member of subscriber doesn't like the service he gets he or she need not quit paying the monthly premium or dues and drop out. No such freedom can be vouchsafed the wage earner who supports government service or medicine. Whether the wage slave likes it or not he is going to have no say in the matter, no choice but to pay and pay and pay — for his enlightened trusses, tonics, teeth and whatnot.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

White Bread and Running Fits

Your article stating that an excessive white bread diet caused running fits in dogs has us worried. We eat considerable white bread and we wonder whether we had better change to brown. Please send me your pamphlet Wheat to Eat. (E. M. M.)

Answer—We eat white bread at our house, at least when it is baked fit to eat. The pamphlet will explain the value of plain wheat and things made of it, but the fact that a diet of nothing but white bread causes running fits in dogs is not applicable to human nutrition, unless the diet is too severely restricted to white bread. It is questionable whether the fits were caused by poisoning with "arsenic" in the chemical used to bleach flour.

Boy Needs Iodine

Son, ten, very lazy physically and mentally. Teacher says he could be one of best students if he would try a little. I realize we live in a region where food and water is deficient in iodine. (Mrs. W. A.)

Answer—The home grown food, animal and vegetable, and drinking water in the entire Great Lakes basin is deficient in iodine. Your son may show considerable improvement in the course of a few months if he gets his iodin ration. Every one needs it. Send stamped self addressed envelope and sixty-five cents, for booklet, Unhidden Guests, which tells about pin worms, round worms, tape worms, hookworms and assorted parasites and pests.

Maori Land Laws Are Again In Dispute While Farms Idle

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)—Old, modest land laws of the ancient Maori native tribes are bringing neglect and idleness to some of this island's best farming land.

At a time when New Zealand is striving to increase production to feed Britain, large areas, mostly in the country's north, the North Island, are going back to weeds and unproductiveness after years of cultivation. The difficulty lies in Maori laws and customs which are making it impossible for many of the present occupants to continue farming on lands originally leased from the natives.

The Maori system of land tenure has been a source of trouble since the first days of European settlement. It was largely responsible for the Maori wars in the last century and it has hampered the development of Maori land ever since.

The Maori system worked reasonably well before the Europeans arrived. They used only a very small part of the land for cultivation. The communal nature of the system to the conditions of western civilization proved one of the thorniest problems in New Zealand history. Maori land was owned by the tribe as a whole, not by any individual. Members of the tribe would move to the other parts of the country and still retain their interests in the tribal land.

The Treaty of Waitangi, by which the Maoris acknowledged British sovereignty in 1840, guaranteed them full and undisturbed possession of their lands, at that time amounting to virtually the entire country. This treaty has remained the basis of all dealings with the Maoris. Huge areas were bought from the Maoris on the basis laid down in the treaty, but European misunderstanding of the Maori system and claims by Maoris that they had not been paid for their land culminated in the Maori wars.

Highly complicated laws were later passed to protect the Maoris and safeguard them from losing what land they had left. Today special land courts and boards protect their interests and approve of further sales only subject to numerous restrictions and conditions.

Leases Fall Due

Early in this century Maori owners, while not willing to sell, approved the leasing of very large areas to Europeans for limited periods. Many of these leases are now falling due, but the occupants cannot get the renewals.

For one thing the number of owners of a block of land has vastly increased in most cases. Maoris have large families and few leave wills. In these circumstances their estates are shared equally among all their children and that, in time, has meant scores of owners increases and their shares in the land become so small as to be more complicated.

In recent years the feeling has grown up among the Maoris against selling or leasing their land. They have seen so much pass out of their hands that they feel all that remains should be under their dire control.

The result is that European occupiers not being able to secure a renewal of their leases do little to keep up the property. By the time it reverts to the Maori owners, the pastures, fences, drains and other assets have all deteriorated.

The system operates to the disadvantage of the Maori owner. He is reluctant to lease the farm in good order when his co-owners may at any time claim their share of the proceeds or agree to sell the land.

ALL SIGNS POINT TO SUSPENSION OF THE C.S.U.

Ottawa, May 20 (CP)—Likelihood of the left-wing Canadian Seamen's Union being cut adrift from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada was developing today as Spector, T.L.C. committee, visited with wide disciplinary powers, set in judgment on the marine affiliate.

All signs pointed to suspension of the C.S.U. The committee has been given power to suspend it and union informants indicated that would be the upshot, with only the time of the move in doubt.

Suspension would be effective until the T.L.C. convention at Calgary in September. It would have to come before the convention, which either would lift it, extend it or turn it into outright expulsion.

Appointment of the committee was announced Sunday by the T.L.C. executive.

Spector, who has been on strike for more than a month against deep-sea operators on the east coast who are attempting to put Seafarers' International Union (A. F. L.) crews aboard their ships.

Suspension might mean the end of the road for the 6,000-member C.S.U. long alleged to be dominated by Reds.

The union now is struggling for survival in the east-coast shipping industry, and getting tossed overboard by the Congress might be the final blow.

Organized in 1935

It was organized in 1935 by J. A. (Pat) Sullivan of Montreal, then a card-carrying member of the Communist party. Sullivan stepped out as president in 1947, declaring he was through taking orders for the union from the Communist party.

The guard backing of the 400,000-man Congress has been under attack for months by Canadian chiefs of a group of American Federation of Labor Unions in the Congress, led by Frank Hall of Montreal.

The A.F.L. and the United States offices of individual international unions in the Congress have been backing Hall, and it is known they pressed for C. S. U. suspension at a meeting in Cleveland, O., about 10 days ago.

The committee comprises President Bengough and Vice-President William Jeneves of Toronto, representing Ontario, and Carl Berg of Edmonton, Prairie executive members.

It was understood the executive as a whole had come to general agreement that the C.S.U. must be put out, if only to prevent the right-wing international unions from breaking away and forming their own anti-Communist Congress.

Refrain From Action

While all members of tht T. L. C. executive are anti-Communists themselves, they have been refraining from direct action against the C.S.U. up to now on the ground of preserving unity in the Congress.

However, all information from Congress sources today indicated that the T.L.C. chiefs now have been hushed to the point where they feel they have to eject the C.S.U.

Confirmation of this came in two ways. One was in the T.L.C. statement Sunday which rapped the C.S.U.—along with ship operators and the S.I.U.—for methods employed in the east coast strike.

Another came in an editorial in the official publication of the T. L. C. which urged Congress members not to stage sympathy strikes for striking unions where the members themselves were not involved.

Hong Kong Still Convinced Colony To Remain British

Hong Kong, May 20 (Reuters) —Hong Kong is forging ahead with development plans, although its probable future as a commercial dominated China in the near future is fully realized.

An official estimate puts the capital invested in government and private projects in the neighborhood of $300,000,000 (Hong Kong) last year and it is believed that a similar sum will be spent this year. (The Hong Kong dollar is worth about 25 cents in Canadian money.)

The willingness of both British and Chinese "big business" to invest such large sums is perhaps based on the confidence that no matter what happens in China, Hong Kong will remain British.

This belief is supported by recent statements in the British House of Commons that Britain intends to defend the colony against any external aggression, and that no change is contemplated in the present status of Hong Kong.

Banks, commercial houses and wealthy British and Chinese residents all are not overlooking the possibilities.

In the suburbs of Hong Kong is hitherto inaccessible space, "country homes" and villas are springing up. Refugees from wartorn China, finding accommodation almost impossible to obtain, are building their own homes.

The government is reaping a good harvest from the sale of crown land for building, both for occupation or private treasury.

In the business section of the town, several large building schemes are either in process or contemplated.

BEAUTY

Deleting the extra chin

One chin is enough! That is the opinion of the woman who has painfully observed the daily development of under-lying tissue that has designed itself into "chin." But must the southern section of the feminine face suddenly go in for a policy of expansion? Here is an answer. She has partaken too freely of the good things of the table. Adipose cells are formed by excess calories, calories that are not burnt up and dispersed by exercise, but are deposited as fat. Very rarely is fat caused by glandular disturbance. Simply just eats too much; that's all. She will tell you that she does not consume enough food to keep a bird alive. We have our doubts.

She pays, one way or another. Fat cells don't care where they live. They are particularly objectionable when they take up their abode on the face and neck. Fortunately they can be dissolved by proper treatment. Rolling two chins into one is a trick that is being done right along by beauty shops. Home treatment is possible if one is persistent, has faith, doesn't weep about the cosmetic overhead.

If you are among those who are afflicted with chin-chin trouble make it a practice to spend at least ten minutes a day according to remodel.

Give your face a thorough washing with soap and water. Don't hurry, because the longer the time you spend, the warmer and more glowing the flesh will be and the better conditioned for treatment. Rinse with warm water and dry well. The skin should be as dry as a dry bone when cream is to be applied.

Have at hand a heavy emollient, suitable for massage, one that offers resistance to the manipulations. Spread it on the lower portion of the neck and work upward until the entire facial area is covered.

Starting just under the extra chin, pick up the flesh and roll it between finger and thumb, working slightly upward and go through the same motion. From the chin point, go right along to the earlobes. Pressure dissolves fat cells.

Placing the thumbs under the chin, the folded knuckles of the fingers on the cheeks, press deeply with the thumbs as you send them toward the side of the face. Throw the head back, slap briskly from the collar bones to the jawline.

While the cream remains on, frisk an ice cube over the flesh, so it will not lose tone and firmness due to the dissolution of adipose tissue. In the morning dash on cold water, dry, apply an astringent. Which hazel serves this purpose. An extra lotion with an ice cube some time during the day is a help.

And watch your diet. Cut down on sweets, fats and cereals. They are your good-looks enemies. Fat cells don't care where they live!

Informal Invitation for Wedding Anniversary Party

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My husband and I are celebrating our tenth wedding anniversary next month, and since the date falls on a Sunday, we thought of giving a buffet supper inviting our close friends. How may I correctly write the invitations for this occasion?

Beatrice

A friendly little note like this would be correct:

Dear Anne,

You and Bob will make Joe and me very happy if you will come to our house on Sunday, June 10th, to help us celebrate our Tenth Wedding anniversary. We're having a very informal party . . . buffet supper at seven o'clock.

Please say "we'll be there!"

Dearest love and high antiseptic potion to you both from both of us.

Affectionately
Beatrice

Always Word Answer to formal invitation in third person

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. When answering a formal invitation to a wedding reception, should one always acknowledge it in the third person?

2. When the invitation is received from a very close friend or from a business associate, is an informal acknowledgement permissable?

1. Yes . . . always. The absolutely definite rule about answering an invitation, any kind of invitation, is that it should be answered in kind. That is, a formal invitation; and informal reply to an informal invitation. A formal invitation is worded in the third person. Therefore our answer must be worded in the third person also.

2. Write a formal answer. This is not only the correct thing to do, but it is also the practical thing to do. Because the answer is formal, they are received, grouped under the headings "acceptances" and "regrets." Very convenient for making arrangements for the number of guests to be provided for, the foods and beverages, the seating arrangements.

Tip to attendendant

Dear Mrs. Austine:

What tip should a girl give to the attendant in the ladies 'room in a night club?

A.B.

A suitable tip is 10 or 15 cents in the average night club. Twenty five cents in an expensive night club, or for any special service, such as sewing up a hem.

Should wear a hat

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should a woman speaker at an afternoon meeting, a club or other organization meeting, wear a hat? Uncertain

Yes.

Ingenuity and Originality Needed for Smart Cooking

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 26 (CP)—An ideal recipe for cooking—one part artist, two parts inventor and three parts confidence, plus a dash of personality. Mix those ingredients well and you'll produce satisfactory results, says Home Economist Elsie Stark of New York.

"Your gal to dash yourself into everything you serve", said Miss Stark in an interview. "There's such a thing as personality in cooking because even though a good cook sticks to standard recipes she should use ingenuity and originality for the variations."

Miss Stark, who's been in the home economy business since 1915, thinks invention of a recipe or a variation of an old one gives cooks the same thrill as an artist whose discovery of specific gravity evoked: "Eureka, I've found it."

She's pioneered in extension work with the United States agriculture department by travelling through the middle-western states on nutrition lecture tours. In her present New York job as director of consumer education with a food company she spends much of her time in a model kitchen doing research work.

She was one of the first to suggest that margarine should be colored yellow, and helped in the idea of putting mayonnaise in glass jars. She now sells an improved baking-powder biscuit and muffin mix. She is also the first person to cover with canvas to get a better rolled product.

"Anyone who likes the better thing in life is a good cook," she thinks. "When you've prepared a dish you feel like an artist who has just completed a masterpiece."

Of course, anyone who can read can be a good cook, but unless they have imagination they won't be inspired to dream up or use variations. Miss Stark has in stock of 789 mayonnaise and sauce variations and some of the best recipes of the world's most famous chefs.

Quints Get Big Thrill Out of Birthday Greetings

Callander, Ont., May 30. (CP) Birthday cards from many lands were the world hasn't forgotten the five girls whose birth, ushered in 1934, Dionne quintuplets celebrated their 16th birthday Saturday with a family party. Aside from the special presents from their parents, they thrilled over the great number of greetings and letters from all over the world.

The morning present-giving ceremony as big occasion for five identical mantel radios for the quints and five livery swelling clocks from their dad. But the fun-loving girls saved the big day for Sunday. They received Father's Day ahead a small gift from their ill-named mother Olivia, into the celebrations.

Dr. Dafoe arranged entertainment a special vaudeville show to be staged for the occasion. The show featured the same sort of a show as the 7-1-2-year-old girls have every special movie and a play on Mother's Day for their mother, Mrs. Elzire Dionne, but the 40 this month. Though 15 years have passed since the quints first startled the world, the girls are still the big attraction in a pool. Now developing into gracious young ladies, all the girls are healthy from an outdoor life of swimming, tennis and horseback riding.

There still isn't more than a half-inch difference in their heights. Three, Yvonne, Emilie and Marie—stand five feet. Elzire Cecile and Annette are exactly a hundred pounds.

Aside from Marie, all weigh within a pound of each other. Cecile, Annette, the tiny one who weighed only 26 ounces, a week after birth, is the heaviest. She weighs only 114.

The first few years, since the Ontario Government returned their care to their parents, the quints have lived with the family in a specially-built home. Now, it stands just across the road from the little farmhouse where they were born, a gift to this tiny Northern Ontario village.

Three older sisters are attending school in Ottawa and Montreal, but five brothers, including 1-2-3 year old Claude, live at home.

Besides the family, the quints invited their nurses and their doctor their Father's Day party. The girls are also fans of girls' stories and the quints attend school at Villa Notre Dame from 8.30 a.m., to 4 p.m., every day.

New Bilateral Air Agreement Expected in June

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)— A government spokesman said today that providing a few snags can be unravelled a new bilateral air agreement between Canada and the United States will be signed "some time in June."

The snags named by the private meeting of representatives of the two countries in New York last week are considered to be of possible revision of the 1945-U.S. Canada agreement, now considered out-dated.

The spokesman did not elaborate on the snags—which are considered serious — broke out. It is believed they may be "one or two points" involving Canadian landing rights on U.S. territory.

The agreement is expected to be brought into effect before the end of June when the U.S. opens to the air base at Gander exclusively.

Admits Wounding Wife on First Anniversary

Hamilton, May 30 (CP)—William Roposan, 26-year-old millwright, was sentenced today to two years less a day definite and 18 months indefinite. He pleaded guilty to wounding his estranged wife, last May 22 — their first wedding anniversary.

Dr. R. E. Richter, who examined Mrs. Roposan at the hospital, said he found seven slight wounds on her back covering about one foot square and one on each side of her chest. She has been released from the hospital. The knife, the doctor said, had not penetrated the ribs.

Dr. S. A. Finlayson told the court Roposan suffered convulsions at a child until he was five years of age and he might have been "a shell out" before the stabbing.

William Olynchuk, Mrs. Roposan's brother, told the court of being awakened by a noise in his sister's bedroom. He crashed into the bedroom and saw his sister lying on the floor on some blankets. Roposan was crouched over her with a pair of scissors in his hand.

Advocates Arcade Along Younge St.

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—Shady arcades along Toronto's Yonge street as John S. Laidlaw's answer to the city's problem of widening that important northsouth thoroughfare.

Mr. Laidlaw estimates the cost of his project at $10,500,000 or a total outlay of $500 a foot for the 21,000 feet of store frontage that would have to be cut back under the present buildings to form the arcades.

His plan is an old one. He first presented it when he was a city alderman in 1912 and has been boosting it again now that the city is considering ways of widening the streets to ease the traffic problem.

Mr. Laidlaw says his plan would widen the street from its present 66 feet to 99 feet. The arcaded sidewalks would be 15 feet wide, instead of the present 12 feet.

The plan was vetoed when first presented by Sir Adam Beck and former Mayor Sam McBride but now, at 85 years of age, Mr. Laidlaw hopes to see hi pipe-dream materialize.

Master Spy of First World War Dies in London

London, May 30 (Reuters) — Francis Von Rintelen, German master spy of the First World War who caused a furore on the New York waterfront, died here today. He was 68.

He collapsed at a London subway station and was taken to hospital.

Von Rintelen—the "dark invader"—was a lieutenant-Commander in the German Navy when he was sent to the United States in 1915. His orders were at all costs to prevent United States munitions reaching the Allies.

An ace savateur, Von Rintelen smuggled incendiary bombs aboard ships loaded with supplies. His shadowy figure looked on as baffled authorities tried to find the cause of explosions and fires breaking out along the waterfront.

The British Secret Service outwitted him. They discovered his codes with which Von Rintelen was working, and decoded them. Then Chief of British Naval Intelligence, sent him a false order recalling him to Germany.

Von Rintelen, with a forged passport and a Swiss name, boarded a Dutch ship. It was intercepted by the Royal Navy and the master spy spent the rest of the war in Britain.

After the war he went back to Germany. But he visited Britain and in 1923 returned to Britain—sponsored by his old enemy Sir Reginald Hall. Until 1939 he wrote books—his "Dark Invader" was a best seller—and lectured the country as a lecturer.

When the Second World War broke out he was interned again. Altogether he was a prisoner in Britain for 5 years.

Since release from his second internment he had lived quietly in London.

More Apprentices For Carpentry Urgently Needed

Kingston, May 30 (CP)— The urgent need for more apprentices for carpenters in the building trade was stressed by Fred Hawes of Toronto, director of apprenticeship of the Ontario Department of Labour, at the closing session on Saturday of the 37th annual meeting of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, provincial council held in Kingston.

Mr. Hawes said "it is essential to have an influx of young blood who are properly trained in their craft. We are in a great danger of piling up union membership, but I doubt if you are piling up membership in craftsmen.

"There is a lot of work being done by people who are not carpenters, and I impress upon you the need of training young men to take over the work as need for craftsmen. There is not enough interest taken in the trade of carpentering the trade. I urge you carpenters to encourage young men to enter the trade."

Speaking of the Firstone Report, Mr. Hawes said at that time 191,875 were registered in the building trade! Of that number 79,103 or 41.23 per cent were carpenters.

Large Increase since 1940

"This is all Canadian registration. You see by the 1940 census there is a large increase in the number engaged in the building trades compared to 1940," said Mr. Hawes, "I think it is safe to say that on a very low estimate there is a mortality of one per cent of those engaged in the carpentry trade. That would mean 800 people are needed in the carpentry trade leave the business each year by death or some reason and have to be replaced. As a basis of the 1940 census there are a total of 800 people per year, but inasmuch as the figures are low and the death rate at that period is quite low, can easily set a change in personnel of 1000 carpenters per year. It requires 8,000 to 10,000 carpenter apprentices each year to meet requirements throughout the trade in Canada. The Ontario Provincial Committee said that the provincial council had abandoned the compulsory old age pension payments increased, the age limit increased from 65 to 70 years old. Suggestion was also made in its report to the annual meetings of the provincial council be held earlier so that publication of the proceedings previous to the signing of new agreements with employers.

Canadains 'Fully Protected' in Jobs In Oil Fields

Ottawa, May 30 — (CP)—Canadian workers will be "fully protected" in getting jobs in Alberta's oil fields, the Labor Department announced today.

The department said it had investigated complaints by the Trades and Labor Council of Edmonton and the Canadian Legion branch there that the labor field in the oil drilling area there is being over-run by importation of laborers from the United States.

In a statement, the department said it had been assured by both the immigration branch and had obtained a definite understanding from an association of oil-drilling operators by which Canadian workers would be fully protected.

A number of drilling outfits had brought full crews into the Edmonton area from the U. S. mainly because they had not been able to locate standings in Canada. These outfits gradually had changed their American crews to Canadian and the Canadian only skilled workers unavailable in Canada would be brought from the U. S., the unskilled portion of the crew being filled with available Canadian labor.

Royal Commission On Transportation To Hear Evidence

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)—The Royal Commission on Transportation will hear pro-and-con argument over the question of exempting federal subsidies to only those beyond the scope of present rail lines.

Subsidy proposals to be made to the commission, which opens a series of hearings here in Winnipeg Wednesday, will cover rail and water services and — to a slight degree—air transportation.

British Columbia will oppose rail subsidies as will the Canadian Pacific Railway, which made known its stand on the issue in an "outline" submission filled with the commissioners Friday.

On the other side of the line-up will be Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and the new Province of Newfoundland.

The government of Saskatchewan will advocate the same policy it adopted in freight-rate hearings last year: equalization of level of rates should be lowered and, if this leaves the railways without adequate revenues, then they should be compensated by subsidy.

Manitoba is expected to propose that the commission study the idea of the federal treasury reimbursing certain uneconomic lines of the Canadian National Railways which are operated primarily as national policy rather than as straight commercial services.

Nova Scotia will ask that, the national treasury underwrite an extension of the Canso-Yarmouth car-ferry accorded shippers in that area under the maritime freight rates act of 1927.

At present they are given a reduction of 20 per cent from normal rates on certain hauls. It is believed a request will be made that this be advanced to 30 per cent and that the types of traffic affected be enlarged.

Both Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland will seek subsidization of certain additional coastal steamship services, and P. E. I. also will ask aid for an air service between itself and the mainland. The new province will suggest

The Communist Ministers Council ended its agreement with the Vatican, and from then on Bishop O'Hara had no actual authority. He is free to speak as he wishes but he is unable to exercise his previous functions."

Press Criticism Not the Cause Says Pearson

Drew Pearson, newspaper columnist and radio commentator, said Sunday that press criticism—including his own—had nothing to do with the suicide of James V. Forrestal.

Pearson said in a letter to the editor of the Washington Post that he is "greatly disturbed" because some persons seem to think his reporting contributed to Forrestal's death. He did not name any of the persons.

Forrestal, former United States Secretary of Defence, jumped to his death a week ago from the 16th floor of the Naval Medical Centre at Bethesda, Md.

John Rankin (Dem!-Miss.) previously declared in the House of Representatives that Pearson made a "vicious attack" on Forrestal on one of his weekly radio broadcasts.

33 Will Start In Indianapolis Speedway Race

Indianapolis, May 30. (AP)—Good racing weather, a pot of about $185,000 and a top quality field added up today to the possible speed record in the 33rd annual International sweepstakes at Indianapolis motor speedway.

Eleven of the 33 starters have never competed in the 500-mile race. Seven others were starting second with their relief driver. Only 1-3 miles of brick and asphalt.

Veteran Wilbur Shaw, Kokomo, who has seen them all, called it the best field he's seen. "There've had in a long-long time."

In spite of their respect for the youngsters' ability, track officials gave the hot rod and midget specialists a stern lecture today.

"Be day. To strengthen their warning, officials cut a couple of travelling cranes that will be used to jerk wrecks off the hazardous south turn.

And movie star Linda Darnell, who will kiss the winner and award the Borg-Warner trophy, pleaded with the racers: "For God's sake, be careful."

Thirty-nine pennants have died at the track—21 drivers, 11 mechanics and seven spectators.

Mauri Rose, only former winner in the starting field, will be the first four-time winner if he takes the trophy today. There is no legal betting on the race but a few downtown gamblers installed the South Bend engineer as their favorite at 2 1-2 to 1.

After Rose, the pool room boys like Bill Holland, Fox, Mays, Duke Nolan, Jimmy Jackson, Johnny Parsons and George Connor in that order.

WALK OFF JOB

Hamilton, May 28 — (CP) — Employees of the steel-erection depot of the National Steel Car walked off the job, an official of the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.) reported today. He said the walkout resulted from failure to negotiate settlement of contract with the company.

Epic Scores Easy Victory in Plate Over Speedy Irish

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—Epic, a glistening brown colt with lots to learn about the racing business today was one long hop ahead of the field in the best-money winning three-year old of the year in Canada.

"He's pretty green yet, but right now I'd say Epic is the best horse ever bred in Canada," jockey Chris Rogers of Toronto said shortly before he left for New York last night. Rogers, a freelance jockey in the U.S., rode the colt to an easy victory in the 50th renewal of the $10,000-added King's Plate classic Saturday.

The Toronto-born jockey, who has had nine-years' experience in the saddle, probably will get no argument on his statement, but Epic's Plate effort stamped him as the three-year-old to watch before the 1949 racing season opens.

Toronto industrialist E.P. Taylor, who probably doesn't need it, had a big hand in Epic's 1½ mile length delusion over Speedy Irish and Boldaris, Toronto publisher George McCullagh. Second place money was $2,500.

Epic broke last out of the starting gate in the 13-horse field but came up with a tremendous burst of speed in the stretch but just couldn't catch the easy-striding Epic. "The Taylor horse will beat Speedy Irish every time out — predicted a Toronto doubt about that," Rogers predicted.

Moved too Late

Rogers might get arguments from the crowd of fans in the 42,000 crowd who watched the classic at Woodbine Park figured Speedy Irish, with Jockey Johnny Dewhurst aboard, should have moved a little much earlier.

Dewhurst claimed Speedy Irish could not settle in stride in the early running and was a distant last. When the jockey got the horse settled down and running, he picked up his field but was unable to cut down all of Epic's lead.

Epic's time for the nine furlongs was 1:51 1-5, just one-fifth of a second off the Plate record set in 1946 by Last Mark and Rogers figured a better time could have been posted "if we had anyone there in front of us." Boldaris, brown filly owned by Frank Cox of Kitchener, Ont., set the pace for the first half-mile but faded badly and Epic took over.

Press and Radio Rebuked for Their Criticism

Sudbury, Ont, May 30. (CP) —The press and radio of Canada was rebuked Saturday night for their criticism of Sudbury Wolves, Canada's representative in the world hockey tournament at Stockholm last Winter.

Canada placed second in the tournament, with Czechoslovakia regaining the world crown they lost to the Royal Canadian Air Force team in 1947.

George S. Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and guest speaker at the civic banquet for the team, said the Wolves "have nothing to be discouraged about but everything to feel ashamed. . . . I suggest that this team is entitled to the highest credit."

In thanking the City of Sudbury for the banquet on behalf of the team, Max Silverman, manager-coach of the Wolves said, . . . I don't know where they were when I scratched the team for whom they offered to me to take along that I refused."

Ray Bauer of Hamilton, one of the team's star forwards, said he thought the press was "unfairly criticized at the beginning by sports editors, and at the same time did not receive publicity where it was deserved."

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting—Bob Thomson, Giants, collected six hits to help New York sweep a doubleheader from Philadelphia. His two - run homer in the 13th won the opener 4-2. He singled twice and tripled to spearhead a 3-0 second - game triumph.

Pitching—Satchell Paige, Indians, won a 2-1 hurling duel from young Billy Pierce, as Cleveland beat Chicago 2-1 in 11 innings of the second game of a doubleheader. Paige allowed seven hits and fanned seven.

Shades of Notts Forest and the County. Last Saturday's soccer football experience between Bellville United and the Northern Electric clubs reminded us of that day in 1816 when we wakened in a war hospital in San Espitus "village" called Maldinado, to find a German had plunked us in the noggin with a sniping bullet.

Wearied, bloodied, but not unbowed we succumbed to the hospital blandishments of a V.A.D. who also had a lot of tender care nicked away, but then we (that's an editorial we) suddenly reared up in the bed as a rear emeria cur cave.

"Ay laddie" said the soft voice (she came from county of the clear and shawl) "relax yourself, it's only a game."

And it was.

Across the way from the Trent Bridge Military Hospital (there's another spot of nostalgia) the "Forest and the Country" were in one of their, at that time First Division soccer brawls. A scant hundred miles away, the laddies of Avia, the gallant Sherwood Foresters, were in a death grip with the Willips of Kron Prinz Willies, elite Prussian Guards.

"But, thirty thousand people saw that game between the Nottingham teams, and it was one of the best sports held here" said Marr—pardon—the V.A.D. (The mairon was a Scot and bird, but she relaxed, too, at the spot of tea after she discovered that this old bird, a fledgling at that time, was sneaking time off to entertain her V.A.D's down town.

Be that as it may. After all, that is water under the bridge. (H. . .mmm. I wonder what became of that Mary cat?) Oh well, shucks, Flo, if you're reading this column, I'm still feeling!

But back to the game. Seriously we saw first-hand a grand exhibition of the famous English game. The dashing red shirts of Northern Electric, the colorful blue and white of the Belleville United team, as they bore down field in smart plays gave us a thrill that perhaps effect say we have had in a while.

Then there was Parks Commissioner Harry Rollins. (He who extracted a buck on the opening day for baseball). Parks Commissioner Rollins is one of the few sports fans in admits hockey a football was a little bit out of his line.

It was a good show. There was Fred Gilfrith, Al B. Little of the Northern Electric, and a grand game of Northern Electric goalie Jack Bailey, who, by the way, didn't sell this Belleville United short. After all they won the game.

Soccer hereabouts is well on its way. We, personally like it. It was a slip-and-tuck battle on Saturday when the blasted Belleville United outplayed the visitors only to be powerful Northern Electric squad by a 2-1 score.

On another front, the baseball situation looms up. The Kiwanis Juniors take on the 1948 champions from Napanee in a scheduled game here tonight. Game starts at 6.30. Be there, eh.

Jersey Giants Heading Bisons By Two Games

(By The Associated Press)

"Bailey, Bamberger and Bowman." That's not an advertisement for a law firm, but a firm pitching trio for the International League's pace-setting Jersey City Giants.

The three "B's" have accounted for 17 of the Giants' 22 triumphs, with Bailey the ringleader with a 7-1 record. The fireman is next with a 6-2 record and Bamberger third with a 4-1 mark.

Bamberger and Bowman pitched the Giants to a double triumph over Newark Bears yesterday. Bamberger turned back the Bears 7-3 in the first game and Bowman tripped the Bears 4-1 in the nightcap to extend the Giant winning streak to six games.

The Giants supported Bamberger's eight - hit pitching with an 11 - hit attack that featured home runs by Monte Irvin and Fred Gerken. Irvin and Gerken batted home all the Giants' runs with Irvin sending four across. Preston Mole cracked a two - run homer in the ninth for the Bears.

Buffalo Bisons swept a doubleheader from Toronto Maple Leafs 7-3 and 5-4 before a crowd of 7,000 fans in the Giants.

Saul Rogovin scattered nine hits, in picking up his second victory in as many starts, in the opener, which the Bisons won with a six - run splurge in the eighth on three hits and six walks. Rookie Lou Alonzo limited the Leafs to six hits in the second game, losing his shutout in the fough innings when Johnny Blatnik homered.

Syracuse scored a clean sweep of its five - game series with Rochester Red Wings, dusting off the Wings 8-3 and 4-0.

Dan Bankhead checked the Wings on five safeties, one of them. Russ Derry's 12th homer of the season, to put his fourth victory without a defeat.

Right - hander Clarence Podbelan shut out the Wings on 5 blows in the finale to record his first victory in three decisions.

Baltimore Orioles also won a doubleheader, beating Syracuse Chiefs 3-2 and 9-5 to retain the cellar in favor of the Chiefs.

Al Widmar hung up his seventh triumph in the first game, outpitching Ken Burkhart and Mike Schultz. Bryan Stephens contributed to the third victory in the nightcap.

Parks Board Asks for Control Of Playground

At a recent meeting of the Belleville Parks Board a recommendation was made to request the city council to pass over the jurisdiction of the East Belleville playgrounds from the Board of Education to the Parks Commission. The Parks Board would like very much to have this property to turn it into a permanent park for it has all the natural facilities necessary for a good park.

It was also announced that in the near future the Parks Board plans to hold a joint meeting with the Belleville Planning Board, the Harbor Commission, representatives of the inter - service club council, centre of the YMCA and the Board of Education for discussion of future work so far as parks are concerned.

Permission was granted by the Agricultural Society to the Parks Board for the use of Exhibition Park for the Belleville Exhibition to be held August 15 to 18.

Thirteen Evicted Move Back

Toronto, May 28 (CP)— Thirteen persons were evicted Friday from an apartment house in suburban Mimico — but they moved right back into the building.

Sheriff's officers spent three hours carrying out furniture, then went to supper. On their return, they found 25 persons had moved all of the furniture back into the apartment. The officers threw up their hands and left in disgust.

Mayor Fred Hunt says the three families concerned had known since January that they would have to move. He said that for the last two months, no rent had been accepted.

The three families are Mr. and Mrs Clare Colbary and their three children; Mr. and Mrs. John Presley and their two children; and Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin and their two children.

Seven veterans' families had been living in the building but the other four left of their own accord when eviction proceedings were started. The building, a large house recently converted to apartments, is owned by Duffin in Construction Company.

Newcastle United Beat All-Stars In Saskatchewan

(By The Canadian Press)

Touring Newcastle United swamped a Saskatchewan all-star soccer eleven 12-2 in Saskatoon Saturday night, the English visitors, thrilling more than 8,000 persons with their smart play, never extended themselves and could have scored another dozen goals without extra effort.

Scorers for Newcastle were:—Robledo, with four; Thompson and Walker with two each; Milburn, Dodgin, Houghton and Mitchell, one goal apiece. Dave Greyeyes, Saskatchewan centre half, blasted the ball into his own net in trying to clear. For Saskatchewan, Stan Rivett, centre forward, scored twice.

The Quebec Senior Hockey League Saturday accepted the entry of Chicoutimi while the two American clubs — Boston Olympics and New York Rovers—virtually announced their intention of quitting the circuit.

Acceptance of the Chicoutimi team came as a surprise but Billy Rolfe Hebert, former coach of Valleyfield Tigers in the Junior Amateur Hockey Association, presented a good case. He said that Chicoutimi had opened a new rink last winter with an estimated seating capacity of 10,000, and that the rink was only a 2½ hour trip by motor over the new Talbot highway from Quebec City.

One of the classiest fields of track stars ever to gather at London, representing the western relay record track here on Saturday afternoon as they staged a mass attack on both meet and Canadian marks in the third running of the annual event. Sixteen meet marks fell before the eager speedsters and three new Canadian records were written into the books when all the dust had died down.

More than 3,000 fans saw the well - drilled team from North Toronto Track Club shatter the first Canadian mark when they stepped off the distance medley relay — a mile and a half - mile run — in 10:38.2, almost eight seconds better than the record of 10:46.4 set by the Canadian Olympic team of 1928.

Wayne University of Detroit set a new Canadian record for the half mile relay in 1:26.7.

Western's classy speedsters whipped Wayne and University of Detroit in the mile medley relay in the new record time of 3:22.4. This is a new event in Canada but the eastern record topped the time set by Wayne last year by two seconds.

Calumet Farm did it again Saturday when Wistful came from far back to win the $55,800 Coaching Club American Oaks at New York.

The daughter of Sun Again Easy Less came on in the stretch to defeat Mrs. W. M. Jefford's Adile by half a length.

Ten lengths back of Adile in third place was C. V. Whitney's Jazz Baby.

Palestinian came into his own Saturday as contender for the three-year-old turf championship with a victory in the $50,000-added Jersey Stakes at Garden State Park. Hedley Woodhouse of Vancouver was aboard the winner, which broke the track record.

Palestinian reeled off the 1¼-mile distance in 2:02.4.

Belfast Celtics handed the Scottish National soccer team a surprising 2-0 defeat in an international contest at New York Sunday.

A crowd of 15,000 saw the Celtic score with two rapid thrusts by John Campbell late in the first half and early in the second, and then stand off every Scottish charge.

Reds Dominate Greater Part Of 'Blue Danube'

Vienna, May 30 (Reuters) — The Red Flag today dominates the greater part of the length of the famed "Blue Danube" which, before the second world war, was one of the greatest trade arteries of Europe.

Up to 1930, the flags of all countries were to be seen on its shipping which carried the coal of the Ruhr to Eastern Europe, the grain and oil of Romania to Western Europe, and floated the timber of the Balkan States on the first stage of its journey to the ports of half the world.

The least share in all this traffic, so little as hardly to appear in most statistics of Danube traffic in pre-war days, was taken by Soviet shipping

The now-familiar Red Flag with the hammer and sickle was then almost unknown, especially in the higher reaches of its 2,000 miles of navigable waterway.

Today from Budapest east practically the whole of the River fleets of Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania are owned by companies in which the Soviet has 50 per cent of the shares and 100 per cent of the control.

The Yugoslav river fleet was also under Russian control until the breach between Marshal Tito and the Kremlin. From Budapest west to Vienna and on to Linz, the Danube is mainly Russian-controlled.

Only in swift, narrower reaches between Linz and Regensburgh are the flags of Austria, Germany and the Western Allies to be seen.

According to both Hungarian and Austrian communist circles the new regime on the Danube gives the Eastern Danubian countries the greatest possible hope for a steady development of Danubian shipping.

Satchel Paige Steals Thunder From Hot N.L. Race by Helping Indians Crack Sabbath Jinx

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Will Satchel Paige, Cleveland's legendary Negro pitcher prove another lucky charm for the world champion Indians?

The ageless rightthander indicated yesterday that he might be a great help to manager Lou Boudreau's injury-riddled pitching staff when he hurled a brilliant 2-1, 11 inning victory over Chicago White Sox.

Paige's peerless performance nearly overshadowed the zany goings-on in the National League pennant race which today showed three teams —Brooklyn, New York and Boston —tied for first place with Cincinnati only one game behind.

The victory of Paige had a double significance. It not only enabled the tribe to gain a split in their doubleheader with the Sox, but marked the Sunday triumph of the season for Cleveland. The Indians had lost their first eight games of the Sabbath. Chicago won yesterday's first game 4-2.

Paige who had made only one previous start because of a bothersome injury-riddled pitching staff when he hurled a brilliant 2-1, 11 inning victory over Chicago White Sox, pitched seven-hit ball, and struck out seven in registering his first triumph against two defeats. He lost his shut-out bid in the eighth when Luke Appling singled in losing pitcher Billy Pierce.

Randy Gumpert scattered nine hits in the opener to post his fourth triumph in three defeats. Jim Gronek was the loser.

Three on Top

The top run in the National League reached the suffocating point as Brooklyn edged out Boston Braves 3-2 and New York Giants took both ends of a twin bill from Phillies in Philadelphia 4-3 and 3-0. All three now have 21-16 won lost records.

Jackie Robinson's single with the bases loaded in the seventh off Warren Spahn drove in the tying and winning runs for Brooklyn. Lefty Joe Hatten registered his fourth triumph.

Bobby Thompson was the big gun in the Giants victory. He smashed a two-run homer to break up a 13 inning battle in the opener. It gave relief pitcher Dave Koslo its first triumph of the season. The Giants' centre-fielder collected two singles and a triple in the nightcap as first-time starter Hank Behrman pitched a heartening one-hitter for the Giants. The game was halted by Pennsylvania's curfew law.

Lost Opportunity

The Reds lost an opportunity to make it a four way tie for first when Chicago Cubs whipped them 10-3 after Cincinnati won the first game of their doubleheader 6-1.

Pittsburgh snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 4-3 victory over Harry Brecheen and the Cards in St. Louis. The Pirates' home run threat, Ralph Kiner, collected a couple of hits and scored two runs to boost his average up to a league leading .370. Elmer Riddle won his first game after four defeats.

In the American League, Philadelphia Athletics moved to within 4 1-3 games of the leading Yankees defeating New York 5-1.

Rookie Alex Kellner limited the Yanks to six hits for his sixth victory, half of them over New York. A two run homer by shortstop Eddie Joost highlighted a three run fifth inning.

Bespectacled Paul Calvert of Montreal pitched Washington Senators to 8-4 victory over the Red Sox in Boston to drop the Sox into third place. The Nats belted Ellis Kinder and Frank Quinn for 14 hits, including home runs by Clyde Vollmer and Eddie Robinson.

Detroit swept its three game series with St. Louis, slamming three Brownie pitchers for 14 hits and a 6-4 victory. A home run by Hoot Evers with a mate aboard in the seventh broke up a 4-4 tie. Winless Dick Starr suffered his sixth defeat.

The Kibitzer

Akoldup Oxpert hands me a laugh when he says he plays common sense bridge. It is not common sense at all. It is nothing but an alibi. It is an attempt to disguise his ignorance.

He has never learned the brand of bridge that brings the best results, but that lacks the ability to do so. All he needs is to have the Jacksons beat out of his stubbornness.

See the south hand in this pair:

Count the tricks in south; one for each high card and one for each short side suit, since, kings, queens), a short in diamonds, and two shorts in spades are a total of nine tricks.

Any time you have a total of nine tricks or more, open with a bid of two in a suit. This is a signal that your pair must go to at least 2 game. Meaglin's partner can advise if there is slam.

It's good common sense to use such a signal. But Akoalop opened with four heart when partner passed. It turned out that they had a clinch slam in clubs. The air was blue with remarks for awhile.

"Open it with two hearts," his partner yelled, "and I could show you my club suit." Akoalop came back with: "Why should I when I know we have a game in my suit?"

"That's what a two bid is for," sneered his partner. "To say you have a game and ask for information from me to see if we have a slam in something. But no. You have to pull the game."

"Then why didn't you bid clubs anyway?" hollered Akky. "Because," his partner fumed, "an opening game bid shuts me up. If I bid clubs and you are short in them we would get into trouble."

"I get along better with my wife," continued his partner, "She says she plays the Culbertson system and admits she is never able to remember any of it. At least she tells me the truth."

Belleville United Defeat Northern Electric at Soccer

Soccer football made its debut here on Saturday when the Belleville United Club defeated the strong Northern Electric entry in the first scheduled tilt in favor of the Bay of Quinte Association Football League.

The game was closely fought and the calibre of football played bids well for the success of the league.

The first half was scoreless with the Northern team having the edge in territorial play.Three minutes after the second half started, Scott took Baldi's pass to put the United one up. Jones, was later expelled from the game for what was deemed "unsportsmanlike conduct" equalized for Electric with a close-in shot.

With three minutes to go Ashton scored the winning goal for the United. Northern fought desperately for the equalizer but the city team's defence was too strong.

Open ceremonies saw ex-Mayor Harry Rollins, Parks Board Commissioner kick off to start the game. With Commissioner Rollins were Messrs. Ken. Griffiths and J. Little of the Northern Electric Company.

The teams:

Northern Electric: Goal, H. Murphy; full backs, Williamson, Longhurst; halfs, Slater, C. Murphy, H. Williamson; forwards, Read, Carter, J. Jones, Lewis, O'Byrn. Subs, Alexander, Cully, Platt.

Belleville United: Gosl, Blakey, full backs, Finlay, Townson; halves, Lane, Farara, Lewis; forwards, Scott, Cathcart, Findon, Ashton, Baldi. Subs, Wilkinson, Garbrait, Rudd. Referee Noel Penton, RCAF.

London Majors may be recalling some of their baseball know-how.

The Majors, who last season swept through the Senior Intercounty Baseball Association with flying colors, Saturday night from behind to defeat the league-leading Waterloo Tigers 6-5 at London.

Their victory came right on the heels of the Tigers' 23rd consecutive win as they downed St. Thomas Legion 11-4 in an afternoon game.

In the Niagara District League, veteran Carl Fischer hurled Kitchener Legionnaires to a 5-0 win over Brantford Nationals in a night game and Brantford Red Sox gained a 5-4 victory over Galt Terriers at Brantford.

In the Central Ontario Baseball Association outscored Oshawa Merchants 4-3 at Oshawa.

In the Niagara District League, Welland Stokes handed Niagara Falcons 8-3 defeat, their third loss.

In the second Niagara League game, Thorold downed Dodgers, collecting five runs in the sixth inning defeated St. Catharines Stags 6-4.

Blasted Four Hurlers

At London, the Majors blasted four opposing pitchers from the mound when they connected for 12 hits.

Johnny Barbeau was replaced by Jack Griffin in the third inning while Griffin was benched only to see Cy Bricker and Al Dumouchelle take a turn. Griffin was charged with the loss.

Tommy White pitched a three-hit game as he went the route for the Majors. He ran into difficulty in the fourth inning when Waterloo got up five runs.

At St. Thomas, the Tigers tallied one run in the fourth inning and then kept the Legion crew at bay.

Jack Arias, Waterloo righthander lasted well until the ninth inning when he gave up two hits. He was replaced by Griffin who allowed a base on balls. Cy Bricker then took over and closed a St. Thomas rally by throwing a double-play ball.

Jack Cabot of Mimico went the distance on the mound for St. Thomas. He allowed six scattered hits.

At Kitchener it was southpaw Fischer's second victory as he gave up seven singles and fanned seven. Opposing pitcher Leroy Price went all the way for Strathroy. He was credited for 10 hits, including a triple and two doubles.

Johnny Bain and Shorty Miller paced Kitchener with three hits each in their appearances at bat.

Rally Fays Off

At Brantford, a ninth inning rally paid off for the Red Sox. Trailing 4-3, George Carruth laid down a bunt to score Clayton Cooper for the tieing run and then Galt pitcher Tommy Warren threw the ball into right field to allow Billy Daniels to slide in for the winning tally.

Nig Parker, second relief pitcher to go to the Brantford mound was credited with the victory. Brantford coach Normie Hann, who used 15 players to get the win, had three hits in as many trips at bat.

At Oshawa, the Bata Shoemen got the deciding run in the 11th inning when Bill Rankin reached first base on Tyson's error and scored on Ralph Brownell's homer and Ken Peacock before the side was retired.

At Niagara Falls, Danny Palaheniuk, Welland southpaw, allowed only eight hits and fanned eight Niagara Falls batters. Carman Hinds, who was charged with the loss was hard-hit in the second, third and ninth frames.

Ray Gawry's sinker ball was the deciding factor in Dodgers' victory over St. Catharines Stags. The big righthander was able to space eight hits over as many innings, often forcing Stags to hit into double play.

In the Intercounty League tonight, Galt plays Kitchener and Brantford travels to Guelph.

No games are scheduled in the Central Ontario or Nickel Belt League tonight.

Hollywood, May 30 (AP) — Peter Kenton, one of the greatest comedians, is moving into television.

The famed film comic plans to have his own TV show in the fall. He'll play the lead in farcous dramas and choose a member of his audience to play opposite him.

He'll appear on several eastern television shows, including Milton Berle's before returning to Hollywood next fall.

Still Friendly

Louis B. Mayer is reported to be still friendly with Judy Garland, despite her suspension from "Annie Get Your Gun." He says it's said he has promised to buy "South Pacific" as a consolation prize for her losing "Annie."

Footnote on the "Ghost Riders in the Sky" hit: Composer Stan Jones offered Eden Ahbez 50 per cent of the profits. Ahbez refused. Boy was the first to get recognition for the song. Ahbez refused, even though he is broke; law suits have tied up his profits from "Nature Boy."

Ford Popular

Glen Ford, from Portneuf, Que., has been a popular boy since he got out of his exclusive Columbia contract. M-G-M wants him for another film, and "Rogue of the Souls." It would be "The Reformer and the Redhead" with Lana Turner. Also, Columbia wants him back for another film along the "Gilda" line. Yes, with Rita Hayworth.

Glenn is also being sought for "The White Tower," which will be filmed in Switzerland. The pictures is being put back into production by Irving Allen and Frank Ross, who will make it for R.K.O. The studio called it off a year ago after it had been prepared by Edward Dmytrik, one of the "Unfriendly 10" witnesses before the House Un-American Ac-

Sunday Strike Of Rail Workers Ties Up Traffic

London, May 30 (CP)—Leaders of Britain's Sunday railroad strike threatened today to disrupt north-south traffic completely during next weekend's Whitsuntide holiday rush.

Train crews in the northeast region harassed the travelling public all the way from London to Edinburgh. Mainline rail service was cut to 2 1-2 per cent of normal.

The Sunday strike is the result of protests by rail workers against the return of "lodging runs"—a pre-war practice of running long-distance trains non-stop so that crews must spend a night away from home.

Dr. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, Sunday warned that Whitsuntide holiday plans of thousands may be wrecked by the strike. He called for a speedy settlement of the dispute.

Sunday hundreds of passengers were stranded. Thousands who normally would have travelled by train found other transport or didn't travel at all.

Thirty main-line trains were cancelled. Twenty which started their journeys failed to reach their destinations. Newspaper estimates placed the figure of railroad workers out for the strike as high as 10,000.

The Liberal News Chronicle says rail stoppages and the dockers strikes at Bristol and Liverpool are gradually slow paleyl through the British economy.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding the financial pages of his paper, and ma said, "Pern up the lite and make merry." The lite is already turned on, and I dont feel like making merry after looking at this stock market report, pop said, and ma said, I'm trying out my memory sistem. "Pern up the lite and make merry" is an imaginerry remark that's suppose to call up a dramatic picture associated with something I'm trying to remind myself of, but just at the moment I only get the dramatic picture but not its association, so naturelly I cant recall what it's suppose to remind me to do. Tern up the lite and make merry, she said.

Maybe it's suppose to remind you to lite into the job of addressing your list of Merry Christmas greetings several months in advance, so if you forgot anybody you'll have ample time to repair the oversite, pop said, and ma said, No, that's not it, but it's rather a clever idea, William. Tern up the lite and make merry, she said.

Maybe you wanted to remind yourself to have an electrician fix that wobbly outlet that keeps plunging us into sudden darkness, pop said, and ma said, William, you've hit it.

The donce I have, pop said, and ma said, Well in a roundabout way, I mean "tern up the lite and make merry" suggests the very opposite of Dark Silence, and this is the last day Dark Silence is showing at the Narcissus, so William you simply must take me tonight. Everybody says it's Paulette Paul's best picture. She loses her site, her hearing and her mind, ma said.

Yee gods, and I had to be the one to remind you, pop said.

And he changed his slippers to his shoes still feeling ageust it.

POLICE SEEK HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER OF MICHIGAN MAN

Pitched from his automobile when it struck the bridge at Bronte, Ont., S. H. Grieman, of Detroit, Mich., was instantly killed when run over by his own car and a Gray Coach bus, following close behind. The accident was said by police to have been caused by another Michigan motorist who cut in on the other visitor's car, forcing it into the ditch. Police set up road blocks on all highways leading into Toronto and Hamilton, Ont., for the second U.S. car which did not stop. Mrs. Grieman was rushed to hospital at Hamilton suffering from numerous injuries and shock. Aerial view shows section of highway on which accident occurred. Dotted line is path of car driven by S. H. Grieman, also to Michigan, car which did not stop. At No. 1, Grieman who was killed. Heavy line shows path of another Michigan car which did not stop. At No. 1, Grieman car left road; body was run over at No. 2; his car stopped at No. 3.—Central Press Canadian.

NEW CONSTITUTION FOR GERMANY

Under West Germany state's new flag of red, black and gold, Dr. R. Pfeiffer, who originally voted against the new constitution, signs the document in Bonn, capital of the new state. Its birth was formerly proclaimed after all members of the parliamentary council had signed the Bonn constitution for 45,000,000 western Germans.—Central Press Canadian.

MacLEOD REVIVES COLORFUL PAST

These gentlemen with the mattress-faces are citizens of MacLeod, Alta., members of the MacLeod Anniversary Whiskers' Club who won't touch a razor until the town's anniversary celebrations are over in July. The colorful history of MacLeod will be the basis for a pageant complete with Blackfeet Indians in war paint, scarlet-coated R.C.M.P. and rum-runners. The town's history began in 1874 when a log fort was built on an island in the Oldman River to suppress invading whiskey peddlers from Fort Benton, Montana, who had built a fort themselves on Alberta soil. They called it Fort Whoop-up and it deserved its name.—Central Press Canadian.

SALAZAR DAM OPENED

Lisbon, May 30 — (AP)—Salazar Dam, Portugal's largest hydro-electric project, was officially opened yesterday. Composed of two dams about 25 miles apart, it was built at a cost of $10,800,000. Together, the dams are expected to have an annual hydro-electric power output of 10,000,000 kilowatts.

CARRIER BOYS

When they had again nourished themselves they loaded back into the bus and proceeded to Maple Leaf Gardens where they had a good chance to see what Conn Smythe's spacious ice palace really looked like. The next stop on the list was to Riverdale Zoo where they took in nearly every sight that the zoo had to offer and they again loaded up with candy apples, candy floss, chocolate bars and pop.

Some of the older fellows did not relish visiting the zoo and went down into Toronto's spacious Riverdale Park for a game of catch. A lot of pictures were taken around the zoo as they were well stocked with cameras.

Visited Arcade

Again they loaded back into the bus and went directly to the Royal Ontario Museum, where they spent an hour and a half viewing all the old relics they had time for. Here they loaded up with souvenir post cards and pictures. From there they went to the Yonge St. Arcade and bought many kinds souvenirs and tricks.

At 6.00 they went back to Child's for their supper and from there they proceeded to Maple Leaf Stadium. A heavy rain fell for a short time during their supper and dampened the spirits of a few of the boys but fortunately it did not rain enough to cancel the ball game.

Because of the game being postponed until 8.15 they did not all have time enough to visit the players but there were however, 16 of them who were taken down into the field where they met some of the ball players during their pre-game practice. Here they brought to light the many autograph books they had been carrying and the players were kept busy with pen and pencil right up until game time. Pictures were also taken of the boys as they received posters from the players of the art of baseball

Not Disappointed in Leafs

They then proceeded back into the stands for the start of the game and loaded themselves with traditional hot dogs, pop corn and peanuts. They were not at all disappointed by the Leafs as they played a very good game and defeated the Buffalo team by a score of 4-2. They were greatly impressed by Ed Sanicki when he made some outstanding catches away out in centre field to prevent Buffalo from scoring many runs. They liked it better still in the fifth inning though, when Roberge hit a two-run home run over the left field fence

Great delight was taken by the boys every time a foul ball was hit into the screen behind home plate. The screen has a long slope to it and when the ball started to roll down the screen a long "whooo-o-o-o" bang" was heard from them and before long nearly all the ball fans were taking part in this.

At 10.30 they headed back to the bus and in a very short time they were rolling along the highway headed for Belleville. In a shorter time still most of the boys in the bus dropped off to sleep, thoroughly exhausted from the excitement of the whole trip. A few of them however stayed awake as they did not want to miss a thing.

It did not take as long to reach Belleville as it did last week when the first group of boys was taken on the same trip as no stop was made during the trip because the most of the boys were sound asleep and it was thought wiser to go right on through into Belleville.

Boys All Delivered

Finally the home town was reached and one by one the boys were dropped off within a block or two of their homes. It did not take long before the bus was emptied and it was soon headed back to the barns.

It is probably a safe bet that many of them missed Sunday services at the churches due to their sleeping in after such an exciting trip. There were many thrills for these youngsters who worked so hard to make the trip.

The Ontario Intelligencer wishes to thank all those who helped to make these trips as great a success as they were. A special vote of thanks goes to Mrs. Varty, hostess of Child's restaurant, and also to Mr. Percy Lewington, who was the bus driver for both trips. Mr. Lewington is a very experienced driver and through helpful suggestions the trip was made much more comfortable for all concerned.

'Last Avenue' To World Peace Lies With U.N.

North Bay, May 30 (CP) — The "last avenue" to world peace lies within the United Nations, Harold P. Nutter of Camden, New Jersey, third vice-president of Lions International, told a meeting here Sunday.

He spoke to 150 members of Lions Clubs from all parts of Northern Ontario at the one-day convention of District A-5.

A Lions delegate at U. N. Assembles, Mr. Nutter expressed confidence in the U.N. as the only approach that remains to a firm world-wide peace.

"Our country seems to be a move under way, in my country at least, to overthrow the United Nations," he said. "God forbid it."

Walter C. Fisher of Queenston, told the convention:

"We are on the turn of the famous 20th century—depending on how it turns out. It is up to us to write the history of the next 50 years which may be the most crucial in the entire history of mankind."

Mr. Fisher is first vice-president of Lions International and is soon to become first Canadian president of Lionism.

The delegates recommended Sault Ste. Marie as site for the convention of District "A", to be held June, 1950.

SERVICE VIRTUALLY HALTED

London, May 30. (CP) —The unofficial "Sundays only" strike of railway men yesterday virtually halted service in northeastern England.

The walkout was the second Sunday stoppage. J. T. Daniel, strike committee chairman, claimed yesterday's strike was "more successful" than the last. He added the walkouts will be staged each Sunday until the complaints of engineers and firemen, who object to schedules which keep some crews away from home at night, are adjusted.

24-DAY STRIKE

Attempts to select either a single arbitrator or a three-man board will begin Tuesday. But it may be weeks before any decision is handed down on the main issue—allocation of manpower.

Meanwhile production is getting under way again, three-man subcommittees from the company and union will try for three days, starting Tuesday, to select a single arbitrator to settle their differences.

If they fail, each side will name one member of a three-man board. The two selected then will try to choose a third party within a limited time. Should they be unable to agree, the post will go to Dr. Harry Shulman, impartial umpire under the Ford contract.

In the settlement, Ford also agreed to rescind disciplinary action against 35 strike leaders in the union.

DOG TEAM REACHES

Poor weather over the search area however, led the R.C.A.F. to decide upon the use of long-range aircraft to carry on the hunt.

These planes were called off when the signal from the grounded plane said the dog team had reached the aircraft at 11.39 p.m. EDT.

The radio message did not say how the dog team came upon the plane.

The plane gave its position as 20 miles up Chesterfield Inlet. It said Eskimos would be bringing in two barrels of gasoline from Chesterfield today. Weber said earlier he expected the plane would be able to take off once it had received supplies of fuel. He reported all aboard safe and well.

No immediate concern was felt for their safety because Weber said in early messages that the aircraft had emergency rations sufficient for two weeks, a tent, a high - powered rifle and other equipment needed for rough'ng it in the Arctic.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

She hung up in a hurry and burst out of the booth. For the second time today she ran into a man. He had been walking down the corridor.

"I beg your pardon!" he apologized, smiling. Then he was gone.

Polly stared. There was another edition of Ken. That, surely, was the new president, Dr. Palmer. But he didn't look it. He was younger than himself. A touch of temple gray, but distinguished. A bright smile. A snappy swing to his walk. Head erect. And handsome.

She knew he was a widower. The newspaper story about his appointment here had said that much. But—Lordy! Poor old President Bell's daughter steered Frontier for the past six years was sensible and by comparison made Dr. Palmer look like a stripling. He must have married awful young, he had to. Or died.

Polly hastened on.

Outside again, she buttonholed Pedro, the campus gardener and building maintenance man. He and she were already good friends. She spoke rapidly, slipped a dollar into his dirty hand, and sent him off running.

"Plain white, Pedro. The oily kind, the white wash like you use on trees. And hurry. You hear?"

The humble Mexican waved his agreement. Middle-aged, he loved youth, loved excitement. His heart beat fast. Something always happened when Miss Polly was around.

Meanwhile saw Ken Palmer returning. He had on old clothes. A faded shirt and overalls. He carried a bucket.

"Good!" she greeted him. "We're to meet Pedro the yard man in 10 minutes."

"I don't get it," said Ken. "You issue orders like an army major, but don't tell me anything."

Polly smiled. "It's because I'm used to bossing my brother and daddy. They spoil me. But I'll tell you this much—we're going up. Up there." She pointed toward Ho-Ho-Kam ridge.

"Me? I am a city man. I use elevators exclusively."

"That's what you think! The first mountain climb we've had was sensible and by comparison made Dr. Palmer look like a stripling. He must have married awful young, he had to. Or died."

"I know, dear, but—"

"Even the map says so. An awful snarl—tinkell of only an hour a year—imagine! I think there's a pass through Ho-Ho-Kam and we've had tried to fly over the storm that boiled up from the western front to meet her, but clouds seemed to engulf everything. Bertha Bell's down there, and found snorting rain, then lightning fingers began circling fun any time."

Miss Carlson was knitting. "What shall we do, Joy?" Miss Carlson was apprehensive, one loved Bertina Carlson, really daddy. They spoil me. But I'll tell you this much—we're going up. Up there." She pointed toward Ho-Ho-Kam ridge.

"Me? I am a city man. I use elevators exclusively."

"That's what you think! The first mountain climb we've had was designed by Nature, mister. In 10 minutes you're going on your first mountain climb. With a bucket of paint."

Miss Carlson looked worried.

"Bertina," Kathryn Boone was having to fight the controls of her plane. It was a gorgeous ballet and ship, structually perfect too, but it bucked strange, terrible enemies were these mountains.

"Bertina," Joy shouted at the woman near her in the little cabin, "you promised sunshine! Delivery!"

Miss Carlson looked worried.

3 Foreign Ministers Meet to Consider Russia's Rejection

Vishinsky Consults Moscow Before Delivering Speech

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

Paris, May 31 (AP)—The three western power foreign ministers held an unannounced meeting today to consider how to meet Russia's rejection of their plan for a political union of east and west Germany.

Official British sources reported the meeting was being held.

Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States and Foreign Minister Schuman of France were accompanied by their top advisers.

The western ministers previously had agreed to decide well in advance what to do next if the Russians talked nyet.

Andrei Vishinsky, Russian Foreign Minister, was reported in sources close to his delegation to have consulted Moscow by telephone Monday night on the terms of the speech he is planning for today.

Earlier, authoritative sources said the west would seek to salvage some form of economic unity for Germany from the conference.

Remain in Session

The western ministers remained in session until shortly after midnight. An informed British source said the three delegations agreed to keep the door open for Berlin currency issue. He said they also agreed to try to avoid technical aspects of the currency problem and should concentrate instead on broad principles.

It was agreed that each of the three would make a brief statements of general policy on the currency item and then seek to have the details ironed out by committee of experts. Berlin has two currencies—the Russian Deutsche mark and the Russian-sponsored east mark, worth a quarter as much.

The west lowered its sights by shilling at noon on a commercial arrangement with the Russians to supplement the regular commercial negotiations between the east and west.

British, United States and French sources said this was about as much as they expected would be the result of the Soviet's rejection Monday of the blueprint for unifying the former Reich under the Bonn constitution.

Opposes in Entirety

Vishinsky Monday opposed the western proposals in its entirety, with sweeping condemnation. Tuesday he would continue today in more detail.

The Soviet attack, the Kremlin gave its first official "no" to the western proposal submitted to Russia May 10 for adoption of the Bonn constitution to the three western zones of Germany and the four-power occupation statute.

In brief, the Soviet answer meant there was no hope of putting Germany under one government, at least in the foreseeable future.

Vishinsky attacked the Bonn Constitution as too federal and too decentralized, with too much power centralized regime.

He also criticized the three-power western occupation statute as sending the Germans back to a peace treaty for Germany. The Russians are believed preparing to hand over to the Germans some of a quick treaty and an early end to military occupation.

550 Experts on Rheumatism Gather To Battle One of Greatest Diseases

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, May 31 (AP)—The seventh International Congress on Rheumatic Diseases, one of the greatest gatherings of sickness in North America, now is in session here.

Attending are 150 foreign and about 400 United States doctors, experts on rheumatism, arthritis and the other pains that are the crippling scourge of both these lands.

In the United States, the conference was told, there are 7½ to 10 million people who go to doctors because of their intense rheumatic and arthritic pains. A far larger number suffers silently. The numbers exceed heart disease, cancer and tuberculosis combined.

The conference is a get-together or doctors who want to learn from each other's experiences.

The best comment is that in many people these diseases are not crippling, and that even in joints, naturally expected will increasing age.

But young people are crippled by the hundreds of thousands, sometimes even killed.

Doctors S. H. Bensley and Arthur H. Steam of Toronto told the newest forms of arthritis originate in the connective tissues, the supporting fibrous sheaths and which bind muscles and other tissues together.

Doctors Henrik Seyffarth and Kirsten Meinichsen, Oslo, Norway, reported that faulty posture and nervous tension in work account for about half the pains of women clerks who seem to have rheumatism. These pains hit especially in those muscles where work requires an unchanging position.

BOLIVIA DECLARES STATE OF SIEGE IN WAKE OF RIOTS

27 Reported Killed During Weekend

La Paz, Bolivia, May 31. (AP)—The government declared a state of siege throughout Bolivia Monday after striking mine workers seized more hostages and the walkout spread through the mining areas.

Two more mines and a railroad were reported closed in the strife-torn Catavia area high in the Andes where at least 27 persons, including two American engineers were killed in bloody weekend fighting.

The country had been in a state of si ge from May 1 to May 30 as a result of political disturbances after the May 1 congressional elections in which the government party lost some ground to rightist groups.

The strike originally broke out at a mine owned by the Patino Bolivia's largest tin combine. Fifteen management officials including the American, were seized as hostages and have been joined by the company general manager said.

Two other mines, the Compania Aque said Engineers T. J. Ed O'Connor of Pasadena, Calif., and Ralph Gilbert of Seattle, Wash., were dead when Bolivian troops seized the Catavia Tuesday. At least two Bolivian nine officials also were killed.

Held as Hostages

The new strikes were reported at the Patino's Huanini mine the Compania Aque said Engineers Hochschild, and the Machacamarca mine, owned by Aramayo.

The manager of the Colquiri mine reported by radio that he and other mine officials were held as hostages at the union hall but were being treated well.

The interior ministry estimated 100 persons had been evacuated by Monday night.

The government charges the outbreaks were planned by the rightist Nationalist Revolutionary Movement, which has bitterly opposed the government.

The government also charged that Communist elements were involved in the outbreaks.

The miners walked out Saturday to protest the arrest and deportation of 26 men who included union leaders and others listed as "political agitators". The deportees were flown to Chile Friday.

Council Turns Down Request For New Pumper

Toronto, May 31 (CP)— Suburban Port Credit fire brigade will discuss resigning from the brigade as a result of town council's turning down their request for a new $20,000 pumper.

When informed of the council's decision Monday night, Deputy McKee said "I am too indignant to discuss it."

Tuesday night's meeting was warned of the resignation threat by Councillor Harold Hooker.

Defending the council's action in deciding on a less expensive model, Mr. Fletcher said the fact that Port Credit has access to hydrant pressure eliminates equipment from the surrounding municipalities makes the larger pumper unnecessary.

Council also turned down proposal to build a new fire hall

Capital Structure of C.N.R. Unsatisfactory Will be Claim Placed Before Commission

Montreal, May 31 (CP)— The Canadian National Railways, in a submission to be placed before the Royal Commission on transportation this week and made public today, says, "the Canadian National considers that capital structure is unsatisfactory."

The railway will urge upon the Royal Commission:

1. That consideration be given to determine whether it is essential in a national transportation policy that all forms of transportation be owned or controlled; and

2. That notwithstanding the present division of authority between the federal and provincial governments, it would be beneficial to control competing services from the standpoint of national public convenience and necessity.

Return on Capital

3. That the railways should have a scale of rates which would inter alia accomplish the following objectives: Obtain for the railways a fair return on properties efficiently and economically operated; adjust transportation charges as equitably as possible between different sections of Canada and as applied to various commodities; enable the railways to obtain their proportion of the country's transportation when it can be provided more economically by railway than by other means of transport; and

4. That the "agreed charges" provisions of the Transport Act should be amended to make the agreed charge more effective in the shifting from railways traffic which they can carry more economically than competing forms of transportation.

The Canadian Nations states that it favors the principle of uniform accounting for Canadian railways, subject to mandatory rules and regulations. It considers that the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific Act, governing co-operation between the railways is satisfactory.

Says Fixed Charges

Grossly Excessive

"The fixed charges are grossly excessive in relation to the earning power of the railway or when compared with the fixed charges of other major railways" the submission adds.

"The railway is also of vital importance to Canada," says the submission.

"There are many instances of thin-traffic lines which are performing essential services but which cannot be operated at a loss.

"To be added to this category are the Newfoundland Railway and Steamship Services which were recently transferred to the Canadian National for management and operation. These services are operated at a loss, prior to union.

Workers Quit Ten Minutes After Deadline

Hamilton, May 31 (CP)—Ten minutes after the deadline for the settlement of wage demands between the National Steel Car Corporation and its employees, members of Local 1852, United Steel Workers (C.I.O.) some 1,600 workers today walked out of the plant gates and the first general strike in the 1941 steel agreement's life staff remained in the plant.

Alan Wright, international representative of the union, called an informal meeting at the company's gates and told the men "above all else to keep a peaceful picketing and regard for the law. We do not want to have a strike like the last one in 1941, but I don't think we will.

"The executive of your committee that the strike was illegal. If they prosecute you through the courts, stick together and there will be no prosecutions. Don't lose time as the prosecution is withdrawn from the courts."

"Last week one man was fined when he walked out with the executive's approval. This man must be reinstated and go back to work when you return," Mr. Wright said.

Train crews, members of Local 269, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, walked out with steelworkers. Railway engineers took the fires out of the locomotives and bedded down the engines.

Members of the union walkout Wright went into the plant and held a meeting with Thomas G. Lang, assistant to the general manager, and Ralph Hamilton, plant superintendent, to arrange for a maintenance crew to operate at all times.

Women Plead Guilty to Breaches Of Rental Act

Two city residents, both women were fined $10 and costs and $25 and costs respectively in magistrate's court this morning after pleading guilty to breaches of the Rental Control Act.

Both accused faced two charges, one for failing to obtain a fixed rental and the other for charging enrichment rental. One of the latter charges was withdrawn.

When counsel for one of the defendants pleaded for leniency because of illness and inability to to obtain a doctor, Magistrate Wills told the court, "Some of these people are disgraceful. The only way we can deter high rentals is to give them the maximum punishment."

Counsel for J. D. O'Flynn said he could understand punishment for those deliberately intending to break the law, but that his client sickness of his client and payment of arrears of rental should be taken into consideration.

"If people are well enough to collect rentals surely they are well enough to pay their fines," he let the tenant do it," was the magistrate's reply.

Metropolitan High School-District Proposed to Meeting By S.D. Rendall, Toronto

Formation of a metropolitan high school district embracing the City of Belleville, the townships of Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Sidney and Ameliasburg, the two town of Trenton and the village of Frankford was proposed Monday evening by S. D. Rendall, high school inspector, and representative of the Ontario Department of Education.

Speaking to a representative group from the above municipalities at a special meeting called at the Queen Alexandra Public School, Mr. Rendall outlined the advantages to be had from such a high school district, noting that it would make technical education possible for a large number of pupils now denied the opportunity.

At the same time the surrounding municipalities contributing to the high school district would share in the capital costs as well as the operation of the Collegiate, while in turn the city would share in the cost of transporting pupils from the outlying districts.

Further Discussion

At the present time there is a high school district in South Hastings, embracing Thurlow and Tyendinaga which "purchases" education from Belleville. For these pupils transportation is provided.

Pupils from Sidney township and also from Ameliasburg have been attending Belleville Collegiate, their respective municipalities "purchasing" education from the city. These pupils own transportation.

Secretary Administrator of the Belleville Board of Education presented a preliminary financial and statistical survey of the high school district, noting the population rural area, noting that educational costs did not remain static and therefore the figures presented were but approximate.

Costs About Same

In the main, however, considering the additional pupils and the increased cost of living, the figures revealed from the department, indicate the new high school district, the suggested area which would be the Bay of Quinte High School District.

Representatives from Thurlow and Tyendinaga, now included in the Belleville Public School District, also approved of the meeting. Municipal council representatives and also those from Frankford were in approval. In each case, however, representatives stressed they were speaking for themselves and their views did not necessarily coincide with those of other members.

Sidney Twp. Not Sure

Sidney township representatives did not immediately approve with the proposal, while the same was true of Trenton although certain members of the Trenton high school board favored the plan.

Speaking at the general meeting Mr. Rendall stated that larger high school districts were first started in Ontario in 1944. Today there were 53 high school districts, taking in 35 of the 38 counties and representing about 79 per cent of the population.

"Twenty thousand high school pupils in Ontario are now getting to high school" Mr. Rendall said. "This shows how the high school districts have taken a hold in Ontario. It means transportation for rural pupils to a high school and a better choice of subjects when they get there."

Outlines Formation

The speaker outlined formation of larger high school districts in North Hastings, where only 290 pupils were now attending high school as compared to 60 previously attending at Bancroft. Also a high school district had been formed in Central Hastings embracing Tweed, Madoc, Marmora and now Stirling.

In South Hastings Thurlow and Tyendinaga had formed a high school district, purchasing their education from Belleville. Such a high school district without a high school of its own would be unhealthy as it has no equity in school buildings, but the civic enthusiasm of the board members is lost.

He pointed out, however, that a municipality could not be forced to build a school accommodation for pupils outside its district and with the capacity of Belleville collegiate there is room for what would soon be necessary either to exclude county pupils or to build additional accommodation.

May Need More Room

"Belleville has a good board and a good school and if aristocratic financial arrangements can be made I would recommend a metropolitan high school area for education purposes," stated Mr. Rendall. He said that with the present enrolment of 1,000 pupils additional accommodation would be necessary, as Belleville in from three to five years.

He pointed out that if an addition to the collegiate was not built in Belleville, the board would be forced to ascertain how rural students would continue to attend the school. Only through establishment of a high school area could this assurance be given.

Subsidy Proposal

He said the suburban board could construct its own school but "it would be a poor piece of business" both for Belleville and the suburban board. The city could then levy the rural pupils and technical school advantages could not be had in the new high school without prohibitive expense.

If the larger high school board were formed the school board would have the services of boards of education immediately available.

Here Mr. Rendall submitted his proposal for the formation of the Bay of Quinte High School District, including the town of Trenton which geographically and financially no interest in a high school district. He said that it had been contacted by two members of the Trenton board, who were now interested in the proposal.

He pointed out that Trenton High School Board could not be sued to start a technical school but if they joined the high school area their pupils could have technical training at Belleville and at the same time could have academic training in their own school. "This would serve to fill up the technical and vocational courses in the Belleville school," he said. Trenton has no facilities.

Mr. Rendall suggested that if the high school district was formed to include six members from Belleville, two from Thurlow, one from Tyendinaga, one from Sidney and one each from Frankford and Ameliasburg that they be appointed by council. Also there would be two representatives each from Quinte, County of Hastings, and one each from the Belleville public school board and Separate school board.

Would Revert to P. S. Board

The City of Belleville would give up its present school area Board of Education and would revert to a Public Board of Trustees which would be elected by the ratepayers.

Secretary Administrator L. A. Kells presented school survey figures which showed the assessment at Belleville Collegiate to have increased from $925 in 1904-46 to $3,144,949. Principal G. E. Currie stated enrolment for September would be 1,000. The general increase was expected to continue. He said the present school accommodation may not last more that another school year.

Mr. Kells pointed out that the gross cost of operating the Belleville collegiate in 1947—the last year for which complete figures were available—was $179,914, the net cost to the taxpayer being $95,926.75 after receipts were subtracted.

Under the proposed high school area costs for the school would be on a population basis for the city and on the equalized assessment for the county. Without considering Trenton, Belleville was estimated to have about 55 per cent of the population for the entire area.

Discussed Many Times

Acting as chairlady for the meeting, Miss Josephine Tickell, Belleville member of the board of education, stated the larger high school district had been discussed by her board on several occasions. Working on the whole for something like the best interest of the children, the members of the board were unanimous in favor of the larger high school district, she said.

Mayor Harry Harrison of Thurlow township noted that figures presented by Mr. Kells would indicate his township would have a higher proportionate assessment to pay under the proposed setup. He realized, however, that under the present setup, his township had no share in ownership of Belleville Collegiate.

Play Along with City

"If it came to a choice between buying our education even at a higher rate than present or building a new collegiate property we would say we would play along with Belleville," he said.

Wm. Bleecker, councillor and member of the South Hastings High School Board, said he favored the metropolitan high school area. He said this would be the best thing economically practical to operate.

Reeve Dorland Whitney, Ameliasburg, stated his municipality was definitely interested and that he was pleased to know if his township would continue to be eligible for provincial education grants and what transportation grants would be. Also he was interested in whether Trenton came into the setup as many of the pupils from his public township could more readily attend that school there.

He was told by Mr. Rendell that when a municipality became part of a high school district it automatically became ineligible for county grants. The transportation grant applicable was the same percentage as the present government grant for the board," he said.

Done By Agreement

Mr. Rendell went further to suggest that distribution of costs of the proposed high school area be done by agreement for three years, "to remove certain inequalities," he said.

Reeve Ross Hagerman of the Frankford public school board, said he was personally favorable but hoped that Trenton would be included as his municipality pays taxes to the "high school area," he said.

Reeve Ben Bleecker, Sidney township noted that his township had seen fit to remain out of the South Hastings High School area. However, his municipality would like to be considered ed obstinate as it was willing to co-operate.

Trenton Not Deprived

He noted that under the present system of his township "purchasing" education from Belleville, Stirling and Trenton township students had not been deprived of education.

He pointed out that in several sections there had been dissatisfaction over high school costs but township area public school system was progressing. He stated that the high school district serious consideration and deemed it advisable to stay out.

Mrs. Bleecker asked if in the event his township remained out of the new setup would it still be permitted to pay its pupils to Belleville Stirling and Trenton. He pointed out that last year Sidney township system in public school costs for his municipalities totalled $6,600. According to figures presented by Mr. Kells, under the proposed setup the cost to Sidney would be in the neighborhood of $14,000.

Answering Mrs. Bleecker's question as to whether township pupils could be considered Belleville, Mr. Rendall pointed out that no school board could be forced to provide accommodation for pupils not in its district. Accommodation would be refused to pupils not living within the district, he said. Under the present act one years' notice would be required in this event.

Sidney Key Township

Mr. Rendall went on to stress that Sidney was the "key" township in the proposed high school setup. If Sidney remained out Frankford nor Trenton could not join as all municipalities in the district must join.

Mr. McGinnis, member of the Trenton High School Board, assured they were anxious to get as broad an education as possible for their pupils. He said some of the board members approved of the larger high school area but the board was not unanimous in this regard.

Harold Seldon, member of the Belleville board of education, said members had agreed unanimously to the proposed Quinte high school district and would welcome its formation.

Great Deal to Ask

"It is a great deal to ask Belleville to," interjected Mr. Rendall. "By going into the large high school district Belleville would have to give up its board of education and revert to a public

Nature, Operation of Credit Bureau Explained to Guests

The purpose, nature, and operation of a credit bureau was explained Wednesday evening by Ken Keating the Reporting Department of the Central Ontario Credit Bureau, Toronto, and assistant manager of the firm, Mr. J. Ferrell Wilson, at a dinner meeting held Monday evening at the Golden Rule Cafe.

Mr. Wilson opened his remarks by stating that many do not understand the nature of a credit bureau and the way in which it functions in the modern day business. This can be explained by the fact that credit bureaus have originated in Canada only during the last thirty years although they have been known and in use in other countries for nearly a century.

A credit bureau is a clearing house for credit information," Mr. Wilson stated. "Our business co-operated 100 percent with the bureau there would be impossible for people to overcharge their credit. This is a protection for the buyer and the business man alike."

"A business sells on credit then it should be in the credit business properly, because one million dollar sale when handled successfully without a proper credit check increased a million," he said. "If stores open credit departments then bad debt losses are."

Conditions Change Rapidly

"Business conditions are changing rapidly. Accounts' are slowing up. The credit bureau last year was asking for credit this year. Thus it is most important

Given Suspended Sentence After Plea of Guilty

Ralph Lessard, Ottawa, member of the RCAF was given one year suspended sentence in magistrate's court today after pleading guilty to a charge of theft of a camera valued at $60. Lessard was also assessed $10 and costs and ordered to RCAF officials.

Lessard was given a ride by a man named Devers who picked the airman up this side of Kingston. When the party arrived here, Devers found his camera missing. He contacted the airman and there were "words and a scuffle" according to investigating Police Inspector Hare. The camera was found later in Lessard's haversack.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills told the accused that "it was a pretty serious matter ... A barbarized theft." Lessard will likely face RCAF charges of being absent without leave.

Purebred Holstein Has Five Heifers In 21 Months

If all Holsteins were as prolific as a purebred owned by W. E. Pollock, R.R. 1, Hamilton, Rawdon Township, farmers would become rich soon.

During the past 21 months a purebred Holstein cow owned by Mr. Pollock and Son, Springfield Beauty has given birth to five heifer calves and five of which are living. The calves included two sets of twins and a single calf.

One pair of the twins are now in the herd of James Eagleson of Hamilton and one in the herd of W. E. Pollock of Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Thomas, reporting manager for the Peterborough office, outlined the correct and incorrect methods of handling businessmen in the granting of credit.

"Our files are a barometer of what is happening to people and business," the speaker continued. "Since last November we have noticed the collections are becoming slower. Those are things are asking for more time. There is no over-payment every month. We believe that the reason for this is the fact that the cost of living is taking salaries and people as a whole are still on a buying spree."

A lively discussion period followed the meeting. Mr. Murray Short, reporting manager of the Belleville office, was chairman of the meeting.

DREW OUTLINES LABOR POLICY OF PC PARTY

Attacks L.-P. Party as Campaign Continues in British Columbia

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, May 31 — (CP) — On a torrid pace in his whirlwind political tour through British Columbia, Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew Monday criticized Leader Progressive party, called for a re-routing of Canada's exports to the United Kingdom, and promised sweeping Labor reforms if his party is elected.

He addressed a meeting at Nanaimo in the afternoon, released a transcribed broadcast from Vancouver over the CBC network in the early evening, and stumped the stately Victoria riding last night.

He speaks at Vancouver and New Westminster today.

Mr. Drew said that the Labor-Progressive party was not a political party, but "organized treachery." He warned that 'socialism has always served as the forerunner of communism.

He said he did not mean that those who support the C. C. F. were communists, but charged that in Russia and elsewhere socialism had been the forerunner of communism.

Mr. Drew told the Victoria meeting the issue in the coming federal election is between "freedom and regimentation" and between Liberals and Conservatives.

He said the first duty of the government was to recapture markets lost in the Soviet Union and Europe. But "the long-haired boys in the ivory towers at Ottawa" were deciding that all Canada's trade should be directed in the United States.

A Progressive Conservative government would take steps with Britain and the U. S. to make the dollar and the pound convertible. Mr. Drew said he had enough faith in Canadians to believe that Canada could give the lead in bringing about a solution to the present exchange difficulties.

In his radio address the Progressive Conservative leader promised establishment of a National Labor Council, and greater labor representation on government boards, commissions and agencies.

"We believe that the position of labor must be specifically improved, that the security and happiness of our workers must be protected by legislation which will provide for effective collective bargaining . . ."

Charged With Threat To Official Over Flickering of Lights

Toronto, May 31 (CP)— Irving Grossman, 30, was charged Monday with threatening a hydro Commission official with death unless the lights stopped flicking in his house, and with carrying a loaded revolver.

William P. Dobson, director of research for the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, told police he received a telephone call several days ago in which his life was threatened unless the light flickering stopped.

Truck Driver Stops Runaway Car

Brantford, May 31 — (CP) — A truck driver Monday stopped a runaway car in downtown Brantford and prevented serious damage or personal injury.

Fred Clark, 34, of Paris saw the car racing down the street towards his truck. The car was driverless and the only occupant attendant on its running board was unable to open the door. Clark swung his truck in front of the runaway and stopped it with slight damage to the truck's grillwork. The car escaped undamaged.

Home Owner Thought Airplane Had Fallen When Loose Truck Wheel Smashes Into Side of the House

In a freak accident which could not happen again, three persons early this morning escaped serious injury or possible death.

At 5:30 in the morning a Harris Abattoir truck from Toronto, driven by Ivan Baragar of Napanee and with his wife as passenger, was proceeding east on the Belleville-Trenton highway when the right wheel dropped off on a slight curve.

Riding on his axle, the driver of the truck managed to keep his heavy truck on the highway until it came to a stop 200 yards down the highway. But not before it ripped out four guard rail posts and bounced off a concrete culvert.

But the loose front wheel went on a journey all its own.

Taking off at a tangent the runaway wheel hopped the highway fence, bounced once in a large field of grain and 175 yards later crashed into the living room window of the house owned by Mrs. A. Henderson.

Frame Smashed

The heavy wheel and tire struck the top of the window frame smashing the sash out completely, loosening the window frame and denting the wall and smashing the plaster. Then the wheel bounced 50 feet into a living room.

But inside the house was a different story. The bulging wall knocked the buffet half way across the living room. Expensive and cherished chinaware was smashed and scattered about the room, and glass in bookcases and other window panes were broken.

Mrs. Henderson said she had been sleeping in a room immediately above the living room. Had the first wheel bounced three feet higher before striking the house it would have crashed completely through her bedroom window.

$500,000 Grant To Hospital for Sick Children

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—A federal hospital-building grant of $500,000—one of the biggest since the federal scheme was started a year ago—today went to Toronto's Hospital For Sick Children.

The money will be used to provide bed accommodation for 600 sick and injured children in Ontario. Expected to be completed in 1953, the new hospital will replace an older structure—one of the best-known institutions in Canada.

The health department, which announced the grant, said funds also have been approved to exist in the building of Red Cross outpost hospitals in Ontario at Huntsville, Nipigon and Bancroft and for extension of the General Hospital at Brockville and the McKellar Hospital at Fort William.

For the 30-bed hospital at Huntsville, the Health Department allocated $17,900, while another $13,400 went towards the 25-bed construction at Nipigon. The Bancroft Hospital, which replaces an old frame and smaller building, was awarded $14,000.

Thirty-four additional beds will be made available at the Fort William McKellar Hospital with the aid of $4,500 federal grant.

In Brockville the 112-bed building is to be enlarged by an additional 65 beds for medical, surgical and obstetrical cases. Aided by the grant of $68,000, the three-storey addition is expected to be completed by the fall of 1950. About $3,000 people in the surrounding townships will be served.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 31 — (CP) — City police today received the discovery of the body of Frank Pistor, 52, missing from his home since April 21. The body was found Monday morning floating in St. Marys River, near the Sault Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. R. Rybarkal, who were preparing their summer cottage for the season's opening. An extensive search has been conducted by city and provincial police for more than a month.

Home Owner Asks Measures To Solve Problem Of Feeble-Minded

Brantford, May 31. (CP)— The Brantford Township Council endorsed Monday night recommendations by the Brant County Health unit and the Children's Aid Society that feeble-minded persons be prevented from reproducing their kind.

In a resolution passed unanimously, council authorized the Reeve to ask the Ontario Minister of Health for assistance in solving problems created by the mentally deficient.

Copies of the resolution will be forwarded to Brant County Council local members of the provincial legislature, and Brantford City Council.

Reporting to council on the problem of feeble-minded children, Major W. A. Goff, director of the Children's Aid Society, said that situation was serious across the province.

"It will only improve if the mentally deficient are not let loose," he said "I am not referring to beyond-the-pale cases but the mental deficient—a condition for the most part and can be passed on from generation to generation."

He said that many parents of such children devoted a great deal of time to them, the child's lives would be uncomplicated and would therefore have many opportunities to get into trouble.

Feeble-minded boys develop easily men's bodies and girls in early teens fell easy prey to unscrupulous men.

Children of such unions often were born feeble-minded, he said, and had to be placed in institutions. "Few foster parents will take such children," he said.

Knows of 17 Cases

He reported that he knew of 17 cases which should be committed to institutions but that the institutions were crowded.

"There is a waiting list of thousands" he said, "and provincial government hasn't got the space or the staff."

"The province has not be some attempt made to sterilize such people" Deputy Reeve Jack Wratten said.

Major Goff said that there should be because such people increased more rapidly than normal people. He mentioned a family, which included eight children, all but one of whom were feeble-minded.

"These people cannot compete with normal people," he said. "Eventually they end up in—and even create—slum districts. They could be cut off in a generation without injury to them."

Hope for Best Says Toronto Ticket Holder

Toronto May 31 (CP)— If Amour Drake, a 83-1 chance, wins the English Derby Saturday, it means $100,000 — and a new house— for Alex McKee, who has an Irish sweepstakes ticket on the horse.

Another Toronto resident, Wm. May, a truck driver has received confirmation that he holds a ticket on one of the Derby entries, Xerxes at 66-1.

McKee labelled his ticket Magnet. He and his two-year-old son Brian, expect to welcome his wife back from a visit to Scotland soon.

May said: "It's nothing to get excited about yet. Wait until next Saturday if you want to see someone excited. I don't think it's wise to hold too much on a chance like this."

WILD TURKEYS

Wild turkeys have been released in Lambton County, having been secured from Pennsylvania through the Game Commission of that state. As Ontario was the home of wild turkeys many decades ago it is expected that the four hens and two toms released this month will be able to forage and find food and conditions suitable to their needs. Considerable is heard these days of the irreparable loss which has been sustained by the disappearance of certain species of game which were plentiful many years ago and it is a note that should please all lovers of wild life to know that the wild turkey is going to have a chance to grow in numbers, and make the woodlands something like what they were and ought to be, when nature has full sway.

Just this week readers were able to read a story of the finding of the body of a whooping crane in Western Canada. It had been shot probably in the late autumn of last year. In view of the very few whooping cranes which are known or believed to exist, thirty-three to be exact, the death of this one crane is looked upon as of tragic proportions.

It is a sad commentary on man's relation to wild life, when he found it so abundant, especially as in the early days of settlement that he gave so little thought to preservation of species. Species which have disappeared forever from the earth make a sad story of animals and birds which have been lost forever to the eyes of man through carelessness, thoughtlessness, ignorance of nature's laws, greed or wanton destruction.

Nature has developed life through countless aeons of time, bringing about new forms in the animal and floral world. In time before man's habitation of the earth many of these died out in the natural course of events and because they inhabited the earth with enemies of theirs which caused their disappearance in time. But of those that remain it is a tragic pity to lose forever creatures which could help to show many something of the handicraft of the Creator, who made all these forms possible in nature.

Today it is well that the people are conscious of the value of conservation and are taking steps to preserve wild life.

THE AIRLIFT

Britain has given the world an example of the power that is in a democracy with high ideals in the manner in which she carried on at great cost to herself the Berlin air lift for fairness and the good of humanity. Last week Christian Science Monitor in a reference to the contributions made by the United States and Britain in this unique effort, commented in a brief editorial "Postscript to the Airlift":

"Recently there was a great splurge in the press of the United States about that stupendous American achievement, the airlift. The only way wrong with this picture was the terminology. The airlift, as it happened, was an Anglo-American achievement.

"Approximately one-third of the joint effort was British, paralleling the comparative resources of the two nations. The cost to British taxpayers was $26,000,000, and 23 British aircrew were lost in the operation, as compared with 27 Americans.

"The comparisons are unimportant, as such. What is important is the solidarity of purpose and the close technical teamwork which made this mark of achievement possible. The rift occasioned by the Boston tea party finds no place in the lift provided by the Berlin sky party."

The air lift has cost great sums of money and it has cost lives of intrepid airmen whose sacrifice was in the cause of justice and humanity.

THE ORIOLE

The orioles are back again and fortunate are those who can see their nest in one of their trees, preferably the tall elm, sometimes the willow, or a lone untrimmed apple tree. Bird scientist St. Catharines know that the song of the oriole differs from bird to bird, that the voice is unmistakable, with its full round tones while the tune is strictly that of the individual? Once you learn the call of the oriole in your own tree, you can tell it anywhere, even in competition with its own kind. . .

As The New York Sunday Times naturalist points out, the male is the showy one of the pair, with as fine a contrast of rich orange and gleaming black as you will see anywhere. The female is more yellow and gray, with brown on the back; for she has little time to preen and look beautiful. She builds the amazing hammock-nest that hangs from the high, thin twigs. She broods the eggs. She does most of the work of feeding the fledglings. Her colorful mate stands by, which seems to be his role in life, and sings a not too tuneful song in a voice that one is sure was meant for melody.—St. Catharines Standard.

JUST FOLKS

THOUGHTLESS

He didn't stop to think. He let
Ill temper breed some new regret,
He spoke in anger, and in haste,
To wish he hadn't, just too late.

Intelligent and able, too,
The chance of bitter speech he knew,
He didn't stop to think. He chose
His mean remarks to hurl and throw
Where they would cause the greatest woe.

He knew when temper flies
No man is either fair or wise,
Or with the morning rises proud
Of conduct arrogant and loud.

Yet none had seen him at his worst
If he had thought it over first.

Strictly Business

So in most countries there are Communist parties which are conducting underground operations. Canada's case is little of humor or in the lives of such ideologists.

PARK SECTION FOR NON - DRINKERS

Fort Worth, Tex., May 21 (AP) — Fort Worth ministers want a section of the ball park set aside for non - drinkers. The Ministerial Association asks that the park owners to reserve a place for "ministers, Christians, their wives and children." No beer drinking would be allowed in that section.

Mackenzie's Column

True Communists Are Atheists Says Writer

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

When Andrei Gromyko, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, arrived in New York for Europe at the conclusion of the United Nations Assembly session the other day, he flabbergasted everyone by smiling when reporters and news photographers.

People in North America didn't know Gromyko could smile, but obviously he can.

It remained me that recently a reader of this column asked me to explain "why Communists never smile."

Well, now, that question assumes a premise which clearly isn't absolutely sound, because Mr. Gromyko did smile—yes he did. However, broadly speaking it is probably true that dyed-in-the-wool Communists don't smile much.

One Track

Why? Because they are ideological zealots. They have one track minds which are directed towards the objective of world revolution to communize all countries and bring them under the rule of Moscow. Anything that interferes, it is a project which leaves them cold, and they don't laugh.

Communism isn't merely a political line. One often hears it described as a religion. That is a fantastic characterization which perhaps has some application because the cause there is a similarity in the intensity of belief between the Communist and the religious fanatic person.

As a matter of fact Communism is the antithesis of religion, which under the Red doctrine is to be liquidated as a cause. All true Communists are Atheists.

Iron Rule

I think perhaps a good definition of Communism is that it is a way of life. It controls not only the political activities of the individual but the whole sweep of every bit of his existence with an iron rule.

This regimentation is achieved through a process of rigid discipline from the beginning of childhood. Children are schooled in the ways of Communism. Indeed, the entire morality of the individual is trained not only in ideology but in the methods of making revolution and carrying out espionage for the spread of Communism.

Much of the training of mature Communists is done underground to escape the law. All this underground activity and secrecy and trickery was a phase of the notorious folk, and especially the Charge Brutality, Ask Royal Probe Of Quebec Police

Montreal, May 21 (CP)— The parent union involved in Premier's labor dispute appealed to the Federal Government Monday to set up a Royal Commission investigation into alleged acts of brutality by provincial police against strikers.

In Ottawa, a government spokesman said the cabinet will not consider such a move. Charges made by the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor which accused Quebec police with "gangsterism" in breaking up strike action.

But at Niagara Falls, Ont., Labor Minister Mitchell said that the question of provincial police conduct is "a matter for the government of Quebec."

He said "the Federal government has no control of provincial action at the Asbestos plant for six years during the war, and would not be involved in it now."

The C.C.C.L. request, arising from the strike at the Asbestos Townships mining town of Asbestos of police reinforcements following disturbances there May 9, was made formally to the Government of Quebec.

It said that strikers arrested—more than 200 were arrested—"were abuse under questioning, were struck, wounded and subjected to Dwerthian physical and moral torture."

Their document sent to Ottawa, accompanied by affidavits from 15 persons detailing alleged blows and maltreatment upon her by the Canadian Johns-Manville company, said the perpetration was brutal acts.

The strike, which started Feb. 13, was settled Saturday May 5 when strikers set up road blocks to prevent Dominion Asbestos workers from going to the plant to work.

Among those arrested weeks later are three union officials and nine students arrested in Sherbrooke on charges of conspiring to incite illegal assembly now in its fourth day.

Boca Grande, Fla. — (AP) — A 177-pound tarpon apparently decided yesterday to see what it looked like inside a boat.

The fish, unconcealed and unaided, leaped into a 25-foot cruiser.

Its impact and struggles shattered a fishing chair and damaged a section of the floorings. It was brought under control after 20 minutes by Capt. Jack Hurst and part of its tail. The lost piece of tail left its weight at 177 lbs. instead of the 200 pounds caught in Florida waters this year.

British Favor Extension of Agreements

Guelph, May 25 (CP)—British plan to extend international agreements to staples other than wheat will be proposed to the World Wheat Conference, which opens here Wednesday.

A spokesman for the British delegation said the plan will be similar to that negotiated for wheat at an international conference in Washington earlier this year. It will embrace certain basic commodities with a view to stabilizing prices and production over an agreed-upon period.

More than 100 delegates and observers are registered for the third annual meeting of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers. They represent 23 of the world's major food-producing nations.

The Indian delegation is headed by Professor N. G. Ranga, President of the All-India Kisan Congress, an organization which speaks for the majority of India's farmers.

Prof. Ranga said in an interview that India was "vitally interested" in Canada.

"Canada, like India, is a large country which is primarily agricultural. Our delegation is anxious to learn all it can about . . . co-operative wheat pools (which) might be applied with profit in India."

Have to Buy Heavy Machinery

The Professor said India is taking steps which will make her self-sufficient agriculturally by 1951. He said that manufacture of light farm implements which could be used on the small farms which dot India was being carried out there.

"But tractors and combines and other heavy farm machinery will have to be bought elsewhere. Because of the dollar scarcity, we may have to buy from England. But if Canada's prices are right, she will get the orders," he said.

Prof. Ranga said his delegation would endorse a Canadian plan for setting up an international emergency fund to feed hungry countries.

The plan, which will be put before the conference, would work through the United Nations and would enable countries to provide their people with food at a cost within their reach.

British Traders Plan to Favor The Dominion

Toronto, May 21 (CP)—Harold Wilson, Britain's President of the Board of Trade, says British manufacturers and traders plan to favor Canada in trading arrangements during the years ahead.

He said Monday night in the final public address of a three-week Canadian tour intended to maintain and build up trade between the two countries:

"I am certain that, as the months go by, you will find British manufacturers and traders not only showing great energy in their attempts to sell more to Canada, but actively discriminating, as the government proposes to discriminate, in favor of these important North American markets."

It is, I think, fully realized that our ability to go on buying Canadian goods on the scale which we should like will depend on our ability to increase our earnings of Canadian dollars, whether by exports of United Kingdom goods or by increasing sales from other sterling area countries or by increasing yet further our Canadian dollar earnings on invisible account."

Mr. Wilson addressed the Periodical Press Association a few days after he attended the opening here of the second annual Canadian International Trade Fair. With him were Charles Sawyer, United States Secretary of Commerce, and Canada's Trade Minister Howe, both of whom will be in the Trade Fair's opening ceremonies.

Mr. Sawyer, addressing a luncheon gathering of Trade Fair delegates, proposed a tightening of economic ties between Canada and the United States. He said closer integration of Canadian and United States economies will strengthen both countries and contribute to all the world "the need and blessings" of joint effort.

The Trade Fair continues until June 10. It is open to the public June 1, 4 and 8.

Iroquois Club Scholarships Are Inaugurated

Brantford, May 20 (CP)—Four pupils of the Mohawk Institute now residing in Buffalo remembered their school days Tuesday when they inaugurated two Iroquois club scholarships with a value of $110.

The prizes were awarded to the winners of grade eight essay contest on the subject "why I want a high school education." First prize was won by Eleanor Davis of the Six Nations reservation and second prize by Gertrude Soloman, Hamilton.

The presentations were made before members of the Iroquois club who travelled to Chiwelen to attend the ceremony at which Governor-General Alexander unveiled a list of names of Six Nations men who fell in the Second World War.

I.O.D.E. Thanked For Its Help To Immigrants

Victoria, B.C., May 31 (CP) —The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has been thanked by the Dominion government for its aid to newly-arrived immigrants to Canada.

Recognition of the order's Work for the Dominion government was relayed to the 49th annual convention of the Order here Monday in a letter from Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister of Labor. The letter said the department was aware of a debt of gratitude to the I.O.D.E. for its handling of immigrants through local chapters of the organization.

Delegates heard a report by Vice President Mrs H. S. Angas, which showed that 125,000 newcomers arrived in Canada in 1948 and even more were expected this year. The report urged the order to do greater effort in the assimilation of the new citizens.

The Order's campaign to counteract the influence of cheap books and various undesirable comics at meeting with success the convention was told.

Mrs. D. Detsller of London, Ont., told delegates that public opinion has been aroused against this type of literature and said 14 leading publishers have set up a voluntary organization to combat undesirable books.

They adopted a code to ban "sexy vampire comics," glorification of crimes of sadistic nature, lurid, vulgar obscene language, encouraging of divorce and religious or race ridicule.

'Home Beautiful' Depicted In Words, Slides to Women Of St. Andrew's Guild

It was to a large and attentive audience of home-conscious women that Mrs. Eleanor Brown, eclectic of Sciences, and formerly graduate of Parson's School of Interior Decoration, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Guild, gave a delightful and informal talk in the dining rooms of the church, last evening on "The Home Beautiful".

Preceding Mrs. Brown's introduction by Mrs. Norman Smith, Mrs. Helen Brisbin rendered three lovely solos, "A Brown Bird Singing", "Think of Me", and "O Dry Those Tears", accompanied by Mrs. C. Templer, at the piano.

Mrs. Brown after replying to Mrs. Smith's introduction, remarked that she was indeed pleased to revisit Belleville, and especially pleased to see so many homeconscious women present, adding that since according to Dr. Chalmers' proverb, "That one picture was worth one thousand words," the world show soon alidis she had brought along, and be her own interlocutor, which she proceeded very charmingly and capably to demonstrate.

Try to Personalize Home

"The trend in decorating today," said Mrs. Brown, "is rather to personalize the home, than to follow the vogue, or one's neighbor's ideas; as one family differs from another, so the tastes and personalities differ, and accordingly, the trend is to decorate to suits the personal taste, and needs." There is also the opportunity to collect furniture "today by second hand stores, that is well built, and which can be used with newer pieces and which can be easily refinished or painted, and arranged in pleasing and comfortable manner, lend an air of personality and charm. Furniture is used that partakes of a dual and triple usefulness Sometimes one piece can be utilized in living or bedroom, hall, or dining room. Dark and light colored furniture can be used in combination with pleasing results.

Medical authorities and interiors have a lot in common, added the speaker; and it is generally recognized that where we live, and the surroundings in which we live, has much to do with making us happy or depressed. That colors tend to make one happy, while dark, drab, unattractive colors do the opposite. Therefore one should surround oneself with warm colors, such as red, orange, yellow and with cool colors such as blues, and greens and the neutral shades.

Make Small Room Look Larger

A small room can be made to appear larger, also more spacious by using neutral shades, and by having the large pieces of furniture either painted or covered to blend with the wall space, and not seem to melt into it. A large mirror will also add to the size by reproducing the room. This can also be achieved by the use of glass and papers, which tend to have the background recede, while patterned papers do the reverse, they tend to bring the background forward.

The central room is that having but two colors, with one other accidental to give it life. An example of this is to have the wall gray, the furniture coverings a soft gold, and the accidentals of yellow or red, such as a cushion, or lamp shade. If the rug is patterned, the plain background, thus keeping the attention fixed on one article. One part must predominate. If the rug be plain, then patterned drapes may be used, with a stripe on cushion or chair. These three go together, plain, plain and stripe. Never two different patterns in one room.

Lamps are becoming taller. Floor lamps are now very tall, and table lamps are also taller pedestal, light is what is needed. The tiny boudoir lamps are becoming a thing of the past. Every room needs at least five lamps. In all the picture slides shown the lamp height was stressed. Centre hanging fixtures were back again.

Pictures Again Used

Pictures are again coming to hold a chief part in interior decoration. But instead of spotting them here and there about the room, collect all together, and space in one wall space, above a chesterfield, so that the edge of the very large picture is about 4 to 6 inches above the chesterfield back, or if a collection of prints, have the bottom row the same distance above the article of furniture, as this gives a most pleasing and restful effect.

In the grouping of articles of furniture, this is done for the utmost in comfort If a fireplace is in the room use it as a focal point of interest, by placing comfortable chairs at right angles to it. Different parts of the room should be arranged with the main idea of giving comfort, and at the same time making a pleasing arrangement.

Plants are coming back into the house in the shape of window boxes, and the tall old rubber plants, as well as hanging baskets, which can be made with a little ingenuity and a can of paint, to be things of beauty. One picture demonstrated how a fine hanging basket made from a discarded parrot cage, the wire having been painted green, and two four uprights, and the article painted with white or cream enamel. Into this was placed a pot containing hanging plants, making a delightful piece of interest in a large window.

Effect Pleasing

Materials now were being used in combination, as cotton and satin, and the effect was pleasing and in many instances quite charming, as for example, the grouping of satin cushions, one of each shade of the same color, as well as contrasting ones. Rayon curtains which did not need pressing but only washed and rolled in a towel to absorb the excess moisture, then hung, and would dry straight and free from wrinkles were being used, and giving satisfaction. Glass curtains were featured more than Venetian blinds, though one was shown of a new material which did not need so much time in cleaning.

Drapes were featured with white backgrounds, and were floor length, with French headings, without a valance. If the wall were figured, plain drapes of the same shade as the wall were advocated, but if the wall were plain, then figured drapes could be used, and the idea further carried out in a cushion or two.

Taken all in all, the trend today in interior decorating was to mingle the old with the new, in one harmonious whole, in order to make for comfortable living. The furniture was without ornamentation, and tended toward simplicity of form, both utility and yielding comfort. Do not clutter up a room with useless articles of furniture; keep lanes of traffic open; use large art trays, and make the man of the house comfortable, were the closing remarks of a delightful and charming talk.

Appreciation was extended to Mrs. Brown for her illuminating address.

PRIME MINISTER PUTS IN 15-HOUR DAY ON HUSTINGS

Casselman, Ont., May 31 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent put in a 15-hour day on the hustings Monday after a quiet weekend spent resting at Ottawa.

His day began in Montreal when McGill University students pitted his carnival up to the McGill campus where he received an honorary degree from the university. It ended in this town, 35 miles southeast of Ottawa, after eight stops in eastern Ontario and Western Quebec communities.

His main speech was at Hawkesbury, 60 miles west of Ottawa, where he said Independent Liberal candidate who had claimed during the campaign that he was "fooling themselves" and a nuisance "is me".

At St. Isidore, 20 miles northeast of here, he indicated he will not first-time he intends to lead the Liberals in another federal election. If his government is returned June 27, when told that some of the people who had claimed during to see him had been here because of that, old chieftain Mr. St. Laurent said anybody he missed seeing in this campaign, he would see in the next.

He continued his tour through eastern Ontario today, addressing a public meeting and delivering a radio broadcast at Cornwall tonight.

Serving 15 Years

Mickey, montepositorius of them all, was serving a 15-year term for kidnapping the son of liquor when he made it over the thick strong walls of the penitentiary.

Police here expressed doubt that Mickey is dead. Detective-Sergeant Arthur Casey of Syracuse said Alexander and Deskins might be attempting to "cover" the No. 1 criminal of the Dodge opinion.

Casey added he suspects Mickey might have been a "contact man" in a recent counterfeiting case, which involved the other McDonald brother, Edwin.

Edwin at present is free on $20,000 bail on counterfeiting charges. His arrest recently led to confiscation of $17,000 in United States currency at Oshawa. At that time he was questioned that Mickey had a hand in the operation.

Samuel R. Lyons, officer in charge of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service here, said that Goldfinch, charged with entering the United States after a previous deportation, may be arraigned here today. Alexander McDonald and Deskins, who are charged with failure to declare previous felony convictions, may not be arraigned immediately, Lyons added. Their determination depends on the outcome of the present investigation.

Officers Believe Mickey McDonald Is Still Alive

Syracuse, N. Y., May 31 (CP) — Authorities said Monday they could not qualify — but cast doubts on statements made in Canada by three Canadian convicts that Donald (Mickey) McDonald notorious Toronto criminal, is dead and buried in New York State.

McDonald is serving time in Kingston penitentiary. Aug. 18, 1947 with two other convicts, has often been reported hiding out in New York.

The Canadians held hast on immigration charges are: Alexander McDonald, 30, a brother of Mickey; Alfred Goldfinch, 32, and Harry Deskins, 31. All are from Toronto.

Alexander McDonald and Deskins were quoted by federal officials here as saying that Mickey is dead and "buried somewhere in New York State about 10 months ago."

Mickey is the last of the trio who made their escape from behind the prison wall in 1947 to serve time for armed robbery.

688 Candidates Nominated for General Election

By The Canadian Press

A total of 688 candidates has been nominated to date across Canada for the federal general election Monday, June 27, it was shown today in an unofficial compilation by The Canadian Press.

It is expected that possibly as many as 1,000 candidates will be in the field when official nominations close Monday, June 13—13 days from now—in most of the country's 260 constituencies.

Two constituencies — Halifax and Queens, in Prince Edward Island—return two members each, bringing to 262 the number of members to be elected. There were 245 members in the last house.

So far, the Liberals have nominated 243 candidates, Progressive Conservatives 210, C.C.F. 154, Labor-Progressive 17, Social Credit 22, Union of Electors 26 and other minor groups 17.

The totals already are above those at the same stage in the campaign for the 1945 general election. There were 654 candidates contesting the 245 commons seats in that election.

Nominations closed Monday in the northern constituency of Yukon-Mackenzie River and five ridings in the new Provinces of Newfoundland. All of these ridings have sizeable remote areas and nominations are closed two weeks earlier to enable the authorities to get ballots and other voting equipment there by election day.

LEARNING TO FLY . . . EASY FOR HIM

Toronto, May 31 (CP)— Learning to fly was a cinch for John Petterson of Toronto. He received his license Monday after only two weeks' instruction at Central Airways Flying School. Petterson, a mining geologist, plans to use his flying knowledge in the Northern Ontario bushland.

Red Congress Claims to Speak For All Germany

Berlin, May 31 (AP)— A communist-led people's congress, claiming to speak for all Germany, today adopted a Russian type constitution for the country.

The Congress also drew up a list of 400 candidates for a people's council to act as a government and initiated in the list Gerhart Eisler, Communist fugitive from the United States, who hasn't been in Germany since Nazi days.

Western officials said the action apparently was taken to strengthen Russia's hand in the foreign ministers meeting in Paris, where Soviet foreign minister Andrei Vishinsky Monday turned down a western proposal to unite Germany under the democratic constitution of Western Germany.

The 2,000 delegates to the People's Congress also chose a 22-man delegation to go to the Paris Conference.

Only one delegate refused to vote for ratification of the constitution, which was adopted by a show of hands, without debate.

Otto Grotewohl, East Germany's No. 2 Communist denounced the Bonn constitution, which he said was "tearing Germany apart."

Lack of Guarantees Admitted

He admitted that the eastern constitution drafted by Communists and Russian advisers, lacked the guarantees of freedom.

"But we need a democracy able to deal with its enemies," he added. "Public opinion will be free but not so free as under the Weimar Republic which granted unrestrained freedom to criminal political enemies (Nazis)."

The eastern constitution-in substance perpetuates the Socialization of industry and land enforced in the Soviet zone since the war.

A national people's assembly is to be chosen from candidates put up by political parties and Communist-front organizations in Labor and cultural affairs.

Eisler, who jumped bail in the United States and stowed away on the Polish liner Batory, left London by air for Prague today and is expected in Germany in a few days.

Winnipeg Will Celebrate 77th Anniversary of Founding

Winnipeg, May 31 (CP)— The City of Winnipeg is set to cut itself a slice of cake.

The metropolis, reared from a trading post at the confluence of the Assiniboine and Red Rivers, will celebrate its 77th birthday with celebrations from June 3-11. It's to be one great big birthday party.

It'll be lavish with the spirit of the occasion, a giant cake 19 feet high and 30 feet in diameter—is to be set up at the corners of Portage and Main, the city's main arteries. The cake will be lighted with 78 candles. A 65-foot tall "79" is to flash brilliantly in lights over the cake.

Thousands of tourists, many of them likely to be former Winnipeggers, are expected to be attracted to the celebrations.

The Winnipeg Ballet Company and the Winnipeg Symphony have prominent roles in the spate of attractions. Opera star Gladys Swarthout is also down as an appearance with the Symphony.

The Hollywood touch will be in evidence with the appearance of Canadian-born movie star Alexis Smith.

Apart from the $3,000 Jubilee Open Golf Tournament June 7-9 which has attracted name players from across the country, there'll also be an exhibition soccer match involving the touring English Newcastle team and a four-day lacrosse carnival featuring Barbara Ann Scott.

Hotels here have been booked up for weeks for the period of the birthday observances. The two daily newspapers, the Free Press and the Tribune, ran off special large-size birthday editions last Saturday.

An ornamental fountain spilling out 1,000,000 gallons of water a day is to be one of the downtown attractions. Hub of the fountain is to be a 54-foot tapering steel column. A four-foot cylindrical steel drum with the omnipresent 78 marked on it, will rotate at the top of the column.

Limehouse, London's Dockland in East End, Only a Ghost of its Former Self

London, May 31—(CP)—Limehouse once notorious for its dives — fisted dockers, slant-eyed Chinese and sinister opium dens, today is little more than a ghost of its former self.

It's a pretty respectable ghost, too. Touring London's dockland from east to west, two Canadian Press reporters found nothing more exciting than a tumbled-down waterfront pub, wherein a blue-jerseyed seaman sat on an empty beer barrel pounding a piano.

Leaning heavily on the wilty bar, a black-bearded first mate talked of other cities and other climes. An assistant mariner sat in one corner reminiscing over his pint, while in the other a fiercely-bespectacled landlady, hands folded primly in her lap, surveyed the customers with evident disapproval.

The only bad language came from a parrot, caged above the bar, which at frequent intervals told everyone to "go to hell."

"Most of the Chinese have gone from Limehouse and few Chinese sailors come here nowadays," said the genial landlady. Limehouse born and bred, lustily pulling a mild-and-bitter.

"Where they've gone to, Heavven only knows. I think a lot of 'em went back to China, and a good many spread out over Britain during the depression. This ain't Limehouse any more. Why, in my young days it weren't safe to walk down the street by yourself o' nights . . ."

One famous pub originated by Charlie Brown, one - time unofficial "mayor" of Limehouse, now is little more than a peephow for tourists. The waterfront toughs and the dope - peddling Chinese have gone with the renowned Oriental treasures that once adorned its bars.

In their place are streamers and pennants and framed photos of rival artists, while its clientele copsists largely of west end 'toffs' and their girl friends out for an evening's "slumming." There is even an American jukebox in the saloon

FRANKFORD

Trip to Ottawa Greatly Enjoyed By 60 Pupils

Frankford — Friday, May 20 is a date which will be long remembered by students of Frankford Continuation School. At 7:00 a.m. 60 boys and girls loaded with over sixty pupils and teachers left Frankford on an all-day trip, which was planned by an organized tour of Ottawa.

The buses were held up temporarily in Belleville, due to the illness of one of the drivers, but other short delay in Kingston brought them about an hour behind schedule. The trip took them on Highway No. 2, and along the Thousand Islands scenic drive between Gananoque and Brockville. Going into Ottawa, the driver chose the picturesque Rideau Drive. The Drive is presently at the height of its beauty, with flowers in full bloom.

In order to keep the schedule as planned, the visit to the experimental farm was cancelled, consequently leaving about an hour and a half for sightseeing in the capital was the Museum.

Visit Collegiate

The pupils called at the Glebe Collegiate, where they were most cordially received by the principal and a number of members of the student council. Lunch was enjoyed in the Collegiate cafeteria. The visitors were shown about the school of commerce, and the technical schools. The many items of interest, was the two-manual pipe organ, a Commercial business machines were demonstrated. An all-girl choir greatly thrilled the listeners. The boys found particular interest in watching a class of girls going through calisthenics. Through the courtesy paid to the Collegiate, the Frankford pupils were shown the greatest hospitality possible - by the principal and councilors. The next stop on the trip was the Royal Mint. The pupils were divided into six groups, and shown in turn many of the operations involved in the production of Canadian currency.

The Military Museum next door attracted a great deal of interest, particularly among the boys. A German Heinkel jet fighter was on display, as well as weapons of all types from modern and past times.

From Nepean Point, the hold-dryest observed the Parliament Buildings, the Rideau Canal, the bridges across the Ottawa River and on the opposite shores the neighboring city of Hull.

See Parliament Buildings

They then crossed the Laurier Bridge to Parliament Hill, and the visit to the Parliament Buildings. First point of interest was the Peace Tower, from which they marvelled at the wonderful view of the city and surrounding country. Cameras immediately came into use. The pupils were shown the works of the great clock, and the bells in the tower.

The group reassembled in the main corridor, and led by a guide, were shown through the Parliament Library, and the Government Lobby. Visits were made in turn to the House of Commons and the Senate Chamber. While on the tour of the Parliamentary Buildings, the guide pointed out portraits of many of Canada's great statesmen of past and present times. Outside the buildings, the boys and girls walked around the grounds, taking particular notice of the beautiful tulips in bloom.

At 4:30, they were given their liberty to shop, or attend a movie, and were to meet at the bus terminal at 9:30. Some enjoyed a dip in the swimming pool at Chateau, while others dined in the cafeteria. On the dot of 9:30, every pupil was there with the teachers, for the trip home. The return route was via Highways Nos. 14 and 7, bringing a very tired, but happy group of students back to Frankford.

Well-arranged Trip

The entire trip was run off like clockwork, and the excellent report a most enjoyable day. Principal James R. Connell, and teacher, Miss Mary Donnelly, are to be congratulated on the fine organization and supervision of this trip. The trip provided not only a day of enjoyment which will be long remembered by all, but will prove invaluable in furthering the education of the Continuation School.

Army of Workers Begin Slow March Back to Work

Detroit, May 31 — (AP)—The Ford Motor Company's army of 106,000 production workers began a slow march back to the work bench today after its strike settlement.

With a peace - pact signed and sealed in the speed - up dispute, Ford and the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) resumed their job of making automobiles.

All of two weeks are expected to pass, however, before top production can again be attained. Extensive plant preparations are required.

Only a limited number of men returned to Ford's key Rouge factory, it was left for Rouge to get into its full swing of parts manufacture before others among Ford's 49 plants in the United States can reach normal production.

The strike, in which there was no wage issue, ended in its 24th day early Sunday. Company and union negotiators, in an extraordinary session, drew up a plan for naming an arbitrator in the assembly line speed-up issue.

At a conservative estimate the strike cost workers and the company a total of $77,000,000 in lost wages and production.

The arbitration will decide whether Ford has the contractual right to work employees temporarily beyond set standards provided they're over - all rate does not exceed ah eight - hour day's standards.

COLDWELL SAYS CCF PARTY WOULD CHANGE CONTROL

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New Liskeard, May 31 (CP) — The C.C.F. party, if elected to power, would make "democratic planning" the keynote of Canada's economy, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said last night in a campaign address here.

Under Democratic planning, he added, control of the economy would be held by the people through their own organizations, which would include elected municipal, provincial and federal governments and co-operative and trade union movements.

Addressing a political rally in this northern Ontario industrial and farming community, he said the co-operative movement was under an attack which might destroy it and warned that any member of a co-operative who voted for either the Liberals or the Progressive Conservatives would be approving that attack.

The Liberals had been influenced by "fury propaganda" when they instituted taxation of co-operatives in 1946. The co-operatives made no profits and should not be taxed.

Later, he told a C.C.F. rally at nearby Cobalt that the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives were getting together in the Federal field and denied a charge by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that the C.C.F. and the Liberals would form a coalition.

He reiterated that the C.C.F. would not enter a coalition with either the Liberal or the Progressive Conservative parties under any circumstances.

With the honeward rush still to come, the traffic deaths mounted to 186 before midnight today. Five persons were drowned, and 62 died as the result of miscellaneous accidents.

The National Safety Council had predicted 215 persons will be killed during the three day weekend, not counting those who will die later of injuries suffered in auto accidents.

The council estimated that 30,000,000 automobiles would move on the highways during the period.

Prominent in Anglican Church Half A Century

Vancouver, May 31, (CP)— Archbishop de Pencier, 83, died Monday at his home. Prominent in the Anglican Church for more than half a century, he retired as archbishop of British Columbia and the Yukon in 1940.

Archbishop de Pencier came to Vancouver from Brandon, Man., in 1908 to the rectorship of St. Paul's Church, a post he held until he became bishop in 1910. He was named archbishop in 1925.

Born in Burwitt's Rapids, Ont., he attended Trinity College in Toronto and was ordained in 1892.

Known as British Columbia's "first citizen" of the Church of England, he had a colorful career in a widespread field while he headed work in North British Columbia in the Kootenays and Stewart Lewis country.

His earlier charges included seven years at rural of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, and a year at Uxbridge, Ont.

He was one of the few—if not the only —bishop to go overseas as a padre from Canada in the First World War. He advanced to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, was mentioned in dispatches twice and later was awarded the Order of the British Empire.

He is survived by three sons, Rev. Theo de Pencier of suburban Burnaby; Joseph, Toronto, and Eric, Montreal; two daughters, Mrs. K. S. Vaughan and Mrs. T. J. McQuillan, both of Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday in Christ's Church Cathedral here.

The archbishop was married in 1892 and twice a widower. He married Nina Fredericka Wells of Toronto in 1918, and in 1926, he married Jessie Culliford of England. She predeased him in 1945.

External Affairs Minister Pearson Is Nominated

Espanola, Ont., May 31 (CP)— External Affairs Minister Pearson was the unanimous choice Monday as Liberal candidate for re-election in Sudbury East in the June 27 Federal election. No other name was put forward at the nominating convention.

Thanking the delegates, Mr. Pearson spoke briefly on foreign affairs and international affairs.

He admitted serious domestic economic difficulties in the future, but said that a Progressive Conservative regime would not be the one to affect a cure for such ills, should they develop. He said the Progressive Conservative campaign was founded on promises and empty promises of the impossible and predictions of things that would not come.

The irresponsibility of the Conservatives was never more clearly demonstrated than in (Leader George) Drew's promise to Newfoundlanders that the financial terms with them would be devised if the Conservative party gained power, Mr. Pearson declared. "Those financial terms were negotiated delicately, and to the satisfaction of all. There was not a voice of objection, not even from Mr. Drew, would not come to the House."

The minister said the Liberal government was taking all possible steps to correct the disparity between the dollar and the pound sterling which was having a grave effect on export trade.

"Drew claims the dollar and the pound are convertible, but how?" he asked. "Britain and Europe must get back on their training feet and the Liberals are trying to assist in all way possible."

TWEED

Veneer Company Adds to Plant

Tweed — Further expansion is announced at the plant of Hunter Veneers Limited in Tweed. Eric Hunter, president stated that operations have started for the construction of an addition to the premises. The new section of the building will be used for storage, sorting and crating veneer. The new cement floor was completed last week. It will be of timber construction.

The heavy demand for export and domestic veneer, has necessitated an additional shift and 26 men joined the night crew on Tuesday. Mr. Hunter states that the present staff has been unable to keep up with the orders for high-grade birch, maple, and basswood veneer.

With 35 men on the day shift and 25 on nights, the firm is now employing more help than any other local industry. Since it came to Tweed two years ago from Lost Channel, the firm of Hunter and Roberts, predecessors to the present company, employed only a few men. It has become one of Tweed's most substantial industries. Mr. Hunter intimated that the plant has sufficient orders ahead to maintain a capacity staff for several months.

Here's my $25,000 question

What's the answer?

"I'VE TOTALLED UP MY ASSETS — the equity in my house — stocks and bonds — insurance and savings. They come to just over $25,000.

"I realize that this is not a large 'estate', but it should be managed for the best advantage of my family. Now whom should I appoint as Executor of my Will?

"If I appoint my wife, to whom will she turn for guidance? If I appoint a friend, will he have the ability and the time to manage my estate? Or should I name a trust company whose business it is to administer estates?"

The answer is that there is no substitute for experience and specialized knowledge. That is one reason why more than half of the estates in National Trust charge are for $25,000 or less.

Whether your estate is small or large, you will be wise to appoint National Trust as your Executor.

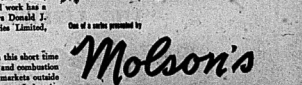
Today we Live in a Greater Canada

New Names in the NORTH



THERE'S new activity in Ontario's bushland north of Lake Superior. Marathon and Red Rock, Terrace and Heron Bay: they all tell the same story. New towns have arisen, old ones expanded. Only five years ago on the site of Marathon, for example, there was nothing but bush; today a new community beside a new pulp mill is contributing millions to Canada's export trade.

Such spectacular developments in the north are matched by continuing industrial expansion in the older established communities. Throughout Canada today ever-widening avenues of opportunity await the enterprise of young Canadians.

With newsprint production 50% above pre-war levels, Canada today has an output five times that of any other country, and accounts for three out of every five newspaper pages in the world.

"Canada is a land of opportunity . . .
There is a field for almost anything one can think of, and anyone with a willingness for hard work has a good chance to achieve success", says Donald J. Smith, President of Hornet Industries Limited, Guelph, Ontario.

Hornet Industries Limited, which was founded in 1945, has in this short time achieved remarkable success in the manufactury of chain saws and combustion engines. More than half the production of the plant reaches markets outside Canada. From a staff of only a half dozen in 1945, Hornet Industries Limited has expanded to three plants in Guelph, employing 296 workers.

Holland Wins 500-Mile Grind In Record Time

Indianapolis, May 31 (AP) — Bill Holland, the veteran speedster from Reading, Pa., is a patient fellow — a guy who can wait for the breaks.

Holland today holds his first Indianapolis speedway race title and it all came about because he was willing to wait for misfortune to overcome the cars he was trailing in the 500 mile grind.

He watched Duke Nalon set a fantastic pace in his Nov Mobil Special for 56 miles at the start of Monday's race. Nalon, who rode out of Sherman Oaks, Calif., averaged almost 128 miles per hour in breaking a long string of records for the first 25 miles.

Then Nalon's car became a burned out wreck on the northwest retaining wall. He suffered second degree burns. Rex Mays, almost out for his first triumph in the 13th time, then took over and Holland still waited.

Mays engine conked out at 90 miles. Then Lee Wallard, a second year driver from Schenectady, N.Y., grabbed the lead, and Holland still played his waiting game. Wallard, driving the late than three times that of 1938.

Ted Horn's Maserati, was slowed by clutch trouble and finally dropped out.

Grabbed Lead

This was Holland's cue. The 41-year-old driver grabbed the lead at the 137 2-3 mile mark and never was headed. He even got a break in the last 20 miles of the race when Mauri Rose, the south Bend, Ind., engineer, who was seeking an unprecedented fourth victory, was halted by engine trouble.

Holland's share of the $185,000 prize money is a matter for speculation, since it depends on his private agreement with Lou Moore, owner of the Blue Crown Special he drove.

Holland set up a new record of 121.377 miles an hour, and an elapsed time of 4:07:15.97.

Johnny Parsons, speedway rookie from Van Nuys, Calif., took second money in a Kurtis-Kraft Special.

George Connor of Los Angeles, veteran of 10 previous Memorial Day races, came in third.

Mechanically, the race was a clean sweep by big-four cylinder engines. Every car still running at the finish was powered by an Offenhauser of Meyer-Drake engine, and both of them came out of the same Los Angeles plant.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"The Voice" is stilled. The grand dynamic little fellow who talked his way into the hearts and purses of sports writers and sheets given a combined $ gone, Phil Lawson, one of Canada's outstanding sports personalities died suddenly yesterday in Toronto.

"Phearless Phil" was perhaps best known through his association with wrestling. A boxer in his own right, he later turned to the big boys, and mainly through his efforts, wrestling attained the lofty level it now enjoys in the minds of sports fans. The name of Whipper Billy Watson is closely associated with that of Phil Lawson. The two were inseparable friends, as close as salt and pepper, Mutt and Jeff, east and west, etc.

We were well acquainted with the late Phil Lawson through his association with wrestling, the Memorial Arena and Manager Walter Gerow. We found him to be a "square-shooter." His personality was such that he made friends wherever his business or pleasure took him. His quick smile, ready repartee, and above all his loyalty and championing of his beloved "Whip" earned for him the friendship of many.

He was generous to the extreme. We recall on one occasion attending a Toronto card that he were, and which he purchased while on one of his many jaunts to the United States. The following Friday, a package was left in the Arena manager's office addressed to this department. It was a handsome pair of shoes exactly like those we admired on the Lawson tootsies the week previous. "Compliments of the Whipper and Phil" was written on a card.

Phil Lawson was like that. Furthermore, he wanted above all to give his fellow-man a square deal. At 11 o'clock last night greetings for wrestling cards. "After all," he would smile, "it's the people who pay and they should get what they pay for." Yes, Phil Lawson was like that.

He was a grand little guy who will be missed wherever sports people gather. Particularly will genial Frank Tunney, sports promoter for whom Phil was the late Phil was closely associated, miss him. The boys on the sports beats wherever Phil was known will miss the dynamic little fellow who made life interesting for them with his bright sayings and chatter. Above all his beloved "Whip" will miss a grand pal, and colleague. The sincere sympathy of this department, Manager Walter Gerow of the Memorial Arena, S. R. "Sandy" Burrows, Alderman Claude Tice and all of those who knew Phil Lawson through his association here goes to the sorrowing family.

Perhaps the last official thing Phil Lawson did was to arrange the wrestling card for Belleville next Friday night. He was unable to be here last Friday and left the "Whipper" in charge. Bright and early yesterday morning, as was his wont, he telephoned the card for Belleville's wrestling fans-to-be next Friday. Then Death struck swiftly, suddenly, writing "finis" to an illustrious sports career, and to one of the grandest "little guys" we have ever met.

Belleville's Canadian National Railways "Nationals" softball team has arranged a series with the strong Cobourg squad, according to Harry Thrall. The first of the five-game series will get under way here on Wednesday, June 8th at a field yet to be decided on. The second game will be at Cobourg on Saturday, June 11, the third game here, Wed., June 15; the fourth game in Cobourg, Saturday, June 18 and the fifth either here or in Cobourg.

Word out of Picton says that the hometown baseball squad has all the makings of a smart diamond crew. A big sweepstake perhaps is the report of one of the Picton fans who states the team is young, can run like deer, can hit and field and most important of all it has a trio of flingers who should make themselves felt before playoff time arrives. Baseball is on the upsurge in the Prince Edward County town and the 1940 edition of the team should make things pleasant for baseball lovers of the bay village.

Well, you can never tell what a baseball team will do these days. After we gave the Batawa CCBL entry a mild once-over slightly tinged if the Easton crew didn't rise up on their haunches and hand the strong Oshawa team a 4-3 setback, even if it did take eleven innings. Experts state the boys were on the beam in as neat a spot of diamond pastiming as Oshawa has seen, in many a moon. Tomorrow the Motor City crew asterix to Peterborough where they are on the Men 'o Murphy in a league fixture. And that should be a neat and tidy tiff.

Tonight the RCAF Flyers trek to Picton in a Belleville District Baseball League tilt and a win for the Flyers will firmly implant them on the top of the heap. They have won their first two starts but may strike a snag when they meet the up-and-coming Pictonians tonight. Napanee Journeys to Trenton where they meet the town team in another loop fixture.

Snead, Palmer Meet in Final For P.G.A. Trophy

Richmond, Va., May 31 (AP)—Sammy Snead, cocky about his new-found ability to putt, and Johnny Palmer, whose greens' wizardry never has been questioned, will face each other today for the P.G.A. championship.

Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., is making his fourth appearance in P.G.A. final. After bowing to Paul Runyan in 1938 and to Byron Nelson in 1940, the slammer won the crown in 1942 by downing Jim Turnesa, 2 and 1.

Snead is shooting for his second big title of the year. He won the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., last month—just a week after he had christened a new putter in downing a playoff victory in the Greensboro Open.

This is the first P.G.A. final for Palmer of Badin, N.C. In fact, last year was the initial trial in this classic, one of the most lucrative in golf today. Palmer was beaten in the second round.

Today's struggle is expected to be a red-hot affair. Both Palmer and Snead had his putts falling Monday as he won an uphill 3-and-2 victory over Jim Ferrier, the transplanted Australian from San Francisco. Snead won eight under par for the distance.

A Hot Streak

Pamer's 6-and-5 rout of Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago Monday was one of the hottest streaks in golf in a major tournament. The North Carolina star fired 7 consecutive holes in 97 strokes, 10 below par.

Palmer was never behind in his match with Mangrum. Two up at the end of 22 holes, Johnny won five straight holes, four of them on birdies.

For a long while Monday it appeared that Ferrier would prove too much for Sheriff Sam's great putting. Three times, big Jim was three up. But Snead kept whittling away until he finally pulled up even on the twenty-fourth.

The turning point probably came, however, on the twenty-first. There, Snead rammed in a 20-foot chip shot for an eagle two. Ferrier could win only one hole after that.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

BY HANS GROTTER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 31 — (CP)—The world of sport has seen so many outstanding Negro athletes down through the years that to pick out the 10 best of all times rates as an extremely hard task. Yet that is just what Ebony, Negro picture magazine Ebony will attempt to do in a nation - wide request for nominations from which the final compilation will be made.

In commenting on the situation, Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson notes that at least two Canadian Negro athletes would qualify for top rating.

Wylie Fergy: "Negro Dixon, possibly the greatest boxer the British Empire ever produced, and Sam Langford, fabulous heavyweight fighter, undoubtedly rate among the all - time greats.

"Both were born in Nova Scotia. The feats of Dixon who held both the bantam and featherweight world title at different times, have probably been forgotten by most nominators of modern vintage, but Langford will doubtless win a nod from many because his feats are comparatively modern.

"Dixon fought in the days when fighting required tremendous durability. For instance, he fought Cal McCarthy 70 rounds for a purse of $1,000, which isn't even training money for champions today.

"He beat Frank Erne, later world middleweight champion, in 25 rounds. Such great names as Abe Attell, Young Corbett, Terrible Terry McGovern, Pedlar Palmer and other such fistically-immortal figures dot his list."

About Langford Elmer says:—"He had such a lethal left hook that he could quite often name the round in which he would knock an opponent out.

Langford weighed only 165 lbs. in 1906 when he fought the great Jack Johnson who scaled about 195 pounds at the time. Although Johnson took a 15 - round decision, he would never fight 'Sam' again because of his dangerous left hand."

Major League Flag Races Begin to Take Shape as Predicted in the Spring

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The major league pennant races are beginning to shape up as predicted.

While the National remained in a triple tie for first place the American League pennant chase was tightening up with such formidables as Boston, Detroit and Cleveland moving closer to the top.

As a result of splits in yesterday's Memorial Day doubleheaders, Brooklyn, Boston and New York still are crowding each other for the former circuit's top berth. Each has won 23 and lost 17.

The Dodgers outlasted the Giants 2-1 in a 13 inning thriller in the first game, then bounced back to win the second 7-4. The Braves whipped the Phils 7-3 in the opener in Philadelphia but the losers came back to nip the Braves 6-5 in a 10 inning nightcap.

The Red Sox and Indians, off to wretched starts, are finally beginning to roll. The Sox completed a profitable home stand, sweeping a twin bill from Philadelphia Athletics 10-3 and 6-3, to replace the A's as runners-ups to the Yankees in the Junior circuit.

Held to a split in their doubleheader in Washington, the Yankees saw their lead shrink to 4 1-2 games over Boston.

Cleveland knocked off the hapless St. Louis Browns twice 3-1 and 5-4. The Indians needed 13 innings to win the opener.

Close Decisions

In the other American League doubleheader, Detroit and Chicago exchanged close decisions. The Tigers won the opener 3-2 and the White Sox the second 2-1.

St. Louis Cardinals took over fourth place from Cincinnati by one percentage point by defeating the Reds in both ends of their twin bill 8-6 and 9-2. The Redlegs fell enders, Chicago and Pittsburgh, divided a doubleheader. The Cubs grabbed the first game 8-3 and Pittsburgh took the nightcap 8-6.

It took an eighth inning home run by Lou Williams with none aboard to give the Red Sox their opening triumph. Until then, right-hander Carl Schelb was out in front of the Sox. He had an easy time of it in the first game as Al Zarilla paced an 11 hit attack against four pitchers with a grand slam homer and two singles. Jon Dobson and Mel Harrell were the winning Boston pitchers.

Indians Win Two

Gene Bearden and rookie Mike Garcia combined to pitch the Indians to their 1st twin-triumph of the year. Bearden allowed only 5 hits in the opener and Garcia hurled six hit ball in the nightcap.

Righthander Walter Masterson and first baseman Mickey Robinson collaborated to defeat the Yankees 6-5 in the opener. Masterson stopped the Yankees with six hits for his third victory and Robinson led the Senators' close hit attack, against loser Tommy Byrne with a double and two singles. The Yankees blasted four at horiers for 20 hits and a 13-5 triumph in the second game.

The Tigers came up with two in the top of the ninth to open from behind a 2-1 deficit in the opener, Johnny Groth's single scored Hoot Evers with the decicding tally. Bill Weight outpitched Hal Newhouser in the nightcap.

Robinson's Homer Wins

Jackie Robinson's home run in the 13th inning won him the opener for Brooklyn. Rex Pallos, in relief was the winner, and Dave Koslo, relieved in the ninth was the loser. Homers by Whitey Lockman and Johnny Mize helped Clint Hartung rack up his fifth victory in the nightcap. The Giants climbed on Ralph Branca for seven hits in two innings to hang the first defeat of the season on the Dodger righthander. He won his first seven.

Home runs by Clint Constaer and Jimmy Russell helped Bill Voiselle and Boston defeat Philadelphia in the opener. Del Ennis clouted a 10th-inning triple

The big-as-and-so from way down south pictured above was highly dissatisfied with last week's decision which gave him a draw against Sliding Billy Ranson in Memorial Arena. There was much beefing, gnashing of teeth etc., and the only way to satisfy Sandy was give him the main bout with a different referee to make sure. So that's the card for Friday evening. Tuesday Carlsen meets Hi Lee, giant Czarkian in the semi-final while Al Kraiser meets popular Irish Tom Collins in the opener, and scored on Andy Seminick's fly to give the Phils an even break.

St. Louis spotted Cincinnati 4 runs in the first inning, then roared back with a fiver of their own in the sixth to tie. A homer in the seventh sewed up the first game. Pinch hitter Hal Gregg's two-run homer was the big blow. Howie Pollett stopped the Reds with five hits in the second game.

The Cubs came up with a six run, sixth inning outburst to win their opener against Pittsburgh. Phil Cavarretta hit a homer and triple for the Cubs. Ralph Kiner, Wally Westlake and Ed Fitzgerald helped Bob Chesnes gain his third victory with second-game trippers.

INDIANS GOOD WITH CUR

Calcutta, India — (CP) — Robert Marshall, British Empire billiards champion, said here that the standard of billiards in India was "good" and the "players will hold their own with any part of the empire within two years.

Wally Wood, Jr. Cinch to Follow Father's Footsteps

(By The Associated Press)

Wally Hood Jr., son of a former major league baseball player seems a cinch to follow in his father's footsteps.

Hood, whose father was a fine outfielder for Boston Braves a decades ago, Monday racked up his fourth consecutive International League pitching victory. He has yet to taste defeat.

The Newark Bears' righthander defeated Jersey City Giants 4-3 in the first game of a Memorial Day doubleheader at Newark. He had a no - hitter until the seventh when Monte Irvin doubled.

Wes Bailey, Giant starter, dropped his first game after seven straight triumphs. The defeat snapped a six - game winning streak for the Giants.

Jersey City, behind six - hit pitching by Ray Poat, evened matters by winning the nightcap 8-1 to retain their two - game, first-place lead over Buffalo - up Buffalo.

Buffalo and Montreal divided a doubleheader, the Royals winning the opener 5-2 and the Bisons taking the nightcap 7-2.

Two - run double by George Schmees at the plate won the opener for the Royals. Billy Demars and Ray Coleman paced the Bisons in the nightcap. Demars belted a two - run homer to snap a 2-2 tie in the fifth. Coleman batted home three tallies with a pair of singles.

Toronto seven runs in the last two innings, Syracuse whipped Baltimore 9-3 in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader. The second game was postponed due to a power failure. Millard Howell was the winner. The victory enabled the Orioles to tie the Cubs for seventh place.

Rochester and Scranton split a pair at Rochester. The Red Wings rallied for four runs in the last frame of the second game to sweet er to win 6-5. Russ Derry singled home the winning run.

Hookie Max Peterson pitched his second straight shutout in the nightcap which Toronto won 3-0. Bill Glynn hit his eighth and 9th homers of the season for Toronto.

Napanee Hands Kiwanis Juniors A 5-0 Shutout

Ed. Hooper, veteran Napanee pitcher, had too much on the ball for Kiwanis Juniors in a Belleville District Baseball League game at the Fair Grounds last night, and as a result the young stars went down to a 5-0 shutout; Hooper was in form from start to finish and the juniors practically doing as he willed all through. He received seven innings game. He sent down nine via the strikeout route and did not issue a single free ticket to first base. Meanwhile his mates were pounding young Billy Strachan for nine safeties albeit it some were of the scratch variety.

The Kiwanis kids failed to hit in the clutches and the best they could do off the Hooper delivery was five hits. They clustered a pair in each of the fourth and fifth innings but failed to come through with the necessary hits. They missed a grand chance in the fourth when they loaded the bases with none out, off hits by Bradshaw and Locker and a Napanee error. Hooper however tightened up and forced Harry Brown to hit into a double play. He retired the next batter and the side with an infield out.

Billy Strachan and Galbraith left safely in the fifth with a pullout squeezed between the clouts. It was the usually reliable Mossie Rush failed to come through with a run-scoring clout as did Bradshaw.

Napanee scored three of their runs in the seventh innings on three hits a walk and an infield error. Vic Burtt and Art. Scarlett connected safely and Hooper sided his own cause with a ringing single to centre.

The victors drove two more runs across the plate in the seventh innings when Gerow was hit safely, and Jocko who had strolled, scored home after Marcels drove the ball to the outfield.

Art. Scarlett led the hits parade for the winners with three for three. Vic Burtt got a brace while Jocko banged out a double. Napanee 000 000 5—5 8 2

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To understand the purpose of a bridge signal and you will find it easier to remember. An opening bid of two in a suit signals enough to try a game in something. Why?

Such an opening should not be made unless the player has nine tricks. Tricks. With nine tricks in one hand, chances are good that the game in something will make. Chances are very good.

Having thus announced stuff enough to try for a game, what if it's serious to know in a hurry? whether or not there is chance for slam. Partner should supply such advice quickly.

The first reply signal from partner should tell whether a slam is worth probing. When will partner know this? When he holds the side suit he's responding-hand a side suit is sure.

With no sure trick, the reply signal is two-no-trump. Therefore, the first response of two spades, simply says: "Partner, I have no sure trick." No matter what else I may have, no sure trick is in my hand."

So, any other immediate reply promises a sure trick. With a sure trick, however, study follows at once the order of choice in A-K-Q; second, suit, no-trump.

With no takeout, responder should assist! If he has support, with no takeout or assist, he should bid no-trump. But not two no-trump. He must then bid three no-trump to signal the sure trick.

South opened with two clubs when north held this hand:

♠Q 10
♦K 6 4 2
♣7 5 4 3

♠A 9 8 7 6 5
♥K 7 6 5

With a sure trick (heart ace), he avoids a response of two no-trump. No takeout suit has he. With adequate club support, his reply is three clubs. A sure trick is thus promised also.

It makes no promise in what suit is the sure trick. All it shows is a sure trick somewhere and support for clubs. Clothe not each bid with virtues most liable to hurt youse.

Hollywood, May 21 — (AP) — Let's look in on Betty Hutton, who says she is hovering "on cloud No. 9" these days.

The blonde bombshell was resting between strenuous dance rehearsals with Fred Astaire for "Let's Dance," when enthused about her role to follow—"Annie Get Your Gun."

"I'm so excited I can't sleep—I just lie there singing 'Doin' What Comes Naturally,'" she said.

"For four years I've been trying to do 'Annie.' I haven't been happy with the pictures I've had since Buddy Desyrva left Paramount and I pleaded with them to buy it for me. I really bawled them out when they let M.G.M. get it."

Betty said she never gave up hope that she would play Annie, even after the picture began shooting. Then Judy Garland was suspended for not reporting to the set and M. G. M. began dickering for Betty.

Judy Unhappy

"First I wanted to be sure the studio wasn't just trying to punish Judy," she said. "But then I found out she wasn't exactly happy with the role, anyway.

"After all, Judy is more the wide-eyed, starring type. Annie calls for the loud kind of hokum I can do."

Already lined up to follow those two films immediately are the Mack Sennett Biography — (she'll play Mabel Normand) and the Life of Theda Bara.

The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend" (TCF) fails to be as interesting as its title. It has all the elements — color, zany story, comic cast and Betty Grable's legs. But somehow it turns out to be a mess. The climax is a riotous gun duel in which no one scores a hit. The same thing goes for the picture.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a satisfied expression, and ma said, William, how does the idea of a movie strike you?

I'm quite comfortable, my dear, pop said.

Meaning it didn't strike him good, and ma said, Now William, you'll be doing off in your chair in 15 minutes and spoiling your night's sleep. So all I'm asking you to do is to give up a harmful state of unconsciousness. Goodness knows I'm always giving up things for you, she said.

My dear, perhaps I never told you, but when I met you I gave up a really remarkable girl, pop said. I turned her down cold, even though her father tempted me with a life of ease and comfort by offering to make me a pardner in his bizzness, he said, and ma said, It seems strange I never heard anything about it. You're not usually such a blushing violet. What bizzness was her father in? she said.

The transportation bizzness, pop said. He owned a model tea Ford in which he transported vacuum cleaners and tried to sell them from door to door. It was a dazzling offer but I decided I'd rather have you, my dear, even though his dawter was a remarkable girl, he said, and ma said, She must of been I'm sure.

She was really exceptional, pop said. She was only 180 pounds but she was every ounce a lady. She was quite a striking figure, because she was ony 5 feet tall, so the general effect was of graceful roundness, like a volley ball. She was short or hreth as well as stout, tho, so she panted when she danced, but she was invariably chewing spearmint gum, so her panting was always pleasantly flavored, he said, ana ma said, Oh hush and nonsense. If we hurry we can make the first show, she said.

The result being pop changed his slippers to his shoes and they went.

Point Anne scored one run in the third, two in the fifth and three more in the sixth. They threatened to tie the count in the eighth when pinch-hitter Weeks drove out solid hit coupled with a wak. But Barriage sore down to retired the side with no damage done.

Northern scored a single in the third, had their six big innings in the fifth and came through with the winning run in the eighth. Catcher Jack Elliot drove Point Anne objected strenuously to Plate Umpire Carson's decision on Fitzpatrick's slide home which scored the winning run, and was promptly expelled from the game.

Huck Reeves got three hits, one a triple for the winners with Vern Goyer getting a pair including a triple. Mallory hit a triple, a two bagger and a single for the Point with Art. Genereaux getting a triple and single.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 21 (AP)—What probably was the reddest face in Texas was displayed the other day by Deputy-Sheriff Tom Plummer of Travis County, who owns the Austin Black Pioneers Baseball Club....Bob Long, the District Attorney, had been checking over some papers and asked Plummer about one man who was listed as a "fugitive" after having been indicted last fall....Plummer knew right where to find the man; he was one of Tom's players....After the athlete had been brought into court, still wearing his spikes, it was discovered that the warrant had been mislaid in the sheriff's office all the time and the "fugitive" hadn't even been out of town....So the ball player was placed on probation and sent back to the team.

One-Minute Sports Page

Howard (Dizzy) Southerland, whose roughpaw hurling has been mowing them down for Charlotte, N.C., in the Tri-State League, used to drive a hack in Washington. That must be where he learned control....The National Football (one step above softball) League has adopted a substitution rule which permits a pinch-hitter to hit twice in a game or a starter to return once after he has been removed for a pinch hitter or runner. Idea is to produce more hitting and base-running....

And Scoop Latimer offers a note of sympathy for Gee Walker, now manager of the Columbia, S.C., Sally Leaguers. Gee has so many teen-agers, says Scoop, that he has to teach them to shave and play ball at the same time.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

Joy understood. North up here might be any way. Even she, a skilled pilot, would be nervous; and the climb and the storm would surely confuse Bettina. She said no more. The clouds were a solid gray now, and the wind that was snatching the ship as if it were a fragile thing of pasteboard.

She leveled off when she thought it safe to do so and tried circling again. She looked at her first gauge. Her heart all but froze within her.

"I've got to go back!" she whispered. "It's the last chance."

The forced climb had almost emptied the tanks. Time slid now would be measured in minutes; Joy knew. Presently—all too soon—the motor would begin to say spit-i-t, spit-i-t. They would begin that heart-sinking search as the gasoline supply ended.

Arbitrarily she swerved slowly back down. It was if she had been stunting, showing off, having fun as Joy Boone was wont to do. Miss Carlson looked at her in fresh alarm.

"Joy!"

"Sh! Light, Tootsy! And—strap that parachute on!"

"JOY!" She fairly screamed it now.

"You heard me! Do as I say. Quickly!"

"But you—you!"

"Put mine on! You'll have to go first. Don't you see? The wulp would foul us."

"There's only mountains and the thorniest cactus plants and rocks on the valley. Or—oh Joy! I won't leave you here!"

"I'll say you won't! Aunt Tootsy, the gasoline's nearly gone. Where could I possibly land? If we drift any lower it will be too dangerous for the 'chutes! Now remember—jump, and pull the ring. I've told you how easy it is. Don't be afraid! Kiss me and go!"

"You'll follow!"

"Yes! GO!"

It was as near to grandeur as Bettina Carlson ever achieved this moment. She was fearful of jumping herself, yes, but she was more fearful of refusing. She knew Joy would never go first. Never! To stay would mean death for both, so—

Courageously she opened the tiny cabin door and threw herself out, grasping the parachute ring. The formless mystery of the storm engulfed her.

Joy Boone was sobbing. She glanced once more at her fuel gauge. If only—if only—

The plane responded. She drifted farther through the whirling, swirling wind and ice and water. The monoplane trembled. Then, almost instantaneously, the driving storm roared in at full strength. She glanced out.

Joy Boone knew no terror. To her right was a sheer rock cliff. She plainly had spoken the truth. Beyond, a valley.

But, worse, ahead of her a few miles, glistening in her gray light as well loomed an extension of the mountain wall. Full blindly, she had trapped herself in a box canyon! It yawned in front of her, a trap of death.

When they started up the steep slope toward Ho-Ho-Kam Ridge, which was a natural lookout point over Frontier University, Polly and Ken and her two men companions made an odd little parade.

She had left her horse Pintado hitched below. She climbed in crevices, spurs clinking. Behind her, Ken Palmer labored with a heavy pack-load of drilling paint. And third came Pedro, the Indian gardener, mostly looking with rare and two brooms.

"You have to—stretch—for it!" Polly breathed, haggling up to the two men. She was lifting herself by sheer strength over the boulders. It was a restful climb.

"I shall die quite dead," Ken Palmer groaned. "This is not what I came to college to do!"

"Can you don't like mountain climbing? You're a sotlet?"

"No, I—" But he had suddenly looked at her, and saw the way she dimpled. He had to grin back. "Yes. Yes, Miss McMurren. In distract one! I am suvocoed to be a city chap. A cowgirl has led me astray."

"Feel no alarm, Pedro will chaperone and protect you!"

"Of course. I meant—" The young man swallowed. Polly had spoken that last ever-so-seriously, haughtily. "Please forgive me! I was grossly feebly to—to tease—and I am not good at social—"

Polly laughed. Then set down to rest with them from the climb. They were half way or so. All the way from a sister or two, Mr. Mani My brother Ward would have known better. Is back a dog's life. But you're all right Ken, really. I may call you Ken, mayn't I?"

He warned her, formality gone again. "Of course! If I may call you—call you—"

"Polly, please. It's Pauline, really. But Polly is best. And uncle Ken—uncle is a distinction for formality in Arizona. It isn't like Boston out here, or New York. We give and take easily, with everybody on his own."

"I think I'm going to like that!"

She hearded them up another 600-odd feet, where they came onto the flat top of the ridge. Only a few knee-high cacti and pale weeds grew in back the plane of red rock.

"It's like cement!" Ken said. "Almost a dance floor."

"We have school doings up here sometimes," she nodded. "Right now we are going to paint. Look—start here, Pedro, and rake out all the pebbles and trash. You follow with a broom, Ken. I'll outline a big arrow, then you can use the brooms to help me fill it in."

Within an hour they had a gigantic white arrow there. It was nearly 100 feet long, pointed north. The three stood, flushed by, and Polly lifted an arm to point away off.

"Look closely, Ken. See the darker spot in Paradise Valley? That's my dad's ranch. My dad's Parade Ranch. It's 15 miles. Now look there to the left, the west. See the larger white or yellowish area? That's the Flats. See it?"

"The Flats!" He was more conscious of her nearness than of the landscape. She had on hand on his shoulder, and the clean grace of her pointing arm was beautiful. Too, he caught from her a delicious, delicate perfume. He glanced quickly at her face. Her cheeks were wind-tinted. Lips were exceptionally—but naturally—dark. Ken Palmer swallowed. His eyes lifted to the ebony ringlets of Polly's hair.

"There—you aren't looking, Ken!" She pretended to chide him.

"Uuh, I see."

"That's where she can land. Her lateral, did she expects a college landing field, Ken, and by reckoning she shall have it!"

Polly posed with hands on hips, looking very solid lassy, chin up. "Lady!" Ken Palmer breathed. His admiration was open now but Polly chose again to ignore it. She could at least keep an impersonal front. She told herself even though handsome Ken Palmer set her heart-a-pounding. But it wasn't easy.

"The arrow is right near the big white rock—see? She'll know what to do when she sees it. Podro, you drag the things back down there's a dear, and we'll hasten on ahead."

"Where to, Polly?" Ken demanded, brightly. Her enthusiasm was contagious.

"We'll go get my horse—no; have you a car?"

"Um. Of a sort. It runs."

"We'll run it. We better hurry. I think it's going to rain. It often does in September. Or at least dry rain."

"Dry rain!" He looked surprised.

"Sand storm, you dude! Come on!"

They climbed the 1,200-odd feet down to the campus again in half the time required to go up. Polly complimented Ken for his aerolitness.

"I keep in shape," he admitted. "Tennis. Swimming. Boxing some."

"Maybe this—this Boone person—will be athletic. I'll gamble on it."

"Joy Boone. Joy Kathryn Boone, of New York and Bar Harbor and Miami and—" Ken was saying it syerreotly, "—and everywhere. I've seen his pictures a thousand times. Last week in the news reels she—"

"I know. The 19el glamorette, or whatever. Modeling for this and that. Stunting. Setting a pace. It's all right, though, we'd all do it if we could. I say it's a break for Frontier that she's coming."

"It will advertise the school. I needs that. Maybe she would w'hist the endowment fund then."

When they had driven out to The Flats, Ward McMurray was waiting there. Moreover, he had the forethought to bring a canteen of water and some things to eat Ken Palmer liked him. Ward was quiet mannered, but his handclasp was firm and he looked straight into Ken's eyes.

"So you go to college, too, Ward?" Ken asked. "And where?"

"I finished at the state U. in Tucson. Enough for me. I figured I want to do ranching. Dad's letme take over for keeps then."

"Good. Then you, uh, can build dog a steer, eh?"

Ward grinned. "If I have to. I don't go in for rodeo sports much, though. I work. Or scours Polly around or run errands for her She bosses me around."

"Mmmmm!" Ken Palmer sounded off as if to say that could be a delightful situation. He stared at Polly almost too much.

Because Polly had ordered them by phone, Ward had four bed sheets in the car. The young people took these sheets now and tied them about half a mile apart, roughly marking off the flattest part of the area. Hard desert sand here would be an ideal landing spot, Ward explained.

"Heck of it is, it's likely to rain," he asserted. "We're due for some rain. That cloud's black. And if that isn't a sand cone under it—"

Joy half an hour they studied the weather and while no rain fell, the sand did begin to blow.

Presently it was a colossal brown tapestry across the landscape between them and Squaw Peak, 15 miles toward Phoenix.

The Peak was still visible, but barely so. Then the sky began spitting. Whack! Whack! Whack! Finally they got out to walk, ignoring the rain. Most of it was wind now, again.

"You'll catch cold," Ken said to Polly. "I should have my coat for you."

"No," she smiled her thanks "I never have."

How many things made of aluminum can you see on a street corner?
UNLESS you look at the pictures on the right, you'll hardly believe there can be so many.
Yet this is only a few of them. For aluminum has so many advantages that you may see hundreds of other things made of it — on the streets, in store windows, almost anywhere you look.
This is because aluminum is so very light, and strong, does not rust and has lots of other special features.
Today more than 1000 Canadian companies are making aluminum into so many kinds of useful and beautiful articles that no one can keep track of them all.
Why is this so? Because so many people all over the world want things made of aluminum we have been able to make more and more.
Because we have been able to make more, we have been able, over the last ten years, to reduce the price of aluminum ingot by 25%.
